'No Argument for War'

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

Two leading proponents of the lend-lease bill—one a Republican and the other a Democrat—told the Senate yesterday that America will fight if necessary to prevent a Hitler victory.

Debate opened with four major pleas for swift passage. Isolationists immediately countered with the charge that every argument for the bill was an argument for war.

It was Senator Austin, of Vermont, assistant Republican Senate leader and ardent exponent of the bill, who set the galleries to cheering with the reply:

"If it becomes necessary to fight, we will fight."

Austin, questioned every inch of the way by opponents of the bill, had just concluded an argument on the President's constitutional powers and a denial of "dictatorship" charges.

Senator Bone (Democrat), of Washington, was urging a specific

How much is red tape going to cost the Government this year? (It will cost even more than the red ink.)

House Group Urges Defense Base at Samoa

Naval Unit Rushes $242,000,000 Bill To Bolster Outposts

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

The House Naval Affairs Committee formally recommended legislation yesterday to establish a naval and air base at Samoa, declaring it would complete the Nation's mid-Pacific defense system and provide a "safe haven" for merchantmen "should raiders become active in the South Pacific."

A $242,000,000 measure to strengthen the Navy's base facilities on American possessions in both the Pacific and Atlantic was rushed for House consideration tomorrow, amid growing tension over the Far Eastern situation.

In its report to the House, the naval committee insisted that the $4,700,000 improvements sought for the island of Guam, less than 1,500 miles from Tokyo, were principally "non-military in character," but made no secret of the importance of the proposed Samoan base.

After hearing Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, testify behind closed doors Saturday on the need for the $8,100,000 base, the committee gave the first official explanation of the proposal.

"At the present time," it was said, "we have in existence or in

$225,000,000 For Defense Housing Asked

Roosevelt Urges Congress to Provide Additional Funds

President Roosevelt yesterday asked Congress for an additional $225,000,000 for defense housing, as a rental and management policy for such projects was laid down officially.

A statement issued by Federal Works Administrator Carmody said that rentals paid by industrial workers occupying the Government-built houses will depend upon their incomes, without reference to the size of the dwelling unit.

Rentals paid by Army and Navy personnel for defense housing units will be fixed by the War and Navy Departments, Carmody said. Tenancy will be restricted to workers in defense industries and designated civilian and enlisted personnel of the Army and Navy.

The President's request for additional funds for defense housing, submitted to Speaker Rayburn, called for $75,000,000 to finance the remainder of a program authorized by Congress last year, and a new $150,000,000 program.

At the same time, Defense House Coordinator Palmer disclosed that up to February 8, funds had been allocated for 68,432 units. Of this total, 1,683 have been completed, while 35,011 have been contracted

At Willkie's Request

Martin Considers Staying On As G.O.P. National Chairman

House Minority Leader Joseph W. Martin said last night that he would consider retaining his post as chairman of the Republican National Committee.

His statement followed a one-hour conference with Wendell L. Willkie, 1940 Presidential nominee, who urged Martin to reconsider his decision to resign the chairmanship when the National committee meets here March 24.

Martin said after the conference:

"Since Mr. Willkie was kind enough to ask me to stay on, I will take the matter under advisement."

Willkie commented:

"Joe Martin is one of the finest friends I ever had. I hope he stays on as national chairman until the national committee has time to give ample consideration to the selection of his successor. I believe he will."

Martin said no names of possible successors in his party post were mentioned.

Earlier, Willkie, here for an off-the-record talk at the National Press Club, had conferred with Lord Halifax, British Ambassador.

Willkie was a guest at a dinner at the home of Eugene Meyer, editor and publisher of The Post, last night. He expected to return to New York by train this morning.

Profiteers Face Expose In New Plan

Machine Tool Price Control Technique May Be Extended To Other Essentials

By Alfred Friendly
Post Staff Writer

A hitherto untried technique for Government price fixing, depending for enforcement on immediate public exposure of alleged war profiteers, will be extended wherever necessary to all commodities needed in the Nation's defense program, it was forecast in authoritative quarters yesterday.

The method, as revealed for the first time yesterday in the publication of a price schedule for second-hand machine tools by the price stabilization division of the Defense Commission, will be extended to other defense materials, should the situation warrant, division officials declared.

Although they admitted they were "watching other situations," they declined to say in what fields they would issue future maximum price lists, and said they had no schedules drafted for other industries.

65 to Represent Industry

Meantime, aluminum shortages, which have resulted in such price discrepancies as to make aluminum scrap cost more than the virgin ingot, will be the subject of a conference of aluminum makers and dealers with the Defense Commission price stabilization division today, an OPM spokesman said.

About 65 members of the industry will meet with C. A. Bishop, of the division staff, to discuss the price situation and determine on remedial measures, it was learned. Last week Bishop attributed the price rise to hoarding, and had threatened "drastic action" unless the scrap price dropped.

Public Would Be Informed

Differing from price-fixing methods during the last war, the method announced to meet what were found to be "harmful" price conditions in second-hand machine tools contemplates informing Congress and the public of instances where dealers fail to abide by price schedules set by the division.

Division officials and machine tool experts in the Office of Production Management said they believed that the public would support a campaign against exorbitant prices and that the method would be effective.

Force as Final Resort

The price stabilization division, it was learned, feels that it is within the scope of its functions to determine reasonable prices for all defense products "from a packet of pins to a freighter," and, if prices get out of hand, to publish schedules of ceiling prices above which sales should not be made.

If sellers refuse to abide by the schedules and are undeterred by public exposure, the division warned, "the powers of the Government" will be "fully exerted in order to protect the public interest in the maintenance of fair prices."

Defense May Cut Items of Luxury, First Lady Says

The time may come, opined Mrs. Roosevelt yesterday at her press conference, when a person may not be able to buy a new car every year, even if he can afford it. In her opinion, factories will be so busy turning out defense products that Americans may have to do without certain things.

The First Lady suggested that thoughtful women may now want to put money into Government savings instead of a new car. "We should prepare ourselves to meet whatever we have to meet," she said, in anticipation of the possibility that the Government may advise there are some things Americans will either have to do without or find substitutes for.

Mrs. Roosevelt reported that she had seen Harry Hopkins briefly since his return from London. She quoted him as saying the women of England are doing a tremendous job in war work.

Balkan Pact Opens Nazi Path To Greece; Japan Calls for End Of All Wars, Offers to Mediate

Tokyo Suggests America Restrict Activities to West To Ease Tension

By Otto D. Tolischus
Copyright by New York Times

Tokyo, Feb. 18.—Gravely concerned about developments in the Far East which are inducing some Japanese quarters to urge upon Japan immediate steps to "meet the worst eventualities," the Japanese government through its official spokesman, Koh Ishii, today issued a statement suggesting termination of all war and offering Japan's services as mediator if and when such services are called for.

At the same time the statement put the blame for present situation on Britain and the United States, and suggested that the United States should restrict its activities to the Western Hemisphere as one means of mitigating the present tension.

In expressing the statement, Ishii specifically said that it expressed Japan's desire to end the European war, but he also added that it applied to east Asia and therefore presumably to the so-called China emergency.

"Alarming Reports"

The statement, issued following the call by the British Ambassador on Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka last weekend, reads:

"Various alarming reports have reached Japan, purporting to give an impression that the situation in east Asia has become radically tense. We are surprised to learn that some foreign countries show undue concern regarding the alleged tensity in the situation in east Asia, and we want to emphasize that so far as we can see there is no ground for entertaining alarming views on the east Asia situation.

"We want to repeat that the purpose of the Tripartite pact is peaceful. We cannot help feeling, therefore, a certain amount of anxiety, if not misgiving, as to the warlike preparation of the British and American governments to meet supposed contingencies in the Pacific and South Seas.

Prepared to Mediate

"Press reports concerning these movements on the part of Britain and the United States, originating from British and American sources and elsewhere, are causing increasing misgivings, resulting in the contention advanced in some quarters in Japan that Japan should lose no time to take the necessary steps to meet the worst eventualities in these regions.

"If the American Government could only be persuaded to restrict their activities in this respect to the Western Hemisphere and avoid causing anxiety unnecessarily in the minds of the Japanese people, the

Catholics to Issue Revised Edition Of Bible in May

Kansas City, Feb. 17.—The first revision since 1749 of the English translation of the Catholic New Testament will be published in May, Bishop Edwin O'Hara announced tonight.

In the modernized version of the Bible text, language has been brought up to date and changes have been made in certain interpretations of ancient texts.

The new edition is the product of nearly five years of work by a three-bishop committee, headed by Bishop O'Hara, and an editorial board composed of some of the Nation's outstanding Scripture scholars.

Powder Douses Incendiary Bombs

Liverpool, Feb. 17.—It was announced here today that the British have a gray colored powder which quickly blacks out fires that might be lit up by incendiary bombs.

In a tryout the powder was sprayed on an incendiary. The flames changed from a brilliant white to yellow, then red, and then died out.

An official of the chemical firm which manufactures the powder explained: "This powder cuts off the oxygen supply and the result is that the bombs are really put out."

Girls Here May Be 'Drafted' To Dance With Soldier Boys

Dancees Would Be Chosen by Lottery For Duty as Partners at Weekly Parties

Plans for registering Government girls along selective service lines as partners for weekly dances here for men from nearby Army camps are being considered by District defense recreation committees, it was learned last night.

Tentative arrangements call for registration of volunteer "dancees," with each girl given a number by the Federal employes committee. Numbers will be called by lottery when weekly dance quotas are to be filled.

The first dance probably will be held next week in either the Bureau of Printing and Engraving or the Government Printing Office hall, Committee Chairman Archie Edwards said. Plans will be completed Friday afternoon at a meeting of recreation committees in the District Building.

Definitely scheduled was a vaudeville show for selectees to be held February 27 at 8 p. m. in the Department of Agriculture Auditorium.

Other entertainment plans include a radio quiz contest, musical concerts, plays and minstrel shows.

Information booths probably will be set up in train and bus depots and in Selective Service headquarters to keep selectees and defense workers posted on recreation opportunities and scheduled shows and dances.

Special rates for uniformed men at local movie theaters are being worked out by a committee headed by Ray H. Everett, of the Social Hygiene Society.

To arrange special parties and find the recreational needs of selectees, an Army and Navy liaison committee, headed by Otto S. Lund, of the District Red Cross, has been visiting Fort Meade and Fort Belvoir this week and conferring with officers.

Responsibility for organizing and coordinating recreation is vested in a subcommittee of the Defense Council of the District, headed by Robert E. Bondy.

D. C. Troops Toil Up Mountain To Answer Distress Signal

By the Associated Press

El Paso, Tex., Feb. 17.—Two searching parties, composed of troops of the 260th Antiaircraft Regiment of the District of Columbia National Guard, toiled up the barren rocky sides of 7,000-foot Mount Franklin today in answer to what appeared to be distress signals from two trapped mountain climbers.

Spotted through field telescopes from the antiaircraft training cantonment at Fort Bliss, two figures were discerned beside a white shirt flapping in the breeze.

At daybreak a detail under Capt. Lawrence W. Linderer, started up the mountainside. One of the men, according to spotters at field telescopes, appeared to be injured and lying on the ground. The other stood.

Shortly before noon Sergt. Lee Perry and three members of Linderer's party returned to report no men, trapped or otherwise, had been seen on the mountain. Only a white athletic shirt was located.

"We yelled and whistled and fired shots," the sergeant said, "but we got no answer and could see nobody. Capt. Linderer and the rest continued the search and we reported back."

Meanwhile, watchers from the camp professed still to see two men clearly through their telescopes.

A second search party was authorized by Col. Walter W. Burns, commander of the 260th, and a group of eight under Lieut. C. W. Rock, of Battery C, headed up the mountain at noon.

Radio Station KROD started sending out reports every 15 minutes through a watcher stationed at a telescope, and it was hoped Lieut. Rock would be guided by the directions picked up over his receiver to the spot visible in the telescope.

Huge 800,000,000-candlepower antiaircraft searchlights aided the rescue details on the mountain after nightfall.

D. C. Orders Higher Penalties To Curb Speeding Trend

By Howard F. Wentworth
Post Staff Writer

District motorists convicted of first-offense speeding in excess of 45 miles an hour will lose their driving privileges for a maximum of 90 days, under orders issued yesterday by the Commissioners.

In a move designed to curb a sudden trend toward fast driving, indicated by the fact that arrests for second-offense speeding have more than doubled in the past 90 days, the Commissioners acted upon recommendation of Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer.

Heretofore, the licenses of first offenders have been suspended for 30 days only when the speed was in excess of 50 miles an hour. In cases of second offense, the suspensions have been from 30 to 60 days.

Van Duzer cited a recent analysis of 25 fatal accidents. In ten of these deaths, fast driving was given as the principal cause.

At his suggestion, the Commissioners also ordered that permits of second offenders, with speed convictions of more than 45 miles an hour, be suspended for a period of not more than six months.

"While these penalties may appear harsh," said Van Duzer, "it is evident that a suspension of 30 to 60 days makes little or no impression upon some persons whose permits have been suspended. I believe adoption of this new policy will go a long way toward reducing the number of traffic fatalities and accidents in Washington."

The revised suspension order be-

2 D. C. Employes Dismissed In Shortage of Dog Tax Funds

Two women employes of the District—one a clerk in the tax collector's office and the other a clerk in the auditor's office—were dismissed "for the good of the service" yesterday following a two-hour conference at which the Commissioners discussed reported shortages in dog license receipts.

Both had been in the District employ since 1928.

Commissioner J. Russell Young said investigation of shortages in dog license accounts is still under way. He said the amount missing may exceed $10,000. The current inquiry was launched several weeks ago when an audit of books revealed a shortage of $1,338 in dog tax receipts between July 1, 1940, and November 30, 1940.

Commissioner Young also reported that records of dog license collections for the entire year of 1938 are missing.

"There are several angles in this shortage business which still remain to be cleared up," Young said. "We have ordered the investigation continued and from the looks of things now the loss may exceed $10,000."

He said the two women employes were dismissed merely for the "good of the service" and no further action is contemplated.

Greece Out on Limb

By the Associated Press

Sofia, Bulgaria, Feb. 17.—A Bulgarian-Turkish nonaggression statement issued here tonight was interpreted by reliable informants to mean that Greece was in danger of being left out on a limb and might have to sue for peace with Italy or suffer the consequences of a German thrust against her.

However, the statement clearly announced that agreement to keep the peace was reached "without prejudice to their contracted engagements with other countries," a stipulation that Greek sources said was "encouraging" for Greece.

Strictly interpreted, informants acknowledged, Turkey had left the way open to aid Greece, with whom she has a mutual assistance pact. They reasoned, however, that since Turkey did not move to aid Greece when Italy attacked her, there was no reason to suppose the Turks would help Greece should Germany move against her without violating Turkey's borders.

British See No Aid for Nazis

(Authorized British sources in London said the statement solely concerned those two countries, but they derided reports that such an agreement would remove any difficulty for the Germans should they cross Bulgaria in an effort to force Greece to make peace with Italy. They assumed that Turkey still maintained freedom of action in connection with her existing obligations, which include a treaty with Britain.)

The core of the agreement which was signed in Ankara, Turkey, is the first article.

"Turkey and Bulgaria consider as the unchangeable foundation of their foreign policies abstinence fro mall aggression."

Turkey's foreign minister, Sukru Saracoglu, was reported to have de-

B. & O. Awarded $275,337 for U.S. Taxes Paid in '24

Baltimore, Feb. 17 (AP).—A judgment awarding the Baltimore & Ohio railroad and eight subsidiaries $275,337.36 in overpaid Federal taxes for 1924 and almost as much more in interest was entered in Federal court today by Judge William C. Coleman. Government attorneys contended a refund was barred by the statute of limitations.

The railroads, through their attorney, R. Kemp Slaughter, of Washington, said $1,957,181.89 in Federal taxes were paid on reported income of $15,657,455 in 1924. Most of the overpayment claims were based on depreciation of rolling equipment in 1924.

German Aims In Balkans Little Clearer

By C. L. Sulzberger
Copyright by New York Times

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Feb. 17.—German plans for completing the occupation of southeastern Europe without military opposition from the lands involved appear to be somewhat more clear this evening, but just how they will work out is still problematic.

Chief among the hopes of Berlin are apparent efforts to secure Yugoslav and Turkish neutrality when the Wehrmachet marches into Bulgaria, and, if possible, to insure the nonactivity of the armies of these countries if Britain attacks the infiltrating Nazi forces.

Reports of the German plan to readjust the Yugoslav frontiers and give certain guarantees to this country persist, but there is not yet any official confirmation. Nevertheless, it is said general staff officers met last evening to discuss the suggestion mentioned in yesterday's dispatch that Yugoslavia make territorial gifts to Hungary and Bulgaria in exchange for compensating gains from Greece and Albania.

According to today's information, this country will be asked to return to Hungary certain sections of the Voivodina Province acquired after the last war by the Serbian, Croat and Slovene Triune Kingdom, including portions of land around Subotica and Sombor.

Bulgaria Would Gain

Yugoslavia would also be requested, it is reported, to give to Bulgaria strips of the western frontier around Tsaribrod and Bosilgrad and a small piece of the Macedonian Province of South Serbia. In exchange, Yugoslavia would receive—if deliverable by Germany—a piece of Albania north of the Drin River, including Scutari and a corridor to Salonika of a few kilometers in width.

Yugoslavia would be required to guarantee its strict neutrality in case Germany enters Bulgaria and in case Britain lands a force in Greece to march against the Germans. No mention is made, according to these reports, of Yugoslav signature of the so-called tripartite accord or of permission to the Nazi army to traverse this land.

There seems to be a growing feeling of hopelessness here among Serbian circles close to the Government. They tend to blame the Turks for not coming to specific terms for a mutual defense arrangement with Yugoslavia. Some people still believe, however, that Yugoslavia is determined not to accept any fallacious Nazi plan and will strive hard not only to maintain its present frontiers, but to defend itself if pressure is exerted to change them. There is a widespread conviction here that Germany will eventually lose the war.

One thing must be pointed out and that is, that the Yugoslav army is not mobilizing nor apparently preparing in any way for an extraordinary crisis, which leads certain British informants to adopt an attitude of nervousness. Nevertheless, the Army has about 500,000 men under arms. What is more, it is known that the army is almost wholly pro-British in spirit and is still ready to resist if the Nazis send any flat ultimatum demanding permission to pass troops across the frontier.

Pact Viewed With Skepticism

The Turkish-Bulgarian agreement is viewed with much skepticism and distrust by pro-Ally circles here.

Allied circles believe the formula adopted at Ankara indicates a way for both countries to render their own armies inactive in case of trouble between Britain and Germany in the Balkans. However, the declaration that Ankara and Sofia will both sustain themselves against aggression is subject to any interpretation.

Meanwhile, the Germans are circulating rumors which could be true that Premier Dragisha Cvetkovitch or Foreign Minister Alexander Cincar-Markovitch may soon revisit the Reich.

U. S. Veterans Of Spain Plead For Refugee Ship

Three young men and a college professor, Americans who fought in the trenches of loyalist Spain, yesterday sought the aid of the British Embassy in rescuing their companions-in-arms from French concentration camps.

Representing the American Rescue Ship Mission, which has chartered the S. S. Lovcen to transport 450 Spanish refugees to Mexico, the four veterans urged British officials to rescind their denial of a sailing warrant to the Lovcen.

First Secretary A. K. Helm said after the conference that the sailing warrant was "a matter between the British government and the ship owner."

The delegation that called at the Embassy was led by 25-year-old Milton Wolff, a New York art student, who enlisted as a private in the International Brigade in February, 1937, and ended up 21 months later as a major in command of the Abraham Lincoln Battalion.

The college professor was David McKelvy White, 39, who left his post as an English instructor at Brooklyn College in March, 1937, and volunteered to fight in Spain.

The others were Fred Keller, 25, a Boonton, N. J., elevator operator and Golden Gloves runner-up, who became political commander of the Lincoln Battalion, and Daniel Grodin, 30, a New York garment worker, who fought in Spain for 18 months and was wounded seriously in an attack on Fuentes De Ebro.

London Gets Heavy Night Raid As Clouds Shield Attackers

By James MacDonald.
Copyright by New York Times

London (Tuesday), Feb. 18.—Taking advantage of somewhat cloudy weather over the Straits of Dover last night, German planes sneaked over at high altitudes, coursed to London and gave the antiaircraft gunners the busiest evening they have had in some time.

The gunfire began a moment or two after the alarms went up, and went on almost incessantly to such a degree that sometimes it drowned out the noise of falling bombs. Most of the bombs that came down were incendiaries, but it was reported some high explosives were dropped.

Hundreds of fire bombs fell on a large area of one London district and they were followed by scores of flares, illuminating the ground as brilliantly as New York's Times Square at the theater hour.

Incendiaries started fires in some places but most of them were quickly extinguished. For example, some fire bombs burst near a school where members of the home guard were drilling. Calling off their training on what to do in the event of an attempted invasion by the Germans or how to act if the Nazis try to gas this country, the home guardsmen rushed out of the school building, shoveled dirt on the incendiaries, put out the flames and then resumed their drills.

In another neighborhood, fire watchers flung sand on the incendiary bombs and extinguished their flames before the fire engines arrived at the scene.

An hour or two after London's air raid alarm went up the sirens sounded "raiders passed."

During the daylight yesterday German planes made a brief visit to the capital, dropping one or two bombs but, seemingly, concentrating their attention on making general observations.

During the raids after nightfall yesterday when German planes were heard hovering over open districts in counties near London, a German bomber was brought down in flames on an open field. As the machine plummeted to earth all of its crew, except one, bailed out safely and were made prisoners, but the other died in the blazing wreckage when the plane struck the earth.

Earlier in the day Royal Air Force fighters brought down a Nazi plane into the sea off the Norfolk coast after it had made a bombing and machine-gun attack on a certain town without hurting anyone or causing any casualties.

British Fly Over Poland

London, Feb. 17.—In the war's longest cross-continent flight, R. A. F. planes were reported to have made a 2,000-mile round trip to shower propaganda pamphlets over two German-occupied areas of western Poland.

It was pointed out significantly today that R. A. F. bombing attacks on Germany proper were preceded by such "raids." Nazi-held Katowice and Cracow were objectives of this leaflet expedition Saturday night. The government declined to reveal the contents of the leaflets.

The Air Ministry said British daylight raiders yesterday pummeled the Dutch and Belgian coasts from Hellevoetsluis, 17 miles south of Rotterdam, to Zeebrugee. Middelburg, 47 miles southwest of Rotterdam, and Den Helder, 41 miles north of Amsterdam, were among the targets.

Shipping off the Dutch coast was attacked by planes of the bomber command. At Hellevoetsluis, returning pilots said, a quay and a vessel moored alongside were hit.

The Sunday attacks were made before a southwesterly gale swept the Strait of Dover, halting further operations last night.

In describing the propaganda flight to Poland, British sources said it greatly exceeded the 1,200-mile trips made by the R. A. F. to bomb targets in Italy. The only previous war flight to Polish territory was one to the former free city of Danzig.

Pact Paves Way for Nazi March

"Small things can occasionally bring about great events and cause much good. The modest document we have just signed can perhaps prevent complications in the Balkans."

Reliable quarters said the accord meant Germany would stay clear of Turkey, and that a major obstacle to any German march through Bulgaria toward Greece had been removed.

Russia was believed to have had a hand in putting pressure on Turkey to keep her from becoming involved with Germany.

Today's agreement possibly eliminated one contractual engagement on Turkey's part which was contained in the pact of Balkan understanding signed February 9, 1934, by Rumania, Greece, Turkey and Yugoslavia.

That pact provided that if Greece, for example, were attacked "by a non-Balkan power, and that if a Balkan state joined in the aggression," then Turkey would have to march to Greece's aid.

But diplomatic sources point out Bulgaria now has made it clear she is not planning to join any German move against Greece, so under the terms of the pact Turkey would not be obliged to aid Greece.

A collective nonaggression pact was signed by Bulgaria, Turkey, Rumania, Greece and Yugoslavia July 31, 1938. But today's two-sided restatement was interpreted gleefully in Axis quarters as proof that Turkey, despite her status as a nonbelligerent ally of the British, would stand aloof from Greece's troubles.

A tangle of diplomatic maneuvering lay behind the accord.

It was understood that in return for Germany's promise to leave Turkey alone and keep away from the Dardanelles, Russia put pressure on the Turkish government with implication that Russia would be forced to seek return of the "lost" provinces of Kars and Ardahan from Turkey should the Turks become embroiled with Germany over passage of Nazi troops through Bulgaria.

In the eyes of most diplomatic observers the platitudes of the Bulgarian-Turkish accord seemed to have sealed the fate of Greece and to have squeezed Britain out of her last small foothold in southeastern Europe.

The kingpin of this latest victory for Axis diplomacy is understood to be Franz von Papen, ace Nazi diplomatist. It was said that he played a big part in bringing the Turks and the Bulgars together. The negotiations, culminated by the accord, have been going on for weeks.

While the British were trying to tie Turkey ever closer in their alliance—which was based on pledges of mutual assistance against any "aggression" leading to war in the eastern Mediterranean—Von Papen was at work behind the scenes in Ankara and Sofia.

Von Papen, who was Germany's preanschluss Ambassador to Austria, now is Ambassador to Turkey.

While British staff officers from Egypt were conferring recently with Turkish commanders, Turkish, Bulgarian and—seemingly—German diplomats were working along another line. The Turkish press in that time was saying on occasion that Turkey would have to move against Bulgaria if the Germans marched through.

The accord came close on the heels of a Britsih warning to Bulgaria that she would become subject to attack if her soil were used as a base of German operations against Greece.

Sources close to the Hungarian government said the pact "means Turkey will remain neutral and no military operation on a great scale will be necessary."

Yugoslav official quarters declared the pact explains the haste of Premier Dragisa Cvetkovic's response to Adolf Hitler's summons to Berchtesgaden last week.

These quarters declared Cvetkovic and his Foreign Minister Cincar-Markovic knew what was coming and realized that Yugoslavian resistance to Nazi demands would be vain since the remainder of the Balkans soon would fall to the grasp of the Axis.

One thing puzzling diplomatic observers tonight was the probable price Russia extracted from Hitler for services in bringing Turkey to heel. There were unsubstantiated reports that Hitler gave Joseph Stalin the go-ahead signal in Finland, with the Russian campaign to finish off the remainder of that little republic to begin when spring weather permits.

Rumania's province of Moldavia also figured as a possible payment to Russia.

Pact With Hungary Likely

Sofia, Feb. 17 (INS).—Hungarian Education Minister Dr. B. Homan arrived in Sofia tonight for what was announced as a "state visit of several days" in the Bulgarian capital.

He was accompanied by a large retinue of experts and it was understood a Bulgarian-Hungarian cultural pact would be concluded during Dr. Homan's sojourn in Sofia.

Turco-Bulgarian Pact

By the Associated Press

Sofia, Bulgaria, Feb. 17.—The text of the Turkish-Bulgarian accord as issued here tonight:

The Turkish and Bulgarian governments, having noted the fortunate results obtained by exchanges of views to which they often have resorted, herewith define their foreign policies in the light of their mutual interests and will and their common aim of maintaining intact the confidence and friendship between the two countries.

Faithful to their pact of friendship, pledging inviolate peace and perpetual friendship between the Turkish republic and the kingdom of Bulgaria, desirous of continuing intimately this confident policy which has served to assure peace in most difficult moments by the mutual respect of their security, and having decided to undertake a new exchange of views in the light of events, they have agreed on the following statement without prejudice to their contracted engagements with other countries:

1. Turkey and Bulgaria consider as the unchangeable foundation of their foreign policies abstinence from all aggression.

2. The governments, animated by the most friendly intentions toward each other, have decided to maintain and further develop mutual confidence in their relations.

3. The two governments declare themselves ready to seek proper means of giving maximum scope to commercial exchanges between the two countries, compatible with their economic structures.

4. The two governments alike hope that the press of the two countries will be inspired in all their writings by friendship and mutual confidence, restatement of which is the object of the present declaration.

Britain Begins Spy Hunt to Cut Ship Losses

By Robert E. Bunnelle
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, Feb. 17.—Alarmed over ship losses described as apparently due to information leaks, Britain is launching a new campaign to ferret out spies and still tongues which drop tips to Axis agents.

"It is hard to pin things like this down," one source commented, "and it is inadvisable to cite specific cases, but too many times the bombing and submarining of merchant ships, warships or convoys have occurred under circumstances that looked as if somebody had found out something about ship movements that they shouldn't have known."

He declined to estimate the proportion of the average of 62,000 tons weekly in merchant shipping losses believed due to tips by Axis agents, asserting:

"When a newly arrived ship is bombed in harbor or when merchant ships with a weak convoy, or none at all, are caught out it may be due to aerial reconnaissance, to an agent's tip, or to luck, or all three. We want to eliminate agents' tips."

One favorite hunting ground for spies is said to be in compartments of trains operating out of port towns. An agent sidles into one where he sees a sailor on leave and listens in on the conversation, in which the sailor may tell the name of his ship, where she has been, what cargo she carried and how long his leave is for, indicating when his ship will sail again.

Beside the trains, it was said, the agents haunt the dockside saloons, amusement centers, barber shops, lobbies where sailors on leave meet their friends and in places where there are telephone booths.

British say spies are known to use many channels to get information out of the country. The most obvious of these are short wave radios similar to those captured from three agents, the British executed last December.

Another method is heliograph or flashlight signals from isolated coastal districts to German planes or E-boats (torpedo boats). A third method is by passengers or crew members on ships bound for neutral ports.

The ministry of information is sponsoring a series of motion pictures showing how spies pick up information and pass it on.

More than 2,000 posters have been displayed on the docks warning against careless talk and the railways have posted 570,000 notices in compartments.

Anti-gossip posters in increasing numbers are displayed in saloons and other places and sailors are warned carefully before they go on leave.

U. S. Banks Take Precautionary Step in China

Shanghai, Feb. 17 (AP).—The local branches of Chase National Bank and National City Bank of New York today notified their clients possessing checking accounts in United States currency that, effective March 1, these accounts will be hanged into savings accounts.

Shanghai officials of the Chase bank said the action was precautionary in view of the unsettled conditions, it being easier to keep up-to-date records of savings accounts than checking accounts.

New York banking sources said the effect of the shift of deposits out of checking into savings accounts would be to give the banks greater control over the funds. Savings deposits, it was pointed out, are subject to time limitations on withdrawals and pass books must be presented for transactions against savings accounts.

Raider Sailed 4 Hours With Convoy Before Shooting

Funchal, Madeira (Tuesday), Feb. 18 (U.P.).—Survivors reaching here today charged that a German sea raider flying a British flag steamed along with a British Atlantic convoy for four hours one night last week and then suddenly opened fire with all its guns on the unsuspecting ships.

These survivors said they believed 6 of the 18 ships in the convoy, along with 200 missing crew members and 5 captains, were sunk by the raider. The whereabouts of six other ships are known. The remaining six vessels of the convoy anchored in Funchal Bay Saturday night.

British Force Italians Back In Somaliland

Cairo, Feb. 17.—While British troops counted guns and other war materials captured at Chisimaio, on the southern coast of Italian Somaliland, advanced units continued to force the Italians to retreat northward along the Juba River.

At the same time the South African air force launched a heavy dive-bombing attack on Italian posts and barracks around the east bank of the river, their direct hits setting many fires.

Sporadic and sometimes intense fighting continued yesterday around Cheren, in northern Eritrea, while the Royal Air Force again bombed Italian positions and shot down an Italian warplane at Gura and others near Cheren itself. British raids heavily damaged workshops, hangars and buildings at Mai Adaga, photographs verifying direct hits on several hangars and the demolition of several buildings.

The Australian air force intercepted and shot down a German bomber near Bengasi, Libya, as a flight of Nazi machines attempted to repeat raids on the Libyan coast. The plane's crew of four was rescued from the sea.

Meanwhile off the Tunisian coast a fleet air patrol bombed and sank an Italian merchantman of 7,000 tons.

R. A. F. bombers early yesterday raided Comiso, Catania, Gela, Brindisi and other objectives in Sicily and southern Italy, firing buildings and grounded aircraft.

Last-Ditch Fight at Oasis

Rome, Feb. 17 (AP).—In a determined last-ditch fight, the Italian garrison at Giarabub Oasis, isolated in the heart of the Libyan Desert, was reported still fighting off British tank units, bombing planes and artillery.

The war bulletin of the Italian high command today said the defenders of Giarabub had smashed "violent" British attacks.

The Italians were fighting from concrete redoubts, squatting in the shadow of the Libyan Desert mecca of the Mohammedan Senussi sect.

The Giarabub garrison, under Maj. Castagna, was cut off when Bardia fell, and has been dependent on transport planes from Tripoli for food and ammunition.

Military observers pointed out that British control of eastern Libya made the positions of Giarabub—150 miles inland, near the Egyptian-Libyan border—almost hopeless.

The value of the defense seemed to be largely moral.

Copyright by New York Times

Paris, Feb. 12 (Delayed; via Berlin).—Will French war babies of 1940 choose to be men or women when they come of age in 1960? This is a question medical experts in charge of the birth rate control in the Paris region and other big cities as well as villages and hamlets in the occupied zone are anxiously asking themselves.

According to medical reports a strange psychosis seems to have spread among French fathers who lately have been making false birth declarations at the various city halls, deliberately changing the sex of their newlyborn by declaring boys as girls.

Several such cases are said to have been registered in the Paris region recently and officials, fearing grave complications when such war babies decide to get married, are now considering taking a strict census to check on the sex of all babies born during the past few months.

German, Italian Naval Chiefs Meet to Step Up War at Sea

By Joseph W. Grigg, Jr.
United Press Staff Writer

Berlin, Feb. 17.—Germany and Italy have reached a new agreement for "waging a common sea war against England," it was announced tonight as the Nazi high command reported the destruction of vital British shipping in new U-boat and bombing attacks.

German Grand Admiral Erich Raeder and Italian Admiral Arturo Riccardi were revealed by the official DNB agency to have conferred Thursday and Friday at Merano, in the Italian Tyrol, near the Brenner Pass, for "an exchange of opinions in a comradely spirit, resulting in complete agreement for waging a common sea war against England."

(The "operative collaboration" of the Italian and German navies was discussed during the conference by the chiefs of the two Axis fleets, and "complete accord was reached on all problems," an official communique issued in Rome said.)

The high command meanwhile reported that German bombers sank two more British ships near their home ports Sunday and that two German submarines had sunk 15,000 more tons of merchant shipping on the high seas.

Seven British planes were reported shot down over the continental coast and over Malta, in the Mediterranean. The German luftwaffe continued to attack factories, airdromes, troop camps and harbor works in Britain—particularly on the southeast coast—the communique said.

One U-boat commander reported sinking 11,000 tons of shipping and another, who previously had reported 20,000 tons sunk, added a 4,000-ton vessel to his bag.

A direct bomb hit sank a 6,000-ton British freighter off Peterhead, the communique said, a small merchantman was sunk west of Ireland and a large freighter was damaged by a direct bomb hit off Great Yarmouth.

German air attacks were said to have destroyed a number of ground planes in southeastern England, and to have struck with bombs the boiler and assembly rooms of a factory.

British troop concentrations in the Bengasi sector of North Africa were said to have been successfully attacked Sunday night by German aircraft, which set fire to trucks, camps and fuel dumps.

Two British planes were reported shot down in air battles over the Channel coast and another was reported downed by antiaircraft fire from a German patrol boat off Flanders.

At noon Monday the official D.N.B. news agency said, a single Bristol Blenheim bomber attempted to fly over the northwest German coast, but was shot down by ground batteries.

Nazi Who Foresaw French Armistice 20 Years Ago Dies

Munich, Feb. 17 (AP).—Ambassador Hermann Kriebel, 65, who in June, 1919, bade farewell to the Allied armistice commission with the words "See you again in 20 years," died today.

Kriebel, chief of the personnel department of the German foreign office, was a member of the German general staff in the World War and served on the German armistice commission. He marched at Adolf Hitler's side in the beer cellar putsch in 1923 and served a jail term with Hitler.

The implication of Kriebel's farewell of 1919 was fulfilled at Compiegne, France, last June 22 when France made her armistice with Germany, but Kriebel was not a member of the subsequent armistice commission.

Britain Stages Gas Maneuver As Warning

By the Associated Press

Brighton, England, Feb. 17.—The first of a series of practice gas attacks to be staged throughout Britain was held here today and maskless persons tearfully regretted their unpreparedness.

Shoppers scurried to safety or calmly donned their respirators—if they had them—as a mild tear gas swirled from cylinders planted in downtown streets and quickly enveloped a three-quarter-mile square area. The "attack" lasted half an hour.

It was as close to the real thing as civil defense authorities could contrive. Brighton, a seaside resort of 147,000, lies 50 miles due south of London, facing the "invasion coast" of German-occupied France.

Policemen, bus drivers, waitresses, clerks and others who had to remain at their posts went about in masks until the "all clear" sounded.

For two days loudspeakers and posters had given advance warning of the "exercise," but there had been no indication that gas actually would be used.

The mayor said the test was a "great success." An air raid precautions official reported that tear gas had been used "to impress the public that they need to carry gas masks. If they do get the real thing, they won't have advance warning."

Prime Minister Churchill's recent warnings that the Germans may use gas (the Germans say they won't if the British don't) have renewed interest in the subject.

In London, Sir Philip Game, head of police, ordered every policeman to take a refresher gas course and wear his respirator 20 minutes daily while on duty.

Japanese Ask End to All War

situation would indeed be greatly mitigated.

"We are utterly unable to see any good purpose to be served by prolonging of war, whatever the motive may be. The present situation demands statesmanship of a high order. Such statesmanship, we trust, will not be wanting in the British empire and elsewhere.

"In conclusion we want to make it clear that Japan is fully prepared to act as mediator and to take whatever action is calculated to recover normal conditions, not only in greater East Asia, but anywhere in the world. Leading powers have a great responsibility of restoring world peace and civilization. Such a responsibility can only be fulfilled by a wise . . . statesmanship willing to listen to other claims and contentions."

This statement, Ishii emphasized, was an expression of Japan's peace-mindedness, and did not itself represent a Japanese initiative toward general peace negotiations. But Japan was ready, he added, to undertke such an initiative if and when it should be asked to do so.

Questioned regarding the nature of the alarming reports referring to the Pacific, Ishii specifically mentioned the projected American fortification of Samoa, as well as the laying of mines by Britain off Singapore.

As one indication of Japan's peace-mindedness, Ishii pointed to the Japanese mediation in the Thai-French Indo-China conflict, and the peace talks now under way in Tokyo "and progressing pretty smoothly."

Greek Bayonets Seize New Peaks, 300 Prisoners

Athens, Feb. 17 (AP).—In hand-to-hand combat backed by deadly artillery fire, Greek forces on the central Albanian front tonight reported the capture of new peaks while inflicting heavy losses on their Italian foes and taking 300 prisoners.

The Greek military spokesman praised the courage of the Italians but said their defense and counter-attacks were alike unsuccessful.

"The offensive action by our troops in the central sector has resulted in the capture of enemy positions 1,700 meters (more than a mile high)," the spokesman said, "and complete occupation of the whole region taken recently."

65 Billion Debt Limit Bill Goes to Roosevelt

Congress sent to President Roosevelt yesterday the bill increasing the Federal debt limit to $85,000,000,000 and removing Federal tax exemptions from future issues of Government securities.

Final action came when the House approved minor Senate amendments.

MR. AND MRS. JAMES WALKER

By the United Press

Key West, Fla., Feb. 17.—Betty Compton, who married James J. Walker five months after he resigned as New York's Mayor, filed suit for divorce in circuit court late today.

Miss Compton, the former musical comedy star, charged "extreme cruelty." She said life with Walker had damaged her health and had become unendurable. His desire to continue his public career and her wish for a quiet home life finally resulted in separation, she said.

Miss Compton was reported on a fishing trip in the Florida Keys near here when her attorney, M. H. Rosenhouse, filed the divorce petition. Florence Sawyer, assistant to the circuit court clerk, opened the office after the regular closing hour to receive the papers from the attorney, whose bus from Miami was late.

"Mr. and Mrs. Walker are both sensible people and irrespective of the divorce proceedings, realize that the welfare, upbringing and happiness of the two children is of paramount importance," Rosenhouse said.

"The agreement dated December 3, 1940, regarding the care, custody, control and maintenance of the children insures this." The children are Mary Ann, 5, and James John, jr., 4. They were adopted by the Walkers.

"Mr. and Mrs. Walker have amicably adjusted their property rights," the attorney said. "The contents and extent of the separation agreement is of a private nature between the parties and I am not at liberty to divulge same."

Miss Compton, an English show girl, met Walker, when he was the playboy mayor, at a Greenwich Village party in the late 20's. Tammany leaders frowned on the romance that followed. Walker resigned in November, 1932, during the Seabury investigation of his office. Miss Compton and her mother accompanied him to Europe. They were married at Cannes five months later.

The divorce had been rumored since early December, a few weeks after Mrs. Walker came to Florida. She denied the reports and during the Christmas holidays Walker came to Miami.

Walker stayed at the Miami Biltmore Hotel. Mrs. Walker and the children were at her mother's Coral Gables home. Walker explained there was not enough room for him at his mother-in-law's home. Mr. and Mrs. Walker posed for photographers, denying any rift in their domestic life.

New Darlan Visit to Paris Stirs Laval Rumors in Vichy

By G. H. Archambault.

Copyright by New York Times

Vichy, Feb. 17.—Admiral Darlan is on his way to Paris again and tonight Vichy is teeming with rumors. The name of Pierre Laval is coupled with most of them.

In every hotel lobby people are figuring out what posts Laval may or may not be willing to accept as a condition for his return.

Incidentally, the guessing is not rendered easier by the report, apparently well authenticated, that the resignation of M. Rene Belin as secretary of state for production and labor, is the next to be accepted, and that this post also will be added to the long list of those assumed by Admiral Darlan.

Discounting gossip, the situation would seem to be this: If the expected measure of "collaboration" is obtainable without Laval, would the German authority be satisfied or would it insist on his presence in the Vichy government? Doubtless everything turns on this question.

A second one may be asked as a corrollary: If an improvement in relations between victor and vanquished depends on the return of Laval to Vichy why as a patriotic Frenchman did he not accept the position of minister of state offered him by Marshal Petain some weeks ago?

Admiral Darlan is expected to be away several days. Possibly an answer to these queries may be forthcoming on his return.

House Unit Asks Base at Samoa

process of construction a string of aviation and light force bases extending from Kodiak and Unalaska southward through Midway, Oahu, Johnston Island and Palmyra Island, together with a Pan-American Airways base at Canton Island.

"The proposed development of aircraft facilities at Samoa will complete this defensive system and thereby permit the establishment of air patrols to safeguard our lines of communication throughout the entire area.

"Samoa also will provide a base for the operation of surface craft in protection of our line of communications and a safe refuge for merchant vessels operating in this area should raiders become active in the South Pacific."

The committee said that at present there are no naval or air facilities at Samoa, but that it is "assuming increasing importance in the strategy of the Pacific."

"It is a sort of South Pacific crossroads lying close to the direct route from Hawaii to New Zealand and Australia and from Panama to Australia," the report declared, in pointing out that Samoa is 2,300 miles from Hawaii and 1,500 miles from Auckland, New Zealand.

The work contemplated at Guam, it was said, is principally to improve the harbor for seaplane operations. Military aspects of the program are mainly in making communication centers and living quarters of naval personnel secure against aerial bombs, the committee declared. Opponents noted, however, that it contemplated virtually the same work previously refused by the House.

Stressing the need for such additional air facilities, it was declared that Guam is rapidly becoming an important commercial air terminal, and that if and when the Philippines are freed, it will be America's "Grand Central station" for Far Eastern air operations.

The report also disclosed that the Navy asked $35,000,000 to strengthen Puerto Rican base facilities, because of the "urgent need" for an "ample" anchorage for the entire United States fleet in the Caribbean.

OPM Heads Called to House Labor Inquiry

By Cecil Dickson

International News Staff Writer

William S. Knudsen and Sidney Hillman yesterday were summoned for questioning tomorrow by the House Judiciary Committee on delay being caused in the arms program by strikes and union jurisdictional fights.

Chairman Sumners (Democrat), of Texas, announced that Knudsen and Hillman, of the Office of Production Management, had been called after Assistant Attorney General Thurman W. Arnold said "constant labor wars might create a serious situation" and interfere with the "public defense program."

Arnold cited many cases of labor union wars in which battles between C. I. O. and A. F. L. unions, particularly in the food and building industries had caused the lower income groups to suffer from higher costs.

Although Arnold declined to make any recommendation for corrective legislation, he said the unions' jurisdiction fights were "putting the squeeze" on small independent businessmen and are creating "bottlenecks" of high "direct taxes" on consumers.

Arnold apparently surprised the committee when he recalled that President Roosevelt had appointed Dan Tracy, head of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers as Assistant Secretary of Labor after Tracy had been indicted in 1939 in San Francisco in an antitrust labor case instituted by the Justice Department. He said, after the hearing, that "it was a bit embarrassing" and that Tracy probably would go to trial in March.

Tracy, at his office later, said his name was included among those indicted because "I signed an agreement, as president of the union which was involved in the case." He pointed out that he was not under bond.

Arnold was questioned in connection with legislation pending before the committee to outlaw strikes on defense projects and proposals to restrict the amount of initiation fees and dues unions impose on workers.

Explaining the Justice Department did not consider it a part of its duty to look into high dues which unions may charge new workers on defense projects, Arnold said that was an intrastate not an interstate matter. He said, however, the department had received hundreds of complaints.

He said the glaziers' union charged members $1,500 to belong to it and cited that when there were not enough glaziers available for putting in 300,000 window panes in an Army cantonment the contractor had to get permission for nonunion workers to install the glass. The union took $2 a day off their wages.

He cited cases in which the teamsters and longshoremen's union "gang up" with some other union to drive out small unions and win control over an industry.

"Small unions don't have a chance now," he said.

Hoover Favors Wire-Tapping Bill For Some Offenses

J. Edgar Hoover said yesterday that he favored a bill to legalize wire tapping by Federal agents provided use of that method of investigation was limited to cases involving such major crimes as espionage, sabotage, kidnaping and extortion.

The chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation sent a statement to a House Judiciary Subcommittee declaring that he always had been opposed to "uncontrolled and unrestrained wire tapping by law enforcement officers." But he added that "I also feel that world developments of the past year or more, and the changed conditions resulting therefrom, have increased the gravity from the standpoint of national safety of such offenses as espionage and sabotage."

Cargo Ships To Be Shielded Against Mines

Equipping of American merchant ships with protective devices against war hazards, particularly magnetic mines, is under official study, it was learned yesterday. The knowledge led to speculation on possibility of future use of such vessels in danger zones.

Only the subject of protection for the ships was discussed yesterday at a conference here between shippers and Maritime Commission officials.

Chief problem, it was said, was adding generating capacity to vessels in the "de-Gaussing" or demagnetizing of their hulls so as to present a more uncertain target for the mines.

American vessels under construction in the 200-ship emergency fleet and in the regular Maritime Commission programs will be equipped with this protection.

Meanwhile, an eleventh hour effort to avoid requisitioning of American merchant ships or the imposition of formal priorities will be sought by voluntary cooperation with the shipping industry, it was learned after yesterday's conference.

Although cooperating committees will be set up in the commission and the industry to serve as "clearing houses" for defense shipping orders and to put "voluntary priorities" into effect, both parties were said to doubt that this would provide a complete solution.

If not, it was believed, formation of the committees would be useful in providing machinery to carry out a cargo priorities program under legislative sanction.

The committee of the shipping industry, a commission spokesman said, will also seek to work out pooling arrangements in order to use all available tonnage to transport vital defense commodities.

A high commission official admitted after the conference that the present shortage of bottoms "is bad, and it's going to be worse." Purpose of the cooperating committee, he indicated, is to try to make American vesels load cargoes which the Army, Navy and Office of Production Management hold to be most vital, rather than other less essential commodities.

Membership of the shipping committee will be chosen by the American Merchant Marine Institute and the shipping companies, whose representatives met with Commission Chairman Admiral Emory S. Land. The commission committee, it was said, will be headed by Huntington Morse and Gerald H. Helmbold, of the commission staff.

All orders relating to rerouting of vessels and preference rating of cargos will funnel through these groups, the conference agreed.

President Sets Up Machinery To Expedite Aid to Britain

By Harold B. Hinton.

Copyright by New York Times

President Roosevelt began yesterday to set up administrative machinery for the swiftest and most efficacious aid possible to Great Britain as soon as the lease-lend bill is enacted. His whole attention has been devoted practically exclusively to that particular problem ever since Harry Hopkins reached the White House from London late Sunday.

According to White House attaches, the President and Hopkins talked until 2 a. m. yesterday morning, presumably canvassing the entire range of impressions Mr. Roosevelt's personal emissary gained during his month's stay in Great Britain. Hopkins is staying at the White House, so the two men separated for only a few hours' sleep before continuing their discussions at breakfast in the President's study yesterday.

After breakfast, the President received Vice President Wallace, Senator Barkley, of Kentucky, the Majority Leader; Speaker Rayburn and Representative McCormack, of Massachusetts, Democratic floor leader, for the usual Monday morning legislative conference. Mr. Roosevelt told his Capitol advisers the gist of what Hopkins had reported to him, and received from them the assurance that the lease-lend bill would probably reach his desk for signature late next week, unchanged substantially from the form in which it was reported to the Senate by the Foreign Relations Committee.

Armed with these assurances, the President summoned a conference composed of Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, Secretary of War Stimson, Secretary of the Navy Knox, Secretary of Agriculture Wickard and Harold D. Smith, director of the budget. Secretary of State Hull was to have attended the meeting, but was confined by a cold to his apartment.

The conference, according to Stephen T. Early, White House secretary, was the first of a series that will be held while the lease-lend bill is on the last stages of its legislative career. Their object will be the determination of administrative questions so that procedure will be agreed upon by the time President Roosevelt affixes his signature to the bill.

"I think you might call this conference one of a series that is going on and will continue," Early said, "in the way of making arrangements in advance for the administration of the lease-lend bill when it passes. In other words, they are taking time by the forelock and, when the bill passes, many of the administrative requirements will be set and ready to be put into operation."

The inclusion of Secretary Wickard as one of the conferees prompted questions from some of the newspapermen, who wanted to know if his advice was to be asked on a possible program for feeding Great Britain if the the war should continue to a point where British and empire supplies should prove insufficient. President Roosevelt received a petition Sunday from a group of citizens asking that this possibility be explored.

"I think this is more in line with the domestic agricultural program," Early said, "and has nothing whatever to do with those actions yesterday."

When he left the conference yesterday, Wickard was uncommunicative, as were the other participants. Asked about the likelihood of a food program for Great Britain, he answered:

"I think food is very necessary for British defense, don't you? I think we need ships more than anything else to haul the food."

Smith had no comment to make on his part in the conversations, other than the remark that "we have to have money to administer the act."

Hopkins attended the conference with the Cabinet officers although he was not present when the legislative leaders talked with the President. Barkley said afterwards that there "was nothing very special" in Mr. Roosevelt's report to the legislators of what information Hopkins had brought back with him.

Morgenthau and Hopkins stayed on to lunch with the President.

First U. S. Envoy To New Zealand To Be Named Soon

By the Associated Press

Plans to establish direct diplomatic contact with the self-governing British dominion of New Zealand have reached a point, it was learned yesterday, where the name of the first American minister to Wellington is under consideration.

In view of the increasing importance of New Zealand in the South Pacific it is understood that President Roosevelt, in selecting his first minister to that country, will pick an outstanding diplomat from the career service who is fully conversant with Far Eastern problems.

Among the career men whose records place them in that category are Wills R. Peck, counselor of Embassy at Chungking; Frank P. Lockhart, counsel-general at Shanghai; Eugene Dooman, counselor of Embassy at Tokio, and Maxwell Hamilton, chief of the State Department's division of Far Eastern affairs.

OPM Aides See Zinc Officials On Shortage

A shortage in zinc, which recently threatened to close the factory of an important supplier of cartridge brass, led to action by the Office of Production Management, whose representatives met with zinc producers yesterday in New York City.

OPM officials declared that, although the zinc situation was tight, they hoped by the conference to obtain enough zinc for immediate defense needs by voluntary cooperation and agreement with the suppliers.

Reports persisted, however, that the present method of "knocking each problem on the head as it arises" might have to give way to a more general system of priorities. No priorities, as such, have been formally imposed on metals, although makers of aluminum and magnesium have been directed to supply only defense needs.

The acuteness of the zinc shortage and its wider civilian use may make it the first metal to be subjected to preference ratings, it was reported.

OPM officials explained that while the ore supply is adequate and the smelting capacity of this country is sufficient for peacetime needs, the increased demands of the defense program and the requirements of Great Britain have created a tight situation.

British needs, they added, were formerly met from smelters in Belgium and northern France, now in German hands.

Extensions of present domestic smelting capacity, they said, may ease the shortage as they go into production later this year, and it is hoped that new smelters may be in operation in 1942.

Bill Seeks Repeal Of Money Powers

A new Republican drive to repeal President Roosevelt's power to devalue the dollar, issue $3,000,000,000 in "greenbacks" and purchase foreign silver was opened in the House yesterday by Representative Daniel A. Reed, of New York.

The Administration successfully opposed a similar measure at the last session of Congress, and is expected to fight this one. New Dealers contend that the President needs this authority to cope with shifting international developments.

German Aims In Balkans Little Clearer

By C. L. Sulzberger
Copyright by New York Times

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Feb. 17.—German plans for completing the occupation of southeastern Europe without military opposition from the lands involved appear to be somewhat more clear this evening, but just how they will work out is still problematic.

Chief among the hopes of Berlin are apparent efforts to secure Yugoslav and Turkish neutrality when the Wehrmachet marches into Bulgaria, and, if possible, to insure the nonactivity of the armies of these countries if Britain attacks the infiltrating Nazi forces.

Reports of the German plan to readjust the Yugoslav frontiers and give certain guarantees to this country persist, but there is not yet any official confirmation. Nevertheless, it is said general staff officers met last evening to discuss the suggestion mentioned in yesterday's dispatch that Yugoslavia make territorial gifts to Hungary and Bulgaria in exchange for compensating gains from Greece and Albania.

According to today's information, this country will be asked to return to Hungary certain sections of the Voivodina Province acquired after the last war by the Serbian, Croat and Slovene Triune Kingdom, including portions of land around Subotica and Sombor.

Bulgaria Would Gain

Yugoslavia would also be requested, it is reported, to give to Bulgaria strips of the western frontier around Tsaribrod and Bosilgrad and a small piece of the Macedonian Province of South Serbia. In exchange, Yugoslavia would receive—if deliverable by Germany—a piece of Albania north of the Drin River, including Scutari and a corridor to Salonika of a few kilometers in width.

Yugoslavia would be required to guarantee its strict neutrality in case Germany enters Bulgaria and in case Britain lands a force in Greece to march against the Germans. No mention is made, according to these reports, of Yugoslav signature of the so-called tripartite accord or of permission to the Nazi army to traverse this land.

There seems to be a growing feeling of hopelessness here among Serbian circles close to the Government. They tend to blame the Turks for not coming to specific terms for a mutual defense arrangement with Yugoslavia. Some people still believe, however, that Yugoslavia is determined not to accept any fallacious Nazi plan and will strive hard not only to maintain its present frontiers, but to defend itself if pressure is exerted to change them. There is a widespread conviction here that Germany will eventually lose the war.

One thing must be pointed out and that is, that the Yugoslav army is not mobilizing nor apparently preparing in any way for an extraordinary crisis, which leads certain British informants to adopt an attitude of nervousness. Nevertheless, the Army has about 500,000 men under arms. What is more, it is known that the army is almost wholly pro-British in spirit and is still ready to resist if the Nazis send any flat ultimatum demanding permission to pass troops across the frontier.

Pact Viewed With Skepticism

The Turkish-Bulgarian agreement is viewed with much skepticism and distrust by pro-Ally circles here.

Allied circles believe the formula adopted at Ankara indicates a way for both countries to render their own armies inactive in case of trouble between Britain and Germany in the Balkans. However, the declaration that Ankara and Sofia will both sustain themselves against aggression is subject to any interpretation.

Meanwhile, the Germans are circulating rumors which could be true that Premier Dragisha Cvetkovitch or Foreign Minister Alexander Cincar-Markovitch may soon revisit the Reich.

U. S. Veterans Of Spain Plead For Refugee Ship

Three young men and a college professor, Americans who fought in the trenches of loyalist Spain, yesterday sought the aid of the British Embassy in rescuing their companions-in-arms from French concentration camps.

Representing the American Rescue Ship Mission, which has chartered the S. S. Lovcen to transport 450 Spanish refugees to Mexico, the four veterans urged British officials to rescind their denial of a sailing warrant to the Lovcen.

First Secretary A. K. Helm said after the conference that the sailing warrant was "a matter between the British government and the ship owner."

The delegation that called at the Embassy was led by 25-year-old Milton Wolff, a New York art student, who enlisted as a private in the International Brigade in February, 1937, and ended up 21 months later as a major in command of the Abraham Lincoln Battalion.

The college professor was David McKelvy White, 39, who left his post as an English instructor at Brooklyn College in March, 1937, and volunteered to fight in Spain.

The others were Fred Keller, 25, a Boonton, N. J., elevator operator and Golden Gloves runner-up, who became political commander of the Lincoln Battalion, and Daniel Grodin, 30, a New York garment worker, who fought in Spain for 18 months and was wounded seriously in an attack on Fuentes De Ebro.

London Gets Heavy Night Raid As Clouds Shield Attackers

By James MacDonald.
Copyright by New York Times

London (Tuesday), Feb. 18.—Taking advantage of somewhat cloudy weather over the Straits of Dover last night, German planes sneaked over at high altitudes, coursed to London and gave the antiaircraft gunners the busiest evening they have had in some time.

The gunfire began a moment or two after the alarms went up, and went on almost incessantly to such a degree that sometimes it drowned out the noise of falling bombs. Most of the bombs that came down were incendiaries, but it was reported some high explosives were dropped.

Hundreds of fire bombs fell on a large area of one London district and they were followed by scores of flares, illuminating the ground as brilliantly as New York's Times Square at the theater hour.

Incendiaries started fires in some places but most of them were quickly extinguished. For example, some fire bombs burst near a school where members of the home guard were drilling. Calling off their training on what to do in the event of an attempted invasion by the Germans or how to act if the Nazis try to gas this country, the home guardsmen rushed out of the school building, shoveled dirt on the incendiaries, put out the flames and then resumed their drills.

In another neighborhood, fire watchers flung sand on the incendiary bombs and extinguished their flames before the fire engines arrived at the scene.

An hour or two after London's air raid alarm went up the sirens sounded "raiders passed."

During the daylight yesterday German planes made a brief visit to the capital ,dropping one or two bombs but, seemingly, concentrating their attention on making general observations.

During the raids after nightfall yesterday when German planes were heard hovering over open districts in counties near London, a German bomber was brought down in flames on an open field. As the machine plummeted to earth all of its crew, except one, bailed out safely and were made prisoners, but the other died in the blazing wreckage when the plane struck the earth.

Earlier in the day Royal Air Force fighters brought down a Nazi plane into the sea off the Norfolk coast after it had made a bombing and machine-gun attack on a certain town without hurting anyone or causing any casualties.

British Fly Over Poland

London, Feb. 17.—In the war's longest cross-continent flight, R. A. F. planes were reported to have made a 2,000-mile round trip to shower propaganda pamphlets over two German-occupied areas of western Poland.

It was pointed out significantly today that R. A. F. bombing attacks on Germany proper were preceded by such "raids." Nazi-held Katowice and Cracow were objectives of this leaflet expedition Saturday night. The government declined to reveal the contents of the leaflets.

The Air Ministry said British daylight raiders yesterday pummeled the Dutch and Belgian coasts from Hellevoetsluis, 17 miles south of Rotterdam, to Zeebrugee. Middelburg, 47 miles southwest of Rotterdam, and Den Helder, 41 miles north of Amsterdam, were among the targets.

Shipping off the Dutch coast was attacked by planes of the bomber command. At Hellevoetsluis, returning pilots said, a quay and a vessel moored alongside were hit.

The Sunday attacks were made before a southwesterly gale swept the Strait of Dover, halting further operations last night.

In describing the propaganda flight to Poland, British sources said it greatly exceeded the 1,200-mile trips made by the R. A. F. to bomb targets in Italy. The only previous war flight to Polish territory was one to the former free city of Danzig.

clared after the signing:

"Small things can occasionally bring about great events and cause much good. The modest document we have just signed can perhaps prevent complications in the Balkans."

Reliable quarters said the accord meant Germany would stay clear of Turkey, and that a major obstacle to any German march through Bulgaria toward Greece had been removed.

Russia was believed to have had a hand in putting pressure on Turkey to keep her from becoming involved with Germany.

Today's agreement possibly eliminated one contractual engagement on Turkey's part which was contained in the pact of Balkan understanding signed February 9, 1934, by Rumania, Greece, Turkey and Yugoslavia.

That pact provided that if Greece, for example, were attacked "by a non-Balkan power, and that if a Balkan state joined in the aggression," then Turkey would have to march to Greece's aid.

But diplomatic sources point out Bulgaria now has made it clear she is not planning to join any German move against Greece, so under the terms of the pact Turkey would not be obliged to aid Greece.

A collective nonaggression pact was signed by Bulgaria, Turkey, Rumania, Greece and Yugoslavia July 31, 1938. But today's two-sided restatement was interpreted gleefully in Axis quarters as proof that Turkey, despite her status as a nonbelligerent ally of the British, would stand aloof from Greece's troubles.

A tangle of diplomatic maneuvering lay behind the accord.

It was understood that in return for Germany's promise to leave Turkey alone and keep away from the Dardanelles, Russia put pressure on the Turkish government with implication that Russia would be forced to seek return of the "lost" provinces of Kars and Ardahan from Turkey should the Turks become embroiled with Germany over passage of Nazi troops through Bulgaria.

In the eyes of most diplomatic observers the platitudes of the Bulgarian-Turkish accord seemed to have sealed the fate of Greece and to have squeezed Britain out of her last small foothold in southeastern Europe.

The kingpin of this latest victory for Axis diplomacy is understood to be Franz von Papen, ace Nazi diplomatist. It was said that he played a big part in bringing the Turks and the Bulgars together. The negotiations, culminated by the accord, have been going on for weeks.

While the British were trying to tie Turkey ever closer in their alliance—which was based on pledges of mutual assistance against any "aggression" leading to war in the eastern Mediterranean—Von Papen was at work behind the scenes in Ankara and Sofia.

Von Papen, who was Germany's preanschluss Ambassador to Austria, now is Ambassador to Turkey.

While British staff officers from Egypt were conferring recently with Turkish commanders, Turkish, Bulgarian and—seemingly—German diplomats were working along another line. The Turkish press in that time was saying on occasion that Turkey would have to move against Bulgaria if the Germans marched through.

The accord came close on the heels of a Britsih warning to Bulgaria that she would become subject to attack if her soil were used as a base of German operations against Greece.

Sources close to the Hungarian government said the pact "means Turkey will remain neutral and no military operation on a great scale will be necessary."

Yugoslav official quarters declared the pact explains the haste of Premier Dragisa Cvetkovic's response to Adolf Hitler's summons to Berchtesgaden last week.

These quarters declared Cvetkovic and his Foreign Minister Cincar-Markovic knew what was coming and realized that Yugoslavian resistance to Nazi demands would be vain since the remainder of the Balkans soon would fall to the grasp of the Axis.

One thing puzzling diplomatic observers tonight was the probable price Russia extracted from Hitler for services in bringing Turkey to heel. There were unsubstantiated reports that Hitler gave Joseph Stalin the go-ahead signal in Finland, with the Russian campaign to finish off the remainder of that little republic to begin when spring weather permits.

Rumania's province of Moldavia also figured as a possible payment to Russia.

Pact With Hungary Likely

Sofia, Feb. 17 (INS).—Hungarian Education Minister Dr. B. Homan arrived in Sofia tonight for what was announced as a "state visit of several days" in the Bulgarian capital.

He was accompanied by a large retinue of experts and it was understood a Bulgarian-Hungarian cultural pact would be concluded during Dr. Homan's sojourn in Sofia.

Turco-Bulgarian Pact

By the Associated Press

Sofia, Bulgaria, Feb. 17.—The text of the Turkish-Bulgarian accord as issued here tonight:

The Turkish and Bulgarian governments, having noted the fortunate results obtained by exchanges of views to which they often have resorted, herewith define their foreign policies in the light of their mutual interests and will and their common aim of maintaining intact the confidence and friendship between the two countries.

Faithful to their pact of friendship, pledging inviolate peace and perpetual friendship between the Turkish republic and the kingdom of Bulgaria, desirous of continuing intimately this confident policy which has served to assure peace in most difficult moments by the mutual respect of their security, and having decided to undertake a new exchange of views in the light of events, they have agreed on the following statement without prejudice to their contracted engagements with other countries:

1. Turkey and Bulgaria consider as the unchangeable foundation of their foreign policies abstinence from all aggression.

2. The governments, animated by the most friendly intentions toward each other, have decided to maintain and further develop mutual confidence in their relations.

3. The two governments declare themselves ready to seek proper means of giving maximum scope to commercial exchanges between the two countries, compatible with their economic structures.

4. The two governments alike hope that the press of the two countries will be inspired in all their writings by friendship and mutual confidence, restatement of which is the object of the present declaration.

Britain Begins Spy Hunt to Cut Ship Losses

By Robert E. Bunnelle
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, Feb. 17.—Alarmed over ship losses described as apparently due to information leaks, Britain is launching a new campaign to ferret out spies and still tongues which drop tips to Axis agents.

"It is hard to pin things like this down," one source commented, "and it is inadvisable to cite specific cases, but too many times the bombing and submarining of merchant ships, warships or convoys have occurred under circumstances that looked as if somebody had found out something about ship movements that they shouldn't have known."

He declined to estimate the proportion of the average of 62,000 tons weekly in merchant shipping losses believed due to tips by Axis agents, asserting:

"When a newly arrived ship is bombed in harbor or when merchant ships with a weak convoy, or none at all, are caught out it may be due to aerial reconnaissance, to an agent's tip, or to luck, or all three. We want to eliminate agents' tips."

One favorite hunting ground for spies is said to be in compartments of trains operating out of port towns. An agent sidles into one where he sees a sailor on leave and listens in on the conversation, in which the sailor may tell the name of his ship, where she has been, what cargo she carried and how long his leave is for, indicating when his ship will sail again.

Beside the trains, it was said, the agents haunt the dockside saloons, amusement centers, barber shops, lobbies where sailors on leave meet their friends and in places where there are telephone booths.

British say spies are known to use many channels to get information out of the country. The most obvious of these are short wave radios similar to those captured from three agents, the British executed last December.

Another method is heliograph or flashlight signals from isolated coastal districts to German planes or E-boats (torpedo boats). A third method is by passengers or crew members on ships bound for neutral ports.

The ministry of information is sponsoring a series of motion pictures showing how spies pick up information and pass it on.

More than 2,000 posters have been displayed on the docks warning against careless talk and the railways have posted 570,000 notices in compartments.

Anti-gossip posters in increasing numbers are displayed in saloons and other places and sailors are warned carefully before they go on leave.

U. S. Banks Take Precautionary Step in China

Shanghai, Feb. 17 (AP).—The local branches of Chase National Bank and National City Bank of New York today notified their clients possessing checking accounts in United States currency that, effective March 1, these accounts will be hanged into savings accounts.

Shanghai officials of the Chase bank said the action was precautionary in view of the unsettled conditions, it being easier to keep up-to-date records of savings accounts than checking accounts.

New York banking sources said the effect of the shift of deposits out of checking into savings accounts would be to give the banks greater control over the funds. Savings deposits, it was pointed out, are subject to time limitations on withdrawals and pass books must be presented for transactions against savings accounts.

Raider Sailed 4 Hours With Convoy Before Shooting

Funchal, Madeira (Tuesday), Feb. 18 (U.P.).—Survivors reaching here today charged that a German sea raider flying a British flag steamed along with a British Atlantic convoy for four hours one night last week and then suddenly opened fire with all its guns on the unsuspecting ships.

These survivors said they believed 6 of the 18 ships in the convoy, along with 200 missing crew members and 5 captains, were sunk by the raider. The whereabouts of six other ships are known. The remaining six vessels of the convoy anchored in Funchal Bay Saturday night.

Copyright by New York Times

Cairo, Feb. 17.—While British troops counted guns and other war materials captured at Chisimaio, on the southern coast of Italian Somaliland, advanced units continued to force the Italians to retreat northward along the Juba River.

At the same time the South African air force launched a heavy dive-bombing attack on Italian posts and barracks around the east bank of the river, their direct hits setting many fires.

Sporadic and sometimes intense fighting continued yesterday around Cheren, in northern Eritrea, while the Royal Air Force again bombed Italian positions and shot down an Italian warplane at Gura and others near Cheren itself. British raids heavily damaged workshops, hangars and buildings at Mai Adaga, photographs verifying direct hits on several hangars and the demolition of several buildings.

The Australian air force intercepted and shot down a German bomber near Bengasi, Libya, as a flight of Nazi machines attempted to repeat raids on the Libyan coast. The plane's crew of four was rescued from the sea.

Meanwhile off the Tunisian coast a fleet air patrol bombed and sank an Italian merchantman of 7,000 tons.

R. A. F. bombers early yesterday raided Comiso, Catania, Gela, Brindisi and other objectives in Sicily and southern Italy, firing buildings and grounded aircraft.

Last-Ditch Fight at Oasis

Rome, Feb. 17 (AP).—In a determined last-ditch fight, the Italian garrison at Giarabub Oasis, isolated in the heart of the Libyan Desert, was reported still fighting off British tank units, bombing planes and artillery.

The war bulletin of the Italian high command today said the defenders of Giarabub had smashed "violent" British attacks.

The Italians were fighting from concrete redoubts, squatting in the shadow of the Libyan Desert mecca of the Mohammedan Senussi sect.

The Giarabub garrison, under Maj. Castagna, was cut off when Bardia fell, and has been dependent on transport planes from Tripoli for food and ammunition.

Military observers pointed out that British control of eastern Libya made the positions of Giarabub—150 miles inland, near the Egyptian-Libyan border—almost hopeless.

The value of the defense seemed to be largely moral.

Copyright by New York Times

Paris, Feb. 12 (Delayed; via Berlin).—Will French war babies of 1940 choose to be men or women when they come of age in 1960? This is a question medical experts in charge of the birth rate control in the Paris region and other big cities as well as villages and hamlets in the occupied zone are anxiously asking themselves.

According to medical reports a strange psychosis seems to have spread among French fathers who lately have been making false birth declarations at the various city halls, deliberately changing the sex of their newlyborn by declaring boys as girls.

Several such cases are said to have been registered in the Paris region recently and officials, fearing grave complications when such war babies decide to get married, are now considering taking a strict census to check on the sex of all babies born during the past few months.

German, Italian Naval Chiefs Meet to Step Up War at Sea

By Joseph W. Grigg, Jr.
United Press Staff Writer

Berlin, Feb. 17.—Germany and Italy have reached a new agreement for "waging a common sea war against England," it was announced tonight as the Nazi high command reported the destruction of vital British shipping in new U-boat and bombing attacks.

German Grand Admiral Erich Raeder and Italian Admiral Arturo Riccardi were revealed by the official DNB agency to have conferred Thursday and Friday at Merano, in the Italian Tyrol, near the Brenner Pass, for "an exchange of opinions in a comradely spirit, resulting in complete agreement for waging a common sea war against England."

(The "operative collaboration" of the Italian and German navies was discussed during the conference by the chiefs of the two Axis fleets, and "complete accord was reached on all problems," an official communique issued in Rome said.)

The high command meanwhile reported that German bombers sank two more British ships near their home ports Sunday and that two German submarines had sunk 15,000 more tons of merchant shipping on the high seas.

Seven British planes were reported shot down over the continental coast and over Malta, in the Mediterranean. The German luftwaffe continued to attack factories, airdromes, troop camps and harbor works in Britain—particularly on the southeast coast—the communique said.

One U-boat commander reported sinking 11,000 tons of shipping and another, who previously had reported 20,000 tons sunk, added a 4,000-ton vessel to his bag.

A direct bomb hit sank a 6,000-ton British freighter off Peterhead, the communique said, a small merchantman was sunk west of Ireland and a large freighter was damaged by a direct bomb hit off Great Yarmouth.

German air attacks were said to have destroyed a number of ground planes in southeastern England, and to have struck with bombs the boiler and assembly rooms of a factory.

British troop concentrations in the Bengasi sector of North Africa were said to have been successfully attacked Sunday night by German aircraft, which set fire to trucks, camps and fuel dumps.

Two British planes were reported shot down in air battles over the Channel coast and another was reported downed by antiaircraft fire from a German patrol boat off Flanders.

At noon Monday the official D.N.B. news agency said, a single Bristol Blenheim bomber attempted to fly over the northwest German coast, but was shot down by ground batteries.

Nazi Who Foresaw French Armistice 20 Years Ago Dies

Munich, Feb. 17 (AP).—Ambassador Hermann Kriebel, 65, who in June, 1919, bade farewell to the Allied armistice commission with the words "See you again in 20 years," died today.

Kriebel, chief of the personnel department of the German foreign office, was a member of the German general staff in the World War and served on the German armistice commission. He marched at Adolf Hitler's side in the beer cellar putsch in 1923 and served a jail term with Hitler.

The implication of Kriebel's farewell of 1919 was fulfilled at Compiegne, France, last June 22 when France made her armistice with Germany, but Kriebel was not a member of the subsequent armistice commission.

Britain Stages Gas Maneuver As Warning

By the Associated Press

Brighton, England, Feb. 17.—The first of a series of practice gas attacks to be staged throughout Britain was held here today and maskless persons tearfully regretted their unpreparedness.

Shoppers scurried to safety or calmly donned their respirators—if they had them—as a mild tear gas swirled from cylinders planted in downtown streets and quickly enveloped a three-quarter-mile square area. The "attack" lasted half an hour.

It was as close to the real thing as civil defense authorities could contrive. Brighton, a seaside resort of 147,000, lies 50 miles due south of London, facing the "invasion coast" of German-occupied France.

Policemen, bus drivers, waitresses, clerks and others who had to remain at their posts went about in masks until the "all clear" sounded.

For two days loudspeakers and posters had given advance warning of the "exercise," but there had been no indication that gas actually would be used.

The mayor said the test was a "great success." An air raid precautions official reported that tear gas had been used "to impress the public that they need to carry gas masks. If they do get the real thing, they won't have advance warning."

Prime Minister Churchill's recent warnings that the Germans may use gas (the Germans say they won't if the British don't) have renewed interest in the subject.

In London, Sir Philip Game, head of police, ordered every policeman to take a refresher gas course and wear his respirator 20 minutes daily while on duty.

Japanese Ask End to All War

situation would indeed be greatly mitigated.

"We are utterly unable to see any good purpose to be served by prolonging of war, whatever the motive may be. The present situation demands statesmanship of a high order. Such statesmanship, we trust, will not be wanting in the British empire and elsewhere.

"In conclusion we want to make it clear that Japan is fully prepared to act as mediator and to take whatever action is calculated to recover normal conditions, not only in greater East Asia, but anywhere in the world. Leading powers have a great responsibility of restoring world peace and civilization. Such a responsibility can only be fulfilled by a wise . . . statesmanship willing to listen to other claims and contentions."

This statement, Ishii emphasized, was an expression of Japan's peace-mindedness, and did not itself represent a Japanese initiative toward general peace negotiations. But Japan was ready, he added, to undertke such an initiative if and when it should be asked to do so.

Questioned regarding the nature of the alarming reports referring to the Pacific, Ishii specifically mentioned the projected American fortification of Samoa, as well as the laying of mines by Britain off Singapore.

As one indication of Japan's peace-mindedness, Ishii pointed to the Japanese mediation in the Thai-French Indo-China conflict, and the peace talks now under way in Tokyo "and progressing pretty smoothly."

Betty Compton Files Suit To Divorce Jimmy Walker

MR. AND MRS. JAMES WALKER

By the United Press

Key West, Fla., Feb. 17.—Betty Compton, who married James J. Walker five months after he resigned as New York's Mayor, filed suit for divorce in circuit court late today.

Miss Compton, the former musical comedy star, charged "extreme cruelty." She said life with Walker had damaged her health and had become unendurable. His desire to continue his public career and her wish for a quiet home life finally resulted in separation, she said.

Miss Compton was reported on a fishing trip in the Florida Keys near here when her attorney, M. H. Rosenhouse, filed the divorce petition. Florence Sawyer, assistant to the circuit court clerk, opened the office after the regular closing hour to receive the papers from the attorney, whose bus from Miami was late.

"Mr. and Mrs. Walker are both sensible people and irrespective of the divorce proceedings, realize that the welfare, upbringing and happiness of the two children is of paramount importance," Rosenhouse said.

"The agreement dated December 3, 1940, regarding the care, custody, control and maintenance of the children insures this." The children are Mary Ann, 5, and James John, jr., 4. They were adopted by the Walkers.

"Mr. and Mrs. Walker have amicably adjusted their property rights," the attorney said. "The contents and extent of the separation agreement is of a private nature between the parties and I am not at liberty to divulge same."

Miss Compton, an English show girl, met Walker, when he was the playboy mayor, at a Greenwish Village party in the late 20's. Tammany leaders frowned on the romance that followed. Walker resigned in November, 1932, during the Seabury investigation of his office. Miss Compton and her mother accompanied him to Europe. They were married at Cannes five months later.

The divorce had been rumored since early December, a few weeks after Mrs. Walker came to Florida. She denied the reports and during the Christmas holidays Walker came to Miami.

Walker stayed at the Miami Biltmore Hotel. Mrs. Walker and the children were at her mother's Coral Gables home. Walker explained there was not enough room for him at his mother-in-law's home. Mr. and Mrs. Walker posed for photographers, denying any rift in their domestic life.

New Darlan Visit to Paris Stirs Laval Rumors in Vichy

By G. H. Archambault.

Copyright by New York Times

Vichy, Feb. 17.—Admiral Darlan is on his way to Paris again and tonight Vichy is teeming with rumors. The name of Pierre Laval is coupled with most of them.

In every hotel lobby people are figuring out what posts Laval may or may not be willing to accept as a condition for his return.

Incidentally the guessing is not rendered easier by the report, apparently well authenticated, that the resignation of M. Rene Belin as secretary of state for production and labor, is the next to be accepted, and that this post also will be added to the long list of those assumed by Admiral Darlan.

Discounting gossip, the situation would seem to be this: If the expected measure of "collaboration" is obtainable without Laval, would the German authority be satisfied or would it insist on his presence in the Vichy government? Doubtless everything turns on this question.

A second one may be asked as a corrollary: If an improvement in relations between victor and vanquished depends on the return of Laval to Vichy why as a patriotic Frenchman did he not accept the position of minister of state offered him by Marshal Petain some weeks ago?

Admiral Darlan is expected to be away several days. Possibly an answer to these queries may be forthcoming on his return.

Greek Bayonets Seize New Peaks, 300 Prisoners

Athens, Feb. 17 (AP).—In hand-to-hand combat backed by deadly artillery fire, Greek forces on the central Albanian front tonight reported the capture of new peaks while inflicting heavy losses on their Italian foes and taking 300 prisoners.

The Greek military spokesman praised the courage of the Italians but said their defense and counter-attacks were alike unsuccessful.

"The offensive action by our troops in the central sector has resulted in the capture of enemy positions 1,700 meters (more than a mile high)," the spokesman said, "and complete occupation of the whole region taken recently."

65 Billion Debt Limit Bill Goes to Roosevelt

Congress sent to President Roosevelt yesterday the bill increasing the Federal debt limit to $65,000,000,000 and removing Federal tax exemptions from future issues of Government securities.

Final action came when the House approved minor Senate amendments.

process of construction a string of aviation and light force bases extending from Kodiak and Unalaska southward through Midway, Oahu, Johnston Island and Palmyra Island, together with a Pan-American Airways base at Canton Island.

"The proposed development of aircraft facilities at Samoa will complete this defensive system and thereby permit the establishment of air patrols to safeguard our lines of communication throughout the entire area.

"Samoa also will provide a base for the operation of surface craft in protection of our line of communications and a safe refuge for merchant vessels operating in this area should raiders become active in the South Pacific."

The committee said that at present there are no naval or air facilities at Samoa, but that it is "assuming increasing importance in the strategy of the Pacific."

"It is a sort of South Pacific crossroads lying close to the direct route from Hawaii to New Zealand and Australia and from Panama to Australia," the report declared, in pointing out that Samoa is 2,300 miles from Hawaii and 1,500 miles from Auckland, New Zealand.

The work contemplated at Guam, it was said, is principally to improve the harbor for seaplane operations. Military aspects of the program are mainly in making communication centers and living quarters of naval personnel secure against aerial bombs, the committee declared. Opponents noted, however, that it contemplated virtually the same work previously refused by the House.

Stressing the need for such additional air facilities, it was declared that Guam is rapidly becoming an important commercial air terminal, and that if and when the Philippines are freed, it will be America's "Grand Central station" for Far Eastern air operations.

The report also disclosed that the Navy asked $35,000,000 to strengthen Puerto Rican base facilities, because of the "urgent need" for an "ample" anchorage for the entire United States fleet in the Caribbean.

OPM Heads Called to House Labor Inquiry

By Cecil Dickson

International News Staff Writer

William S. Knudsen and Sidney Hillman yesterday were summoned for questioning tomorrow by the House Judiciary Committee on delay being caused in the arms program by strikes and union jurisdictional fights.

Chairman Sumners (Democrat), of Texas, announced that Knudsen and Hillman, of the Office of Production Management, had been called after Assistant Attorney General Thurman W. Arnold said "constant labor wars might create a serious situation" and interfere with the "public defense program."

Arnold cited many cases of labor union wars in which battles between C. I. O. and A. F. L. unions, particularly in the food and building industries had caused the lower income groups to suffer from higher costs.

Although Arnold declined to make any recommendation for corrective legislation, he said the unions' jurisdiction fights were "putting the squeeze" on small independent businessmen and are creating "bottlenecks" of high "direct taxes" on consumers.

Arnold apparently surprised the committee when he recalled that President Roosevelt had appointed Dan Tracy, head of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers as Assistant Secretary of Labor after Tracy had been indicted in 1939 in San Francisco in an antitrust labor case instituted by the Justice Department. He said, after the hearing, that "it was a bit embarrassing" and that Tracy probably would go to trial in March.

Tracy, at his office later, said his name was included among those indicted because "I signed an agreement, as president of the union which was involved in the case." He pointed out that he was not under bond.

Arnold was questioned in connection with legislation pending before the committee to outlaw strikes on defense projects and proposals to restrict the amount of initiation fees and dues unions impose on workers.

Explaining the Justice Department did not consider it a part of its duty to look into high dues which unions may charge new workers on defense projects, Arnold said that was an intrastate not an interstate matter. He said, however, the department had received hundreds of complaints.

He said the glaziers' union charged members $1,500 to belong to it and cited that when there were not enough glaziers available for putting in 300,000 window panes in an Army cantonment the contractor had to get permission for nonunion workers to install the glass. The union took $2 a day off their wages.

He cited cases in which the teamsters and longshoremen's union "gang up" with some other union to drive out small unions and win control over an industry.

"Small unions don't have a chance now," he said.

Hoover Favors Wire-Tapping Bill For Some Offenses

J. Edgar Hoover said yesterday that he favored a bill to legalize wire tapping by Federal agents provided use of that method of investigation was limited to cases involving such major crimes as espionage, sabotage, kidnaping and extortion.

The chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation sent a statement to a House Judiciary Subcommittee declaring that he always had been opposed to "uncontrolled and unrestrained wire tapping by law enforcement officers." But he added that "I also feel that world developments of the past year or more, and the changed conditions resulting therefrom, have increased the gravity from the standpoint of national safety of such offenses as espionage and sabotage."

Cargo Ships To Be Shielded Against Mines

Equipping of American merchant ships with protective devices against war hazards, particularly magnetic mines, is under official study, it was learned yesterday. The knowledge led to speculation on possibility of future use of such vessels in danger zones.

Only the subject of protection for the ships was discussed yesterday at a conference here between shippers and Maritime Commission officials.

Chief problem, it was said, was adding generating capacity to vessels in the "de-Gaussing" or demagnetizing of their hulls so as to present a more uncertain target for the mines.

American vessels under construction in the 200-ship emergency fleet and in the regular Maritime Commission programs will be equipped with this protection.

Meanwhile, an eleventh hour effort to avoid requisitioning of American merchant ships or the imposition of formal priorities will be sought by voluntary cooperation with the shipping industry, it was learned after yesterday's conference.

Although cooperating committees will be set up in the commission and the industry to serve as "clearing houses" for defense shipping orders and to put "voluntary priorities" into effect, both parties were said to doubt that this would provide a complete solution.

If not, it was believed, formation of the committees would be useful in providing machinery to carry out a cargo priorities program under legislative sanction.

The committee of the shipping industry, a commission spokesman said, will also seek to work out pooling arrangements in order to use all available tonnage to transport vital defense commodities.

A high commission official admitted after the conference that the present shortage of bottoms "is bad, and it's going to be worse." Purpose of the cooperating committee, he indicated, is to try to make American vesels load cargoes which the Army, Navy and Office of Production Management hold to be most vital, rather than other less essential commodities.

Membership of the shipping committee will be chosen by the American Merchant Marine Institute and the shipping companies, whose representatives met with Commission Chairman Admiral Emory S. Land. The commission committee, it was said, will be headed by Huntington Morse and Gerald H. Helmbold, of the commission staff.

All orders relating to rerouting of vessels and preference rating of cargos will funnel through these groups, the conference agreed.

President Sets Up Machinery To Expedite Aid to Britain

By Harold B. Hinton.

Copyright by New York Times

President Roosevelt began yesterday to set up administrative machinery for the swiftest and most efficacious aid possible to Great Britain as soon as the lease-lend bill is enacted. His whole attention has been devoted practically exclusively to that particular problem ever since Harry Hopkins reached the White House from London late Sunday.

According to White House attaches, the President and Hopkins talked until 2 a. m. yesterday morning, presumably canvassing the entire range of impressions Mr. Roosevelt's personal emissary gained during his month's stay in Great Britain. Hopkins is staying at the White House, so the two men separated for only a few hours' sleep before continuing their discussions at breakfast in the President's study yesterday.

After breakfast, the President received Vice President Wallace, Senator Barkley, of Kentucky, the Majority Leader; Speaker Rayburn and Representative McCormack, of Massachusetts, Democratic floor leader, for the usual Monday morning legislative conference. Mr. Roosevelt told his Capitol advisers the gist of what Hopkins had reported to him, and received from them the assurance that the lease-lend bill would probably reach his desk for signature late next week, unchanged substantially from the form in which it was reported to the Senate by the Foreign Relations Committee.

Armed with these assurances, the President summoned a conference composed of Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, Secretary of War Stimson, Secretary of the Navy Knox, Secretary of Agriculture Wickard and Harold D. Smith, director of the budget. Secretary of State Hull was to have attended the meeting, but was confined by a cold to his apartment.

The conference, according to Stephen T. Early, White House secretary, was the first of a series that will be held while the lease-lend bill is on the last stages of its legislative career. Their object will be the determination of administrative questions so that procedure will be agreed upon by the time President Roosevelt affixes his signature to the bill.

"I think you might call this conference one of a series that is going on and will continue," Early said, "in the way of making arrangements in advance for the administration of the lease-lend bill when it passes. In other words, they are taking time by the forelock and, when the bill passes, many of the administrative requirements will be set and ready to be put into operation."

The inclusion of Secretary Wickard as one of the conferees prompted questions from some of the newspapermen, who wanted to know if his advice was to be asked on a possible program for feeding Great Britain if the the war should continue to a point where British and empire supplies should prove insufficient. President Roosevelt received a petition Sunday from a group of citizens asking that this possibility be explored.

"I think this is more in line with the domestic agricultural program," Early said, "and has nothing whatever to do with those actions yesterday."

When he left the conference yesterday, Wickard was uncommunicative, as were the other participants. Asked about the likelihood of a food program for Great Britain, he answered:

"I think food is very necessary for British defense, don't you? I think we need ships more than anything else to haul the food."

Smith had no comment to make on his part in the conversations, other than the remark that "we have to have money to administer the act."

Hopkins attended the conference with the Cabinet officers although he was not present when the legislative leaders talked with the President. Barkley said afterwards that there "was nothing very special" in Mr. Roosevelt's report to the legislators of what information Hopkins had brought back with him.

Morgenthau and Hopkins stayed on to lunch with the President.

First U. S. Envoy To New Zealand To Be Named Soon

By the Associated Press

Plans to establish direct diplomatic contact with the self-governing British dominion of New Zealand have reached a point, it was learned yesterday, where the name of the first American minister to Wellington is under consideration.

In view of the increasing importance of New Zealand in the South Pacific it is understood that President Roosevelt, in selecting his first minister to that country, will pick an outstanding diplomat from the career service who is fully conversant with Far Eastern problems.

Among the career men whose records place them in that category are Wills R. Peck, counselor of Embassy at Chungking; Frank P. Lockhart, counsel-general at Shanghai; Eugene Dooman, counselor of Embassy at Tokio, and Maxwell Hamilton, chief of the State Department's division of Far Eastern affairs.

OPM Aides See Zinc Officials On Shortage

A shortage in zinc, which recently threatened to close the factory of an important supplier of cartridge brass, led to action by the Office of Production Management, whose representatives met with zinc producers yesterday in New York City.

OPM officials declared that, although the zinc situation was tight, they hoped by the conference to obtain enough zinc for immediate defense needs by voluntary cooperation and agreement with the suppliers.

Reports persisted, however, that the present method of "knocking each problem on the head as it arises" might have to give way to a more general system of priorities. No priorities, as such, have been formally imposed on metals, although makers of aluminum and magnesium have been directed to supply only defense needs.

The acuteness of the zinc shortage and its wider civilian use may make it the first metal to be subjected to preference ratings, it was reported.

OPM officials explained that while the ore supply is adequate and the smelting capacity of this country is sufficient for peacetime needs, the increased demands of the defense program and the requirements of Great Britain have created a tight situation.

British needs, they added, were formerly met from smelters in Belgium and northern France, now in German hands.

Extensions of present domestic smelting capacity, they said, may ease the shortage as they go into production later this year, and it is hoped that new smelters may be in operation in 1942.

Bill Seeks Repeal Of Money Powers

A new Republican drive to repeal President Roosevelt's power to devalue the dollar, issue $3,000,000,000 in "greenbacks" and purchase foreign silver was opened in the House yesterday by Representative Daniel A. Reed, of New York.

The Administration successfully opposed a similar measure at the last session of Congress, and is expected to fight this one. New Dealers contend that the President needs this authority to cope with shifting international developments.

Five Wage-Hour Amendments Approved by A. F. L. Council

By the Associated Press

Miami, Fla., Feb. 17.—The executive council of the American Federation of Labor has decided to support five major amendments to the wage-hour law after the present session of Congress.

William Green, president of the A. F. L., said today the executive council met yesterday with Gen. Philip B. Fleming, Wage-Hour Administrator, and agreed that at some future time the law should be amended so as to:

1. Give the administrator power to give opinions about the law that would have the force of law and on which employers could rely without fear of future prosecution.

2. Protect employes from discharge for making complaints under the wage-hour law, a right given workers under the National Labor Relations Act.

3. Set a statute of limitations on prosecutions under the act, to prevent a long-delayed order for payment of back wages that might have accumulated so long as to be confiscatory.

4. Clarify the "twilight zone" between workers in interstate and intrastate commerce.

5. Prevent "evasion" of the act by manufacturers who establish branches in individual States to get away from wage and hour standards imposed on their competitors who ship from central plants.

The federation and the International Typographical Union, representing 80,000 workers, made peace today.

The I. T. U. will return to the A. F. L. fold after an absence of almost two years if the typographical workers ratify the peace agreement in a Nation wide referendum.

The typographical workers were suspended from the A. F. L. for refusing to pay a special assessment of one cent per member per month, levied for organization work at a time when the A. F. L. and C. I. O. were engaging in a major contest for supremacy.

President William Green of the A. F. L., announcing the accord, said the federation's executive council, the I. T. U. executive board and delegates from the printers to past national conventions, had approved the agreement.

He said the terms would be kept secret until the referendum vote is taken.

U. S. Will Fight if Necessary—Austin

prohibition on convoys or entry of American ships into war zones.

Austin said he thought that would be "desperately wrong."

"It would not be as desperately wrong as war," said Bone.

"There are much worse things than war," replied Austin, stepping out into the center aisle and speaking with emotion.

"A world enslaved by Hitler is worse than war—worse than death. A country whose boys will not go out and fight for the preservation of Christianity and for the principles of freedom—well—you will not find such boys in America."

The galleries applauded his concluding assertion that America would fight if it had to. Senator Hatch (Democrat), of New Mexico, rapped for order and admonished against demonstrations by spectators.

A few minutes later, Senator Pepper (Democrat), of Florida, in an equally ardent appeal for the bill, declared that the American people will not let England fall, "call it war or not call it war."

Pepper told the Senate there can be no peace "until Hitler is crushed."

"This bill may save us from a horrible decision of peace or war," Pepper told the Senate.

"If this bill will not save England, we will save it anyway."

He told colleagues to "watch and see if American public opinion will not do that."

"The American people will not let England fall, and whether we like it or not, they'll drive us into action."

The Florida Democrat, one of the first to urge aid to England as a national policy, said if he had to choose between a victorious Britain "with all of its faults" and a world of "brute force" under Hitler, he would choose Britain.

He said the bill was "a step to stay out of war if possible," but warned Congress that before many months it may have to make a decision "very much more fateful than we are making now."

"The future is dark, the risks are great, and the end uncertain," said Pepper. "But if we go step by step and keep our face forward we shall be able to see our way through to a better world."

Proponents' Day

It was the bill's first day before the Senate and by prior agreement had been given over to speeches by proponents. Two leading spokesmen of the opposition, Senator Clark (Democrat), of Missouri, and Senator Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, will take the floor today.

With Chairman George, of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, absent due to illness, Senate Majority Leader Barkley made the opening statement of the bill. Barkley argued that a Hitler victory means "not only a hostile Germany but a hostile world," and "the only way to stop Hitler is to defeat him."

Unless aid is sped to Britain and other Nations fighting aggression, Barkley said "We shall some day have to surrender to him or defeat him over here."

"I do not pretend that there are not risks," continued Barkley. "No matter what we do or fail to do it may be a choice of risks. If we do nothing we run the risk of being fenced in as a sort of unilateral concentration camp. We run the risk of seeing the rest of the world overrun and then being compelled to fight a hostile world or be overrun ourselves."

At the end of Barkley's prepared speech, Senator Taft (Republican) of Ohio, asked why, if Barkley "believes as he said he believes, he is not today urging a declaration of war against Germany."

"Whether the time shall ever come when that will be advisable and necessary, I am not a sufficient prophet to foresee," retorted Barkley. "But I certainly do not regard the present situation as any necessity or any call upon the United States actively to enter as a belligerent in this war."

Taft repeated that Barkley had taken a position "in favor of war" and Barkley denied it.

"I am opposed to the United States going into this war," said the Administration leader. "I want to see Hitler defeated overseas in order that we may not be required to go to war against him on this side of the ocean; and I believe that the safest and surest way to guarantee that result is to assist England and the others fighting Hitler to obtain the materials necessary."

Taft again accused Barkley of saying that "the inevitable effect of the fall of the English would be war in this country."

"I say," continued Taft, "that if war is the inevitable result of the fall of England, if that means an attack on the United States, we ought to go to war now. That is the only logical, reasonable conclusion to draw from the premises which the Senator has stated."

"Very well, go on to war," smiled Barkley, then, serious again, he repeated: "I cannot be a sufficiently accurate prophet to be certain that under no circumstances in the future will we go to war, but I am certain that we shall be less likely to be required to go to war if England wins than we shall if Hitler wins."

Taft said he agreed with the last statement.

Senator Austin, leading a small but growing bloc of Senate Republicans in support of the bill, followed Barkley with a detailed defense of the measure.

Austin was ringed by four Democratic opponents of the bill—Senator Wheeler, of Montana Senator Gillette, of Iowa; Senator Clark, of Missouri, and Senator Bone. Each later questioned him.

The Vermont Republican denied the bill delegates to the President anything but "secondary powers" needed by him for flexibility of the aid program, for centralization of responsibility and decentralization of authority. Charges that the bill "goes beyond the Constitution" he called "utter nonsense."

Calls Charge Absurd

Austin said it was an "absurdity" to say Congress was giving the President power to give away the Navy. "If it were not written into the bill, the very essence of sovereignty would forbid it," he contended.

He told the Senate the measure would enable the President to appoint a single man with authority "to galvanize the arms industries into life" to work the "industrial miracle" Wilson achieved through Bernard Baruch in the first World War.

"No one can sneer me into the belief that the United States is not in imminent danger of invasion if England falls," Austin said at one point. He said he thought the attack would come by way of Iceland, Greenland, Canada to New England.

Gillette asked if Austin thought America would sit at the peace table after the war, if England holds out and the Vermonter replied that he thought not, but that it should have a representative there.

Senator Clark asked if Austin agreed with Wendell Willkie, whom he quoted as saying the United States could impose the peace terms. Austin denied Willkie said that and said he himself was "not advocating the imposition of anything on anybody." He said his personal opinion was that if the war ends without England's defeat, the countries conquered by Hitler would recover from within, overturning the regimes which now dominate them.

Must Be Crushed

Senator Wheeler told Austin he was "in accord" with the view that "in a truce the democracies would recover," that it would be impossible for Hitler "to keep these people subjugated." Senator Clark observed that "Hitler domination is bound to fall to pieces," irrespective of the action of the United States. Senator Austin took issue with this. He said he thought there was "a permanent character" to the Hitler regime "that will keep it operative until it is crushed."

A long exchange followed between Wheeler and Austin. Wheeler insisting the bill would lead to war as the powers conferred on Daladier led France to war. Austin denying it was a parallel case.

Senator Thomas (Democrat), of Utah, briefly took the floor after Austin to deny any threat of "dictatorship" was contained in the bill. Civil liberties, freedom of the press and of speech and independence of the courts, he argued, could be in no way affected.

"We should never regret the fact that our President is strong and powerful," said Thomas. "It doesn't mean dictatorship. It means unity of laws in the interest of national defense."

Wall of Fire Sweeping City In North Spain

By the Associated Press

Lisbon, Portugal, Feb. 17.—Raging storms and floods lashed across Europe from the Black Sea to the Atlantic today, and at Santander, Spain, 30,000 of the city's 54,000 population were reported forced from their homes by a wall of wind-blown flames in the wake of Sunday's hurricane.

Spain and Portugal, the hardest hit, together counted at least 143 dead, thousands of injured and property damage running into millions of dollars. Hundreds of persons were unaccounted for in Portugal and it was feared the death toll would mount.

Scores of buildings were destroyed or damaged by the flames which started last night and still were raging tonight in Santander, port on the Bay of Biscay.

Portugal's Crops Ruined

The Bank of Spain building, the thirteenth century Gothic cathedral, the government revenue office and the customs house were destroyed, along with many residential and commercial buildings, by the fire, which started with an explosion aboard an oil tanker in the harbor. Meager reports by way of a ship's radio in the harbor estimated the loss at between 100 to 150 million pesetas ($9,000,000 to $13,500,000).

Crops of olives, almond and pine groves, cork trees and vineyards in Oporto and other sections of Portugal—the chief sources of this country's income—were reported virtually ruined. It was estimated that Portuguese property damage would exceed $20,000,000.

Reports reaching Bern, Switzerland, said many persons were killed and injured in floods and storms sweeping across the continent and extending through the Danube Valley to the Black Sea.

Danube on Rampage

The Danube River, important military highway for Germany into the Balkans, was a raging, icecoked flood.

Fifteen thousand inhabitants of the Hungarian villages of Dunavesce, Apostag and Solt fled to the hills and the Dunavesce-Dunapataj rail line was abandoned. Twelve smaller villages were evacuated.

A big dam on the left bank of the Danube, 60 miles south of Budapest, was broken at four places by the crush of water impounded by an icy barrier and on the eastern side of the stream some 200 square miles of land were flooded, another 200 square miles threatened.

The situation was declared critical along the lower Danube in the vicinity of Kalocsa, Hungary. Planes bombed ice floes in the river yesterday but the jam was not completely relieved. Troops and civilians turned to rescue work in the stricken Hungarian regions.

Flood waters also were spreading over rich agricultural lands on the plains in the upper valley of the Tisza.

In Portugal, Sunday's hurricane winds were reported to have reached a velocity of 125 miles an hour at Cintra, a town a few miles northwest of Lisbon.

The storm—the worst in Portugal since 1842—battered the coast from Algarve, in the south, to Oporto and beyond in the north.

Hundreds of small boats were sunk, larger ones were badly damaged. Thousands of fishermen lost their only means of support through the sinking of their little craft.

Beware Appeals For Seeing-Eye Dog

Never give money to any group to buy a Seeing-Eye dog for a blind man, the D. C. Association of Workers for the Blind said yesterday, warning that charity racketeers again are active in Washington.

"These dogs cannot be purchased for anyone; they are given to the blind man after he has trained with the dog at Morristown, and he must make arrangements to pay for it if possible," the association said.

FALSE TEETH That Loosen Need Not Embarrass
Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wabbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Holds false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug store.

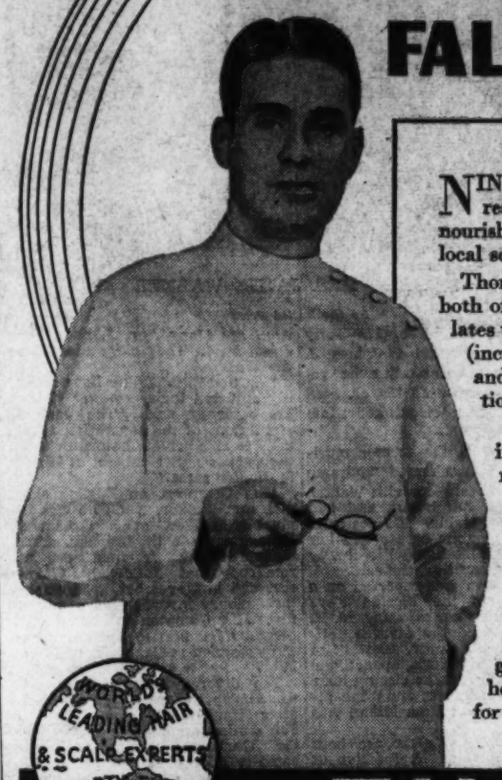
END DANDRUFF— ITCHY SCALP— FALLING HAIR



NINETY per cent of all cases of hair loss result from two causes—(1) lack of nourishment for the growing hair and (2) local scalp disorders.
Thomas treatment helps to eliminate both of these causes of baldness. It stimulates the dormant sources of nourishment (increases the blood supply in the scalp) and overcomes abnormal scalp conditions, such as dandruff.
If you have any of these aggravating symptoms of approaching baldness—dry or oily hair, itchy scalp, falling hair, or thin hair—consult a Thomas expert today. No charge will be made for the consultation or scalp examination. He'll show you how Thomas treatment is ending dandruff, stopping abnormal hair fall, and promoting natural hair growth for thousands of others, and how it can produce the same results for you.

150 More D. C. Selects to Get Call in March

Washington will be called on to furnish 150 selects of 5,250 to be called in the Third Corps Area between March 11 and 20, Selective Service officials said yesterday.

Of those from the District, 96 will be white and 54 colored. Maryland will furnish 624 white and 108 Negro selects; Virginia, 480 white and 112 Negro, and Pennsylvania, 3,600 white and 176 Negro.

The men will be inducted at Baltimore and New Cumberland, Pa., and will be outfitted and classified at Fort George G. Meade, Md. From there 2,889 white and 280 Negro will be sent to replacement centers at Edgewood Arsenal, Md.; Camp Lee, Va.; Camp Wallace, Tex.; Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md.; Fort Riley, Kans., and Fort Belvoir, Va. The remaining 1,911 white men and 166 Negroes will be sent to Bolling Field, here; Nansemond Ordnance Depot, Va.; Forty Story, Va.; Fort Meade, Fort Belvoir and Langley Field, Va.

These men will be in addition to 1,100 white men called from the area between March 3 and 10.

The 121 officers and men of the District's 372d Infantry, colored National Guard regiment, commanded by Capt. Sylvester L. Blackwell, will be inducted on March 10 and sent to Camp Dix, N. J., it was announced yesterday by Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox.

Headquarters of the District National Guard troops which left for Fort Meade last Friday, the armory at Sixth Street and Pennsylvania Avenue Northwest, will be renovated and used as headquarters by 13 of the local draft boards within 30 days, Cox added.

The boards—Nos. 5 through 19, except 12 and 13—will occupy the entire second floor of the old armory.

Meanwhile, names of 70 white and 40 colored selects who will be inducted at the Fifth Regiment Armory in Baltimore Friday were released

Men of 29th Fight Snow, Skids On Way to Meade for Training

By Marshall Andrews

Fort George G. Meade, Md., Feb. 17.—Five hundred officers and men of three infantry regiments and a signal company of the Twenty-ninth Division came into camp today by train and truck, the vanguard of 7,000 who will be here by Thursday night.

Though contingents which came by truck drove here through driving snow over slushy roads, no major accident was reported. A station wagon of the 175th Infantry (Maryland) skidded and turned over near Jessups, Md., without injury to its occupants. Several skids piled trucks and passenger vehicles of Virginia units in roadside ditches, from which they were extricated without damage.

The Twenty-ninth Signal Company, of Norfolk, commanded by Capt. Louis S. Philhower, made the longest trip of any unit, its 100 men driving up by way of Richmond nad Washington. The convoy battled snow all the way, but arrived here without mishap.

Other units which came in today were Regimental Headquarters, Headquarters and Service Companies and advance detachments of the 176th and 116th Infantry (Virginia) and the 175th Infantry (Maryland).

Tomorrow the remainder of the 175th will come in by train, and headquarters and advance detachments of the 115th Infantry (Maryland), 110th Field Artillery (Maryland) and 111th Field Artillery (Virginia) and the 176th Field Artillery (Pennsylvania) will arrive.

The 176th and four companies of the 116th will roll in Wednesday and the balance of the 116th and all three artillery regiments will be in Thursday. Friday will see the whole 115th Infantry in camp and the division concentrated in the camp where it will begin its year of intensive training next Monday.

The District's 121st Engineers, which arrived Friday, was functioning today as a well-knit military unit, concentrating most of its energies on lifting itself out of the mud. Long duckboard paths connected the barracks and mess halls and the officers' quarters already were carpeted with lineoleum in Engineer red.

Defense Housing Funds Are Asked

for, he said.

Carmody said that the FWA will make agreements with States, cities and counties to pay them fixed annal payments in lieu of taxes they otherwise would collect. Such payments will be in force only for the duration of the emergency.

Palmer, appearing before the House Banking Committee, supported a bill to authorize the Federal Housing Administration to insure mortgages on a 90 per cent basis on defense housing, up to a limit of $100,000,000.

He declared that such a plan would be "good business and save the Government money in the long run," by encouraging private capital to enter the field. It would, he said, "provide the most expeditious method of meeting the defense housing problem with a minimum of disruption to industry and without taxing the resources of existing Federal agencies."

$50,000 Still To Be Raised For Symphony

With approximately $50,000 to be raised in three days if the National Symphony is to continue next season, A. E. Giegengack, chairman of the campaign Government committee, yesterday released statements stressing the importance of the orchestra to Washington.

Officials of the American Red Cross, the Pan American Union and 11 Government departments joined in the statements.

The responsibility that Washingtonians should feel in this crisis in the symphony's affairs was pointed out by Dr. L. S. Rowe, director general of the Pan American Union. Dr. Rowe said, "Every resident of Washington should feel a sense of pride in the National Symphony Orchestra which has contributed so much to the cultural life of the Nation's Capital. The maintenance of this splendid musical organization is an obligation which should be brought home to every citizen."

The necessity of preserving the orchestra at this particular moment in world history was stressed by James L. Fieser, vice chairman in charge of domestic operations for the American Red Cross, who wrote: "In these days of preparedness for national defense, it is timely to strike a note of challenge to the residents of the District of Columbia and its environs to defend their National Symphony Orchestra."

A similar note was struck by Miss Margaret Valiant, appointed by Administrator Aubrey Williams to represent the drive at the National Youth Administration. Collas G. Harris, executive officer of the National Archives, stated: "It is important that Washington have a National Symphony Orchestra rated among the best in the country, and your contribution will play a large part in realizing this end."

The final results of the drive will be announced at the report luncheon Thursday at 12:30 p. m. in the Carlton Hotel.

Roosevelt Asks Funds ToImproveHeliumPlant

President Roosevelt asked Congress yesterday for an immediate appropriation of $525,000 to improve the Amarillo, Tex., helium plant.

Bill of Rights To Be Invoked In A.M.A. Trial

The Constitution's bill of rights will be invoked in defense of more than 200 letters, printed articles and other documents which the Government hopes will help convict the American Medical Association on charges of violating the Sherman Act.

William E. Leahy, member of counsel defending the A. M. A. and 20 individual physicians, made that disclosure last night as the doctors' trial ended its ninth day.

Partially tipping the hand he will show after the prosecution rests its case, Leahy emphasized that under the rights of freedom of speech and press, the A. M. A. was not culpable in stating its opinions of Group Health Association in correspondence and in print.

Alleged obstruction of G. H. A. and its staff doctors is the basis of the Government's present criminal action against the organized medical profession.

Except for one item, the prosecution completed yesterday the presentation to Justice James M. Proctor in District Court of the mountain of documents

One of the exhibits admitted to evidence by the bench was an arucle in the A. M. A. Journal for October 2, 1937, which is highly critical of Group Health Association.

It was accepted for presentation to the jury by Justice Proctor after John Henry Lewin, of Government counsel, argued that it betrayed "knowledge, intent and motive" in connection with the alleged conspiracy to nip G. H. A. in the bud.

Lewin charged that the article was written by Dr. William C. Woodward at the request of Dr. Morris Fishbein and Dr. Olin West, with the authorization of the A. M. A. board of trustees. Dr. Fishbein is editor of the Journal and Dr. West secretary-general manager of the medical body. Dr. Woodward, now living here, is a retired A. M. A. officer. Alll three are defendants.

When the trial is resumed this morning, the jury again will be excused for at least half a day while opposing counsel argue the admissability of the last disputed exhibit —stenographic minutes of District Medical Society meetings held in 1937 and the first half of 1938.

The jury was excused all day yesterday and a half day last Friday. The tussle over admissability of documentary evidence subpenaed from files of the A. M. A. and District Medical Society began on Thursday.

Should Justice Proctor act on the D. M. S. minutes this morning, the prosecution will begin the reading to the jury this afternoon of scores of letters to and from the American Medical Association. Yesterday 135 were offered to the court, of which six were rejected, one withdrawn, action reserved on seven and the remainder entered in evidence.

Courtroom clashes were frequent yesterday between Lewin and Grant W. Kelleher, who are conducting the Government's antitrust case, and the defense counsel heads, Leahy and Seth W. Richardson.

Blood Sought For Victim of Streptococcus

Some person who has been cured of the rare disease, streptococcus veridans septicaemia endocarditis, is being sought by the Washington Variety Club to give a transfusion to a Charlotte, N. C., woman, who is desperately ill with the malady.

The Variety Club of Charlotte set the Washington club on the search, Hardie Meakin, head of the local club, said. Four persons who were cured of this disease have given blood to the Charlotte woman. These persons cannot respond further, he was told by H. H. Everett, chief barker of the Charlotte Variety Club.

"If you think you have been afflicted with this disease and are in a condition to give a transfusion, first check with your doctor and be sure this is the case. Phone Nat Browne at Warner Brothers' Theater, REpublic 0800, and give him your name, the name of your doctor, or have the physician phone direct so the patient's doctors may be advised of your record and arrange for the transfusion," Meakin said.

Unions Seek Rent Control, Parking Action

The Industrial Union Council (C. I. O.) last night moved to seek introduction of a bill to create an independent rent control commission in the District, as the Central Labor Union (A. F. L.) similarly prepared to obtain legislation for widespread municipal parking facilities.

Action will be taken this week to get the rent bill introduced.

Likewise, the A. F. L. central body's legislative committee was instructed to push through a bill which would compel builders of new homes and apartment houses to include ample garages or off street parking spaces; adapt all unused District-owned property for parking purposes; impound all revenues from parking meters and traffic violation fines for purchase of parking space; establish underground bomb-proof garages under the Mall which could be used as shelters during a "national mergency."

The A. F. L. central body also referred to its legislative committee a proposed amendment to the women's eight-hour work day law which would facilitate detection of violators and make penalties more severe.

Cecil Owen, of the United Construction Workers, unopposed, was reelected Industrial Union Council president. Other 1941 officers are Craig Vincent, secretary; Bidney Kats, first vice president; George H. Rycraw, second vice president; Kathryn Lewis, third vice president; Jack Mink, fourth vice president; Ruth Carroll, treasurer; Elizabeth Hale, financial secretary; T. Manning Clarrett, Hudson Wells, T. J. McCarthy, Jack Zucker, Olive T. Palmer, William Hinkley, Charles S. Duke, Roy Patterson, Gertrude Evans, executive committee; Charles A. Cornish, trustee; Thomas Evans, sergeant at arms.

DIRECTOR OF THE FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION AND HONORARY CHAIRMAN POLICE BOYS' CLUB CAMPAIGN

"CRIME is rooted in the bad companionships and dangerous interests of misguided youngsters. They lack the opportunity to choose more wisely. Their environment offers them little or no chance to develop respect for law and order, to learn the meaning of good citizenship, to acquire the spirit of fair play.

"Any agency which offers these desirable objectives to a young boy is stopping crime at its source. The Boys' Club of the Metropolitan Police is accomplishing just this with its planned Activity Program. The Boys' Club is giving us citizens instead of criminals. Therefore, I am happy to participate in this important work, and advise its extension for the good of these boys and the well-being of our community."

Defense Health Program Urged On Hygienists

Need of a $1,650,000 annual national program to protect the health of workers in defense industries was described before a National Conference of Governmental Industrial Hygienists yesterday by Dr. C. D. Selby, of the Federal Security agency.

The conference drew about 150 Federal, State and city hygienists to the United States Public Health Service auditorium, where they will adopt a coordinated program at today's session. Health problems of boom towns, springing up around industrial plants, as well as in the plants themselves, are being considered at the two-day meeting.

Dr. Selby, chairman of the subcommittee on industrial health and medicine of the health and medical committee of the Federal Security agency, outlined the proposed program which has been approved by the committee and transmitted to Paul V. McNutt, coordinator and FSA administrator.

Program Listed

Points in the program included:

Training additional personnel (physicians and engineers) for the health program, $500,000. It is proposed that training centers be set up under jurisdiction of university schools.

Intensive training courses in industrial health and hygiene in governmental plants, surveys and recommendations made for small industrial establishments, assembly of information by research workers on detection, prevention and treatment of conditions due to chemical and physical agents and other environmental factors; total, $1,000,000.

For researches into harmful properties of "many substances lately come into use in munitions manufacture and about which little is known," $150,000.

Annual Cost Estimated

The $1,650,000 estimate would be the annual cost of the program.

Another part of the program—provision of water supply, sewage disposal, milk supply and food supply for families in rapidly expanding industrial communities—is left to the boards of health in the various States.

The program was drawn up by a joint committee drawn from Dr. Selby's subcommittee and from the Council on Industrial Health, American Medical Association, he explained.

This joint committee, he said, pointed out that the industrial workman in this loses, on an average, a fraction more than eight days a year from illness, much of which is preventable. The rate for women is higher.

"This loss of time amounts to the staggering total of 340,000,000 days a year or considerably over 1,000,000 work years a year. This briden confronts the defense program and has to be reckoned with in any production schedule," Dr. Selby said.

Dr. Warren F. Draper, acting Surgeon General, United States Public Health Service, in an address to the conference, pointed out that its division of industrial hygiene has placed four units in the field (each unit consisting of a physician and engineer) to work with State industrial hygiene divisions. It is hoped that 10 or 12 more such teams will be added to these mobile units soon, he said.

He said that some of the mobilized men will be replaced in industry by women, young adults and older men, many of whom "will not be as physically fit for arduous tasks or as skilled."

The problem of fatigue, so important in the World War, "will reappear as a result of the increased tempo of industrial production," Dr. Draper said.

Many hazardous chemicals, both old and new, will be introduced, with but little time to determine their toxicity before practical application, he said.

Crowding in factories and a tendency to relax vigilance necessary to prevent disease, also present problems, he asserted.

Dr. Draper said it was the responsibility of the persons at the conference to develop" an effective program so there will be an uninterrupted flow of defense materials."

Joining in the conference were Dr. Selby's subcommittee and the Division of Industrial Hygiene, National Institute of Health.

Enrollment Speed Asked

D. C. Backward on Child Care, Social Agencies Council Told

The District has fallen behind the larger cities of America in providing instruction for children who are partially deaf, Dr. William C. Meloy, chairman of deafness prevention, D. C. Medical Society, told the Health Division of the Council of Social Agencies yesterday.

"Although for many years the education of totally deaf children has been well taken care of in the city, the District of Columbia has fallen behind the larger cities of the country in providing for the instruction of partially deaf and hard of hearing children," he said.

He declared: "Lip reading is not the goal of hearing conservation nor is special seating nor special education. Those adjustments necessarily follow a hearing testing program. Our goal should be to locate the defective hearing child at the earliest possible age and to effect prompt medical treatment."

Periodic medical checkup of children who have suffered from rheumatic fever and cardiac troubles and their need for possibly improved living conditions, including diet, were emphasized by Dr. Bernard J. Walsh, associate cardiologist, Children's Hospital.

Prenatal care for all infants was urged by Mrs. Philip Sidney Smith, in an address on prevention of blindness. She also advocated the prompt correction of faulty lighting in school rooms.

Mrs. Smith spoke in place of Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, who was unable to attend.

Better Traffic Control

The placing of all motorcycle police under a "commander in chief," as announced yesterday by Police Superintendent Ernest W. Brown, is a logical development in the city's organization for safety on the streets. Placing investigation and enforcement under a single administration, according to Maj. Brown's plan, would make it possible to apply with the greatest efficiency the knowledge gained through the accident prevention unit. Under Inspector Arthur C. Miller, who was especially educated for the purpose, the accident prevention squad has instituted careful investigations of accidents as they occur. The immediate result has been an increase in convictions, but more valuable from the long-term view are the examination of causes and the compilation of statistics to show where accidents are most frequent. Formerly, with part of the traffic force under precinct captains, no planned program to give maximum protection at the trouble spots was practical. Now the supervisor, with the knowledge and organization that will be at his command, should be able to give us a safer city.

"Good Neighbor" Pact

It is very good news, indeed, that the United States and Mexico are about to conclude a "good neighbor" pact which is expected to settle all major questions at issue between the two nations. At a time when there is a peremptory need for hemisphere solidarity the existence of points of friction in the relations between this Nation and the republic on the other side of the Rio Grande has had its disturbing possibilities.

The greatest of these differences has been over Mexico's expropriation policy, particularly in the matter of American oil properties. The United States is formally on record as admitting Mexico's right to expropriate, but has insisted that proper indemnification be made to the owners of properties taken over by the Mexican government. But there has thus far been no agreement as to what constitutes proper indemnification. Indeed, the charge has been made, and with considerable justification, that Mexico's action in the matter of foreign oil holdings constituted not expropriation but very thinly disguised confiscation.

It is understood that this problem and others regarding which there has been controversy between Washington and Mexico City are now well on the way to solution. Such a development would be of distinct mutual benefit. It would open the door to a far-reaching program of economic collaboration whose advantage to Mexico would be very great indeed and a program of cooperation in the defense sphere which this Nation would have every reason to welcome. But not the least constructive aspect of a United States-Mexico pact would be that it would mark a further step in the direction of hemisphere solidarity.

Active Service

It is a pleasure to report that Washington's own antiaircraft regiment, the 260th Coast Artillery, is keeping pace with the leaders in modern practice. Under the guidance of Lieut. James W. Hill, the morale division—that indispensable arm of the up-to-date military machine—is keeping our boys' spirits at a maximum in far-away Texas. A Lonely Hearts Club has been formed, and an artilleryman can now go riding with a girl from Laredo. Lieut. Hill has avoided the mistake which brought a storm about the head of that unhappy hostess at Camp Selby, Miss., who announced she would get dates for married men. He let it be known at the start that only bachelors would be admitted to his club. That should quiet the fears of Washington wives, but many a local sweetheart will have qualms at the idea that her time is being beaten by some Texas lovely. (If you don't believe they're lovely, ask any Texan.) Never mind, my dear, if he's that fickle you'd have had to write him off some day. And a word of caution to the 260th: You'd better handle these dates with gloves on, fellows. Lieut. Hill knows a fingerprint when he sees one—in private life he's an agent of the FBI.

Insurance Frauds

On the basis of a very incomplete survey the New York State Advisory Council on Unemployment Insurance reports that at least $18,000,000 of unemployment insurance taxes remain unpaid. Last September investigators for the council found that over 35,000 employers, or one-fourth of all those registered, had made no tax payment whatever for the quarter ended June 30, while over 17,000 were delinquent on payments due in the second quarter of 1939. The report also stated that a "limited effort" by the State Unemployment Insurance Division to detect fraudulent payments had uncovered 15,000 cases of fraud involving payments of more than $500,000 in benefits during a single year.

This shocking record emphasizes the paramount importance of efficient administration of social insurance systems. Without careful checks upon both employers and employes the best planned paper system of insurance will inevitably suffer financial shipwreck sooner or later. The question that confronts New York (and other States, too), is how to maintain adequate safeguards against loose and dishonest practices without incurring impossibly heavy administrative costs. Certainly a firm-to-firm audit of employers' books is not feasible in a great industrial State like New York, where over 600 auditors would be needed throughout the year to verify employers' records. The Advisory Council suggests, therefore, that consideration be given to the stamp plan for keeping track of payments. Under this system, which is common in European countries, each insured employe would be given a book in which his employer would paste stamps showing the amount that had been paid into the unemployment insurance fund on his account. In order to draw unemployment benefits an insured worker would have to deposit this book in one of the State employment offices. Though the stamp plan would not entirely eliminate frauds, it would provide a check upon employers' payments and workers' claims for benefits. The chief objection to this method of recording payments is that it would entail more work for employers than the present bookkeeping arrangement—a serious matter in case of large concerns. There has also been considerable labor union opposition to a system that would necessitate the constant carrying about of cards.

No administrative set-up, however efficient, can close all the avenues of evasion open to employers and employes under comprehensive social insurance systems. But, given competent administrators to start with, it ought to be possible to reduce frauds and evasions to negligible proportions with the assistance of organized industry and trade unions. Trade associations, for instance, can bring pressure to bear upon delinquent employers. They can check employers' contributions and verify members' claims. Finally, as millions of insured men and women come to realize their stake in the maintenance of financially sound systems of unemployment insurance, the force of public opinion will become an increasingly powerful factor in suppression of dishonest practices. The revelations contained in the report of the New York Advisory Council are calculated to arouse public opinion to the need for action. For that reason alone the report has an educational value, quite apart from the merit of specific recommendations.

The Irish In Us

Mr. Roosevelt's discovery last week that one of the Chilean journalists who visited him at the White House was a remote relative by marriage is another reminder of what a small world this is. If you trace it back far enough—say, to Shem, Ham and Japheth—very few families seem to inhabit it, really. The Delanos, who caused the Presidential comment, are an important family in South America as well as in North America. But so are the Muirheads, a member of which family is the Chilean who has been assigned to The Washington Post. Chilean names are fertile in such surprises as Edwards, Campbells, Doyles, and other names which blur the dividing line of the Rio Grande.

The greatest of all Chilean names happens to be O'Higgins, from the great patriot Bernardo O'Higgins. And the North American family which cannot find an O'Higgins somewhere in its genealogy has more reason to pity than to pride itself. But, as a matter of fact, there are few families of European origin which, if their genealogical records had been well enough kept for a long enough time, could not produce either an O'Higgins or some other equally regal Irish ancestor somewhere along the line. This would include at a swoop virtually all families of Scot origin. For it is well known that the Scots were originally an Irish tribe, and that the name "Scotia" once meant, not the northern end of Britain, but Ireland itself.

Thus even in those days, it seems, the Irish were a great folk for getting around. In fact, it has been pretty well established that the Irish, or, at any rate, the Gaels, had been pretty much all over the map of Europe before it ever occurred to them to go to Ireland! According to the Icelandic scholar, Mr. Thor Thors, the Irish are the real discoverers of the New World. He bases this finding on the fact, now generally acknowledged, that their settlements in Iceland preceded the earliest Scandinavian settlements by at least 25 years. And so by this time every Icelander has a pretty good admixture of Irish blood in him.

Perhaps the world's most famous rovers were the Irish missionary monks of the eighth and ninth centuries A. D. There is even an interesting conjecture that the fair-haired, fair-skinned Mexican god, Quetzacoatl, who, according to one legend, came out of the sea, and remained long enough to get the Toltec culture off to a good start, was one of these monks. That would make the Irish the discoverers of the North American continent, too, 200 years before Lief Ericsson and 800 years before Columbus. Evidently there is a good deal more than good neighborliness spanning the Rio Grande.

R. A. F. Over Poland

The "raid" carried out by the R. A. F. over western Poland Saturday seems at first glance a throwback to the days of the "sitzkrieg" when both sides punctiliously refrained from dropping bombs on enemy centers. Actually it outlined the shape of things to come when American and British production of long-range bombers goes into high speed. To the Poles, whose national life has temporarily been extinguished and who themselves have been placed under a foreign yoke as brutal as any the world has ever seen, these British planes and the leaflets they scattered were harbingers of hope. To the British themselves it was a symptom of the growing offensive strength of their air force. Saturday the bombers only dropped leaflets; before long they may be dropping bombs and thus carrying the war deeper into German-occupied territory than they have ever succeeded in doing before.

In the aerial war of attrition which has been raging between Great Britain and Germany the Nazis have hitherto enjoyed a very real advantage. A good part of industrial Germany has been outside the effective reach of British bombers, whereas the whole of England has been within range of German bombers. The result has been far greater destruction in Great Britain than in the Third Reich. Moreover, the Germans have managed to reduce their losses further by moving many vital industrial plants from the Ruhr and Rhineland to more remote spots, such as Poland and Bohemia.

The day is drawing nearer, however, when this immunity of certain industrial areas in the Reich will disappear. The R. A. F. raid over Poland is one sign. Another is the circumstance that the first of 26 new 20-ton 4-motored bombers being built for Britain by Consolidated Aircraft Corporation is all set for a direct flight to England. Such planes can easily span the distance between British airfields and targets in the most remote parts of Europe. The speedier that they be built and delivered the nearer will Great Britain be to the day of ultimate victory.

A Tale Of Tungsten

At a time when the Pacific is seething with trouble comes a disconcerting announcement in the Federal Register of a "shortage" in industrial stocks of a metal which comes to this country across the Pacific, namely, tungsten. Tungsten is an alloy of steel manufacture. And much of it has to be imported, chiefly from China. For these two reasons the Army and Navy Munitions Board long ago classified tungsten as a "strategic" material. That is to say, it is a material "essential to the national defense supply of which in war dependence must be placed in whole, or in substantial part, on sources outside the continental limits of the United States, for which strict conservation and distribution control measures will be necessary." Stores of tungsten and other "critical" and "strategic" materials are being bought in world markets. The program is by no means completed. How much has been collected is impossible to find out because of the secrecy observed in these and cognate matters by the Administration. Perhaps the secrecy is justifiable on national defense and market grounds. But it is to be hoped that the stockpiling is of sizable dimensions in view of both the shortages which are reported in tungsten and the tenseness of the Pacific situation. Perhaps the time has come to subject our shipping to some form of priorities in order to insure bigger supplies.

ENGLISH BIRTH

Sleep, Child within the earth, far from the broken night and flame,
where roses leap to birth and trees begin their climb to fame.
Here where the young springs rush through the fingers of roots;
sleep, Child in the darkling bush
where the little grass shoots its green spears into the sunlight.
All things are born in this;
the rain will find you in the night and God will touch you with His Kiss.
Sleep, Child where fountains leap into the harrowing light;
the walls of the ground will keep the sound of your father singing in the night.

Thumbs Up, Foxes!

According to The Post editorial entitled "The Silent Horn," "fox-hunting is now quite extinct in England." This is not entirely correct. The chase is still being carried on despite terrific handicaps. To be sure the tremendous packs of prewar days consist now of not more than five or six couple of hounds and the hunts are in charge of old men not wanted at the war office. However, the knowledge that hounds are still going out is a necessary factor in bolstering morale and healthful relaxation for men on leave.

I have recently read several letters from abroad telling of the hazards of the hunting field in war time. There is always the chance of coming home with a captured Nazi parachutist instead of the "brush," of leaping over bomb craters instead of the familiar open ditch, or of stumbling onto a time bomb.

So many make the mistake of thinking of hunting as a rich man's sport. John Masefield says: "Being the national sport, it has inspired something like a national art, like the sport which it portrays, for the people and of the people, the delight and solace of the rich and poor alike." For these reasons surely this sport of absorbing passion for half the year and the essence of country life will never become entirely extinct—certainly it will live on in the hearts of men and when the war is over battlefields of Europe will ring out with the music of a pack in full cry instead of the sound of guns.

Accumulated Intelligence

Eunice Grindrod's contribution to the Casanova-Sperry controversy is that intelligence is not something that originates in men, but is an omnipresent force which operates outside of man and regardless of his opinion of it. Intelligence is law enforced by God: it is a "fundamental force." No one can prove these statements to be right or wrong, because no one can see, hear, or feel this mysterious "omnipresent force." But, nevertheless, there is human intelligence that can be measured and judged by all men. It is a result of the accumulation of experience in a world of hard reality.

If I am right when I say that intelligence is what we get from well-considered experience, then let us use this product of history and apply it to the present situation, taking the decision out of the hands of those powerful parasites who for their own purposes are again rushing us to the slaughter pen. Men can be masters of their own fate. Those who ask us to "retain a high conception of law" and to realize our inability to govern ourselves "without first knowing that God governs all" do so in order to stifle human initiative in applying intelligence to real situations. JAMESON O'NEIL.

Regarding Deferment Of Students

In The Post of February 11 a correspondent, M. G. Halsey, views as deplorable a speech by Brig. Gen. Lewis Hershey, the Deputy Director of Selective Service, delivered February 7, before a conference of National Committee on Education and Defense, in regard to the deferment of college students.

He bases his criticism on the fact that to call into service college students after the termination of their present deferment, July 1, 1941, would interfere with the future intellectual needs of the country. He also quotes a college president as stating that there are thousands who do not take college educations and that they should be called into service before college students.

These arguments seem to be answerable on several grounds. In the first place, the thousands who do not enter colleges either want to work, or, in the case of many, are forced to work because of financial necessity. Since when is the need or desire to work to be discriminated against in a democracy and a favored class created out of those financially able to afford a college education?

The undersigned is a college man, who served in the last war, has many friends who are college men and who did not desire preference. M. G. Halsey states that students do not object to military training, "but have the right to be allowed to finish their educations first."

Well, the trouble with this argument is that we are in an emergency and emergencies will not wait four years, which is the length of time needed for the completion of the average college course. Perhaps Mr. Hitler will not wait, either. Also formal education, divided into semesters, is not the only kind of education. A student may well acquire more real education during the year of military service than he would have in college and return to college better fitted to appreciate the remainder of his college course.

Behind all arguments, before all other rights, is the right of the Nation for equality of sacrifice from all citizens, and the fact that the emergency is now, and not at some future date. ROGER O'LEARY.
Washington, Feb. 11.

Obviously M. G. Halsey disliked Brig. Gen. Hershey's talk and policies. To say that Brig. Gen. Hershey has "no regard for the future of our country" borders on fanaticism, for he is a man who has ably demonstrated during his short time in Washington his real and lovable Americanism.

M. G. H. asks—"If college education is to be interrupted by the draft, who will fill the intellectual needs of our country in the future?" Here are two answers to that one—the men who have had Selective Service Army training and the sensible-minded men who were left behind because their draft board thought them best elsewhere than in uniform. "Higher education is the greatest need in the world today"—I deny that. The greatest need of today is consecrated, intelligent leadership. Following this M. G. H. confuses "patriotic" with "service." We all laud all young men endeavoring to secure learning. But we cannot defeat nazism by college educations.

"Every young man who is conscientiously giving all his time to education should be cheerfully given deferment." Do that and by 1942 or 1943 he may be an educated goose-stepper under a Hitler U. S. A. protectorate. We all agree with M. G. H. that "education is patriotic and necessary." "We must have lawyers, doctors, teachers and scientists, as well as military men." Surely, but if democracy falls, we will not need so many of them because great numbers of us will not be here.

My only university was four years in the Army. If I had it to do all over again my choice would be the same as it was in 1914. Brig. Gen. Hershey knows that defense is now our problem number 1. Let us all aid and abet him, and let no one "snipe" at him. In aiding him we defend America and at the same time further the cause of higher education. VETERAN.
Washington, Feb. 11.

Defense Or Reform?

Are we at this crucial time attempting to implement a program of defense, or are we wallowing in an orgy of reform? For seven monotonous years the New Deal, boggled with reform, wrote 20-odd billions of debt on Uncle Sam's cuff, and failed to bring recovery. So preoccupied were these unimaginative wizards with the business of making their reelection perpetually sure that they failed to recognize the urgent need for defense until the European totalitarians had hurled the issue through our front door.

But even now it appears that the same persons are determined to politicalize the destinies of the Nation by placing their somewhat tainted reforms ahead of defense. It is high time to invoke certain sound American principles which have, unhappily, fallen into disuse in recent years.

Already there is evidence that an epidemic of New Deal totalitarianism is spreading across the land, and the more vociferous of the inner circle have recently become boresome with their strutting and pink patter. It is time to remind them that they are public servants and not masters, that they are on the public pay roll and not on the throne. OBSERVER.

Praise For Pegler

For many years I have read with interest the editorial page of your paper. I particularly enjoy reading "Fair Enough," the impressive column by Mr. Westbrook Pegler.

I greatly admire Mr. Pegler for his fearlessness in exposing corrupt practices and causing investigations which correct such situations. I think that his column is characterized by great earnestness of purpose and a desire to stamp out forever corruptness.

However, I have often wondered how Mr. Pegler would appear writing in a lighter vein for a change. On February 13 I was quite pleasantly surprised upon reading "A Delicate Problem." This article shows without a doubt what a "delicious" sense of humor Mr. Pegler is endowed with. It was a pleasant diversion from his usual energetic type of articles and proved to me that Mr. Pegler can see the mirthful side of situations as well as the troublesome side.

"Sail On"

I am sure that many of your readers join me in commending you for the article "Sail On, O Ship of State," in The Post of February 10, containing the quotation from "The Building of the Ship" used by our President in his letter introducing Mr. Willkie "To a Certain Naval Person," and Mr. Churchill's touching and dramatic reply to the President's letter.

May I suggest the concluding lines of this same poem as our humble tribute to the courage and bravery of Mr. Churchill and the people of Britain:

"In spite of rock and tempest roar,
In spite of false lights on the shore,
Sail on, nor fear to breast the sea!
Our hearts, our hopes, are all with thee,
Our hearts, our hopes, our prayers, our tears,
Our faith triumphant o'er our fears,
Are all with thee—are all with thee."

The Post Impressionist

The Bathtub Mystery

If I were to be in London tomorrow, say for just an hour, with the choice of spending it with anyone there, I think I would pass up the big shots and just sort of sit around for that length of time and listen to Mrs. Buzzy. This may surprise you when I tell you that, socially, Mrs. Buzzy ranks so low in that country's scale as to be almost symbolical of its lowest class—the Queen's direct social opposite, in fact, for who of all her subjects could be further removed socially from that august lady than a London charwoman?

Of course, it may be that I am easily amused. Anyway, you may judge for yourself. Here, as near as I can remember, is one of the many discourses on various topics Mrs. Buzzy used to hand out to me whenever I happened to be around while she was doing my room. The topic on that particular afternoon (though how we ever got on it, I don't know) was baths, or rather, the lack of them in London.

"Yes, sir," I remember her saying, "I always 'ave me bath in a basin. I don't 'old with baths in bathrooms—not baths wot yer lies down in I don't."

"But why, Mrs. Buzzy? What's wrong with bathrooms?" Coming as I did from a country where baths are as usual as breakfast, I had often been puzzled by dark glances of suspicion from London landladies when I inquired if there was a bath in the house. Usually there wasn't. Of course, my search for rooms was not in the fashionable squares, nor in any of the apartment buildings designed to please my wealthier countrymen. It was in the Londoners' London that my search was made.

And so when that afternoon the subject of baths came up, I instinctively knew that at last I was to learn all about it; for that good woman, as I've already intimated, was a veritable fountain of information, and once started on a subject she never let up until it had been thoroughly thrashed out.

"Well, yer see, sir," she explained, "it's safer not to 'ave a bath in the 'ouse—specially when yer take lodgers."

"Do they use too much water?" To an American mind it seemed the only explanation.

"Oh lors no, sir—'tisn't the wastin' of water—only it's safer when yer don't know who yer're 'avin' in the 'ouse. I know, sir; I've 'ad me troubles with lodgers, I 'ave. 'Ad a couple once wot figured in the Ole Bailey—leastways, 'e did; she was drownded in the bath."

"Good heavens, Mrs. Buzzy! How awful! Did he drown her in your bath?" Here was drama to my hand.

"Oh no, sir, I didn't 'ave no bath—lucky for me it was, too, or 'e'd 'a drownded 'er there. Yer see, sir, it 'appened this way. After Mr. Buzzy died I 'ad to take in lodgers till me boys was able to keep themselves—I was livin' at Woolwich at the time—near the park it was. So one day a gentleman comes with a young lydy an' arst for rooms. 'E said the young lydy was 'is wife an' that she was goin' travelin' in a few weeks' time. I was a bit short at the time, so I says, 'Orlright, seein' as it's only fer a couple of weeks I'll take yer both, cos as a rule I only take gentlemen.' So they looks at the rooms an' 'e says ter me, "'Ave ye a bath in the 'ouse?'

"'No,' I says, 'I 'aven't—none of the 'ouses 'ere 'as baths, but I can supply yer with plenty of 'ot water for washin'.' And 'e says, 'orlright, we'll come on Monday, cos I see yer 'ave a pianner—me an' me wife likes to sing 'ymns together of an evenin'.'

"I tell yer, sir, 'e 'ad all the speakin' of a gentleman. So they come in an' I done the cookin' for them. 'E 'ad a real sorft way with 'im—many's the times I've 'eard 'im say, 'Sit in this easychair, dear,' or 'Do yer feel equal ter playin' a few 'ymns, dear?' She played the 'ymns something lovely—a nice obligin' young lydy—pretty as a picture, too, she was . . ."

"Then they went away an' left a trunk fer me ter mind. Oh no, sir, the young lydy wasn't in the trunk—'er clothes was in the trunk—that's wot the detectives found when they came arstin' questions."

"Oh, yes, they was real detectives. They come from Scotland Yard. It was a Friday when they come—that's years ago now, sir, but I remember it was a Friday cos I was carryin' the mats downstairs when they knocked at me front door. Yer see I always cleaned of a Friday—always 'ave done—an' I says, 'Excuse me, please, while I put the mats in the back 'all.' The men searched me 'ouse an' arst me a lot of questions about the young lydy an' gentleman wot 'ad been lodgin' with me in the summer, an' next day I seen in the papers that 'e'd murdered 'er in the bath. A nice 'ouse; took 'er to where they 'ad a good big bath. 'E drowned the young lydy wot stayed with me an' then 'e drowned two other young lydies an' then the perlice found out about 'im an' now 'e's in the waxworks—The Bride in the Bath case it was called, sir—an' there was I 'avin' them in me own 'ouse!"

"Well, Mrs. Buzzy, you were lucky to have had a house without a bath in it," I said.

"That I was," she agreed. "Yer see, sir, a widder like me 'as to be careful—anyways, I never did 'old with these noo-fangled baths wot people lies down in. That's 'ow she met 'er death—the pore young lydy—she got drowned—'e pulled 'er up by the 'eels, so they sye. Oh, I'll never forget 'ow 'e arst sorft-like, "Ave you a bath in the 'ouse?—an' me sayin', 'No, none of the 'ouses 'ere 'as baths.' Pulled 'er up by the 'eels 'e did—such a nice, obligin' young lydy she was, too."

Mrs. Buzzy began to clatter the dishes. Her "fountain" had finally run dry—and I had learned why so many Londoners feel it's safe to have a "bath in the basin" or even no bath at all.

Japan's Decision

THE POSITION of Japan today is in many ways similar to that of Mussolini at about this time a year ago. The question for Japan is whether to join Hitler in his war to destroy British sea power.

LIPPMANN

Until the spring of 1940 Mussolini had been a diplomatic ally and a non-belligerent supporter of Hitler. But his military activity had been limited and localized and separated from the great central struggle; Mussolini had used his armed forces only in Abyssinia, in the Spanish Civil War, and in Albania, avoiding a direct collision with any great power in the democratic camp. Japan has thus far followed the same course: She is a diplomatic ally of Hitler but her military action has been in Manchuria, in China proper, and in French Indo-China.

In June, 1940, with the fall of France, Italy entered the great war, challenging British sea power in the Mediterranean and exposing her African empire to the hazards of war. The decision was taken by Mussolini on the assumption that Britain could not survive the fall of France, and that if he was to participate in the division of the British and French empires, he must when the war ended be in actual military occupation of all that he coveted. He knew that in Hitler's settlement of the world, Italy would get no more than what Italy held when the settlement was made. The Japanese have for the past year been turning over in their minds a similar calculation. They realize that if Hitler loses the war in Europe, the most they can hope for in Asia is a moderate, negotiated settlement with China, Russia, Great Britain and the United States; there will be no "new order" with Japan as the master. But they are supposing also that if Hitler wins in Europe without their participation, he will consider himself heir to the European possessions in the Far East. They are thinking that it will be Nazi Germany and not Japan which will claim title to the Dutch, French, and British possessions in the East Indies, in Southern Asia, and in India itself. So like Mussolini last year, the Japanese now are facing the question of entering the World War for the dual purpose of assisting Hitler and of forestalling him.

THE JAPANESE calculation today, like Mussolini's a year ago, depends upon a correct estimate of what Hitler can do to Great Britain. Mussolini made a fatally false judgment in thinking that Hitler would win last year. This error has cost him his African empire and a good part of his fleet. Even if Hitler were to win this year, Mussolini will have lost the war for Italy. For even if Hitler wins against Britain, Mussolini will not only not be occupying the lands he covets—Egypt and the French African empire—but he will not even be in possession of the Italian empire. Therefore, in relation to a victorious Hitler, the Italy of Mussolini will be a defeated nation entirely dependent upon Hitler's dictates.

The Italian people are being told that even if they lose their war, Hitler's victory will restore everything and some more besides. It is not possible that intelligent Italians believe this. For they can hardly have forgotten that in the Versailles settlement, when they were present as one of the victorious allies, they got less than they thought they were entitled to. For 20 years they have been told by Mussolini that as victors in the other war they were cheated by their allies. They are now asked to believe that after a military disaster in this war, Hitler will not only restore their lost empire, but will endow them with an expanded empire. They are asked to believe this when they know that they occupy German territory in the Tyrol and that in Trieste they hold the Austrian port which is the natural outlet of Hitler's empire into the Mediterranean.

THE JAPANESE now face an even greater risk of misjudging the situation. While Japan might enter the war as Hitler's ally, he is in no position to help Japan whereas he might be able to help Italy. It is within the bounds of the real possibilities that Hitler could retrieve the Italian disaster in the Mediterranean by land and air operations through the Balkans and Spain. Moreover, Italy and Germany have a common frontier. But Hitler cannot help Japan. In fact, if Hitler were to move into the Mediterranean and be highly successful, the net effect, far from helping Japan, would be to make the Japanese position more precarious. For in the unlikely event that Hitler drove the British out of the Mediterranean, where would they go? They would go to Singapore, and the whole considerable war effort of Australia, New Zealand, India, Africa, plus a very powerful fleet, would be concentrated against Japan.

The Japanese are in danger of making an even graver miscalculation than Mussolini. There is better than an even chance that they may be misjudging the prospects of Hitler's attack on Britain. There is more than an even chance that they are misjudging the speed with which, if at all, he can conquer Britain. But above all they are misjudging the military consequences to themselves if Hitler did drive the British out of Europe. Just as Mussolini did not foresee that by driving the British out of France, Hitler would make it possible for the British to send equipment for Wavell's army in Egypt, since there was no longer a Western Front to consume equipment, so driving the British out of Europe will drive a very large part of the British forces into Asia. The Japanese should not forget that if Europe were lost to the British, the next great agglomeration of British peoples is in the region of which Singapore is the center, and that the British navy and airforce are sworn to defend not only the British Isles but the whole British Commonwealth and its dependencies.

THE JAPANESE are in no less great danger of misunderstanding and miscalculating the actions of the United States, and we on our part, can do no greater injury to the cause of peace than to fail to make clear to Japan now, before she commits herself, irrevocably, that she cannot count upon our permanent neutrality. It is true that the American people do not want war with Japan. But it is equally true that they are determined to insure their security, come what may.

The Japanese are deeply mistaken if they think that a victory of Hitler in Europe would cause the United States to retire from the Pacific and cower defensively with the fleet in the Caribbean. On the contrary, faced as we should be then with the threat of a two-ocean naval attack, our necessary course would be to dispose of Japanese sea power before Hitler could organize European sea power against us. With the help of the British who would have fallen back on Singapore, with our fleet on the flank of any Japanese expedition into the Southwestern Pacific, Japan, like Italy today, would find herself facing superior forces before her ally Hitler could do anything about it.

IT IS THE TASK of American diplomacy, backed by Congress and public opinion, to make the position clear before the Japanese engage themselves irrevocably. In the interests of the Japanese people and in our own interest we must not commit the fatal error of failing to explain to Japan the real consequences of the decision which she is now considering.

Balkan Bombshell

By Kirke L. Simpson
Associated Press Staff Writer

SOME REPORTS of a Bulgarian-Turkish "nonaggression accord" picture it as a setback for Britain.

It is true that Britain has counted heavily on Turkish resistance to any German march through Bulgaria to aid Italy in Albania. Yet the pact will not strip Britain of vitally important strategic advantages she has gained from the Greek-Italian conflict. For example, even if it should lead Greece to make peace with Italy, presumably on Berlin assurances of favorable terms, it is hardly likely the British would abandon their air and naval bases on the Greek island of Crete.

There is another implication to Sofia accounts of a nonintervention accord with Turkey. It suggests that the real Nazi purpose in the Balkans is to press a "peace offensive" against Greece and avert for Germany a two-front war at a time when she is preparing a final smash at England.

What Hitler is trying to do, if the Sofia accounts are taken at face value, is to knock Greece out of the British-Axis war by pressure and threats before the British-Greek Allies knock Italy out by force. Athens reports that a five-day Greek-British offensive in southern Albania has been gaining momentum. Rome admits continued heavy fighting on that front, but gives no details.

PENDING FURTHER light on the reported Turkish-Bulgarian deal, its actual significance is beyond estimation. Of great importance would be the degree to which it assured Germany against Turkish belligerency if Nazi forces, en route to Albania, entered Bulgaria.

This much seems clear. Unopposed German passage to Albania, by way of Bulgaria or by any other route, is not to be expected. British air forces are poised in Greece within an hour's flight of routes by which the Germans would have to move.

Winter weather and difficult mountain terrain also would slow down a Nazi drive if it was launched.

It is also quite likely that it would take more than Turkish pledges of aloofness to crack Greek morale and induce acceptance of made-in-Berlin "peace" proposals. Terms acceptable to Greece in the light of her amazing victories and the blows dealt Italy by the British in Africa would be apt to be utterly unacceptable to Mussolini. They would confess Italian defeat.

Nor can the Greeks overlook the fact that British sea power dominates the Mediterranean. If Greece goes out of the war, she can expect to feel the full pinch of the British blockade. British naval power is now escorting food stocks to Greece.

THERE ARE OTHER reasons to believe that the real stake Hitler is playing for in the Balkans is to maintain the status quo and avoid two-front war for Germany while he strikes at England. There have been hints from the outset of the Greek-Italian conflict that Berlin did not approve of Mussolini's attempt to invade Greece. Fear of a general Balkan flare-up to imperil vital German oil and food resources in Rumania and other Balkan countries has been obvious in Berlin.

It is possible that German "protective" occupation of Rumania was in fact a purely defensive move, not an attempt to organize a Nazi-Fascist drive to crack British power in the eastern Mediterranean. The present Balkan crisis seems to stem out of British rather than German initiative. The British break with Rumania made the oil fields and transportation centers in that country possible targets for British bombers. Only Bulgarian, Yugoslavian and Turkish neutrality has protected them.

Berlin's answer to that challenge still may be the effort to force all three countries by promises and threats to maintain that protective, neutral screen about Rumania. That a definite Nazi military penetration of Bulgaria would shatter it and bring Royal Air Force bombers into action goes without saying.

1,500 Laymen Begin Mission Home Visits

By Robert Tate Allan.

Like the men commissioned by Jesus to spread the Gospel, more than 1,500 laymen went out last night in two-by-two biblical fashion to bring men to the Christian way of life.

The modern "fishers of men" first sat down to suppers in area churches to hear instructions for the Home Visitation Evangelism part of the National Christian Mission.

Then they spread out into every community of the District, Prince Georges and Montgomery and Arlington and Fairfax Counties to call upon prospects in business-like and friendly manner.

Dr. Guy H. Black, director of Home Visitation Evangelism for the National Mission, and his four coworkers addressed the workers in various area churches before the visitation.

Dr. Black spoke at Foundry Methodist and Chevy Chase Presbyterian Churches; Dr. Walter Woodbury, secretary of evangelism for the Northern Baptist Convention, at Vermont Avenue Baptist Church and Metropolitan Presbyterian; Dr. Harry William, of Oneida, N. Y., at Emory Methodist Church; Dr. H. H. McConnell, of Pittsburgh, at McKendree Methodist Church, and Dr. Roland Q. Leavell, director of evangelism for the Southern Baptist Convention, at Central Methodist Church, Ballston, Va.

With the exception of Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church, each of those churches will be the scenes of previsitation programs also tonight, tomorrow and Thursday nights. All are opening with suppers, Vermont Avenue excepted. Some of Prince Georges County workers and meeting at First Church there, and others at McKendree Church in Northeast Washington.

The first breakfast meeting of Dr. Black's "team" and the local area chairman and other leaders is slated for today at 8 p. m., at the Lee Sheraton Hotel, Fifteenth and L Streets Northwest. Reports of last night's canvass will be made.

The Three Grand Strategies

THE NEXT CRISIS of the war is visibly approaching. As always in these times before the storm burst again with renewed fury, tension is rising in Washington. There is much apprehension among the higher officials, who watch the daily reports of storm signals from all over the world. There is also interminable discussion of the precise form the crisis will take.

The trend of this discussion was best summed up, not by any American expert, but by the great strategist whom the problem most intimately concerns, Winston Churchill himself. In a recent talk with an able observer just returned from London, Churchill pointed out that Hitler had three main points of attack—the British Isles, the Mediterranean, and Singapore. Hitler, he said, might attempt an assault against all three at once, or any one, or any two, and he added that no one in the world but Hitler himself could tell what the combination will be.

ALSOP

IN FACT, there are three alternative grand strategies, all offering special temptations to the Germans, in the view of our experts as well as of Churchill. The first is the strategy of the assault on all fronts, from Land's End to Singapore. Interestingly enough, signs multiply that something of the sort may now be in preparation, although until recently the best military and naval thinkers have doubted whether Hitler would risk the necessary diversion of resources from his onslaught against the British Isles themselves.

The assault on all fronts, if it comes, will have four chief scenes of action. All-out air and submarine attacks will be made on the British Isles, leading up, if they are successful, to an invasion. In the Western Mediterranean, Franco will be forced to grant transit to German troops for the siege of Gibraltar. In the Eastern Mediterranean, the Balkans will be brought under German domination; the Greek problem will be forcibly settled, and further adventures may perhaps be launched from the new Balkan base. And in the Far East, the large Japanese military and naval force now gathered at Hainan Island and on the coast of Indo-China will be used for an attack on Singapore.

The signs that this grandiose plan may have found favor with Hitler are pretty simple and pretty obvious. Franco's journey to see Mussolini brought Spain into the picture again. The extension of German dominance in the Balkans is currently in progress. A Russo-Japanese deal, always believed to be the necesary preliminary to Japanese acceptance of new commitments, suddenly seems to be in prospect. To be sure, the plan's chances of success have diminished markedly during the winter. The rout of the Italians in Africa has removed all immediate threat to Suez, while the Japanese are increasingly fearful of this country. Yet the assault on all fronts may well be attempted.

THE SECOND grand strategy is the limited assault on the British Isles. If this is Hitler's real plan, the events in the Mediterranean area and the Far East merely indicate another effort to get a lot for a little, by threats and bluster, like the unsuccessful German diplomatic offensive last fall. They will not be followed by any big show, requiring the investment of considerable military resources.

Instead, all German resources will be concentrated on the battle of Britain. The submarine campaign will be greatly intensified. Every plane in the German airforce will be thrown against the R. A. F., in an effort to achieve mastery of the air. And then, if full or partial mastery of the air is achieved, an invasion effort will follow.

No military experts anticipate an invasion effort before the Luftwaffe has done all in its power to defeat the R. A. F. Some experts now begin to think that the risks of an invasion are altogether too great, and that none is planned. If invasion plans have indeed been abandoned, then the third of the grand strategies will come into play.

THIS IS to cut the British lifelines at every possible point, and to destroy all possible production facilities in Britain, with the purpose of bleeding the British to death rather than knocking them out with one blow. Under this strategy, there would probably be the same sort of show in the Mediterranean and attack on Singapore as are called for by the strategy of the assault on all fronts. There would also be intensive submarine warfare, aimed at starving the British Isles, and air attacks on Britain aimed more at general destruction rather than the defeat of the R. A. F.

KINTNER

As Churchill wisely admitted, no one can tell as yet which strategy will be followed. Some military experts believe in one, some in another. The important point is that one or another of these appalling chains of events is now beginning to unwind. It is no time to despair. But it is time—it is long past time—to realize that grave and difficult decisions lie immediately ahead.

First Revision of Catholic Bible Since 1749 to Be Issued in May

By the Associated Press

Kansas City, Feb. 17.—Bishop Edwin O'Hara, of Kansas City, said tonight the first revision since 1749 of the English translation of the Catholic New Testament would be published in May.

The new edition is a modernized version of Bible text last revised by Bishop Richard Challoner, of London, 192 years ago. Its language has been brought up to date, changes have been made in certain intrepretations of ancient texts and modern printing styles are employed.

This revision is a product of nearly five years of work by a three-bishop committee headed by Bishop O'Hara on the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine and an editorial board composed of some of the Nation's outstanding scripture scholars. Serving on the committee with Bishop O'Hara were Archbishop John T. McNicholas, of Cincinnati, and Archbishop John Gregory Murray, of St. Paul.

European Bible authorities advised editorial board members, who worked separately on different passages but who met twice a year in New York, Bishop O'Hara said.

The new edition will contain about 300,000 words on 800 pages.

Bishop O'Hara said Sunday, May 18, would be observed throughout the United States to launch usage of the revised edition.

The confraternity has started a similar modernization of the Catholic Old Testament, but this work will not be completed for two or three years.

In the revised edition, the third person of the Blessed Trinity is referred to as the "Holy Spirit" instead of "Holy Ghost" in an effort to give a more exact translation of the Latin word "Spiritus." However, this will not affect use of "Holy Ghost" in popular Catholic prayers.

Original terms are retained when there is no modern word to express exactly their meaning, but outmoded forms such as "saith," "calleth" and "took place" have been changed to the simple past tense—"said," "called" and "was."

The familiar and, to scholars, controversial fourteenth verse in the eleventh chapter of St. Luke on the Christmas story: "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace to men of good will," has been changed to:

"Glory to God in the highest, and peace on earth to men of good will."

Eve Curie Tells Of Complaints In French Letters

Thousands of letters are being received in England from France complaining of conditions in the defeated country, Eve Curie, a guest at the White House, said yesterday.

The dark-haired author and lecturer, who has been working with Gen. de Gaulle in London, said many of the letters were addressed simply "England." Others were sent to French people who have been broadcasting from England.

Mlle. Curie, daughter of the discoverer of radium, will return to war-torn London in May, shortly after a lecture tour of the United States. At Mrs. Roosevelt's press conference yesterday she told how a million English women are marshaled for home defense under Lady Reading, chairman of the Women's Volunteer Service. The districts are organized down to the last detail in the event of invasion, and one group even has charge of taking care of all animals, who will be taken to a spot of safety and provided with their own doctors should the worst happen.

Fair Enough

The Other Side

INASMUCH AS the United States Supreme Court recently split ways on a simple issue, I see no reason to maintain my usual bashful reticence on the case involved.

The admitted fact is that the Carpenters' Union broke an agreement to arbitrate a dispute with the Machinists' Union over the division of work on a construction job in St. Louis, and not only struck the employer, who makes beer, but declared that he had been unfair to organized labor. No part of the Supreme Court found that the employer actually was unfair, and even the majority opinion, written by Justice Frankfurter, admits that the carpenters, having agreed to arbitrate, nevertheless refused to do so and struck. I am about to concern myself with the truth or falsity of the public representation by the carpenters that the employer was unfair in these particular circumstances, a representation which damaged the business of the employer to a serious extent, and the duty of the public to investigate such claims by labor organizations which Justice Frankfurter describes as "a familiar practice in these situations."

I am unable to determine with absolute conviction whether Justice Frankfurter meant to suggest that, because this claim was "familiar practice" it was allowable and worthy, or to point an evil which, in his mind, invites remedial legislation. By the tone of the context which, incidentally, sounds to me like legalistic double-talk, I am given to suspect that he does not disapprove but is inclined to regard the claim made in this particular situation as a mere fib. It will be remembered that nowhere in his long, and to me, cloudy essay on the case, did he positively find that the employer had been unfair and that, on the contrary, he did say that the carpenters, having agreed to arbitrate, nevertheless refused to do so.

THE MINORITY opinion, written by Justice Roberts, with the concurrence of Chief Justice Hughes, finds that the majority of the court has, in effect, repealed the liability of unions for damages inflicted on innocent parties in the prosecution of interunion disputes, and, I would add, in contempt for their agreement.

In this case the employer was either fair or unfair, and if he was fair, then the representation by the union to the contrary must have been a falsehood, which wrought serious harm to his business and violated his rights, which are no less precious, not only to him but to the whole community, than the rights of any union.

Many citizens have suffered great financial loss from the presence of pickets carrying banners declaring them to be unfair when they were, in fact, not only fair to their employes but courageous defenders of the workers' right to remain free, unorganized men. The power of the picket line to destroy the trade of a store or the popularity of a product has been wickedly abused many times. It may be used as a weapon for blackmail, as the Supreme Court surely must have heard by now, and this fact puts it up to the public to hear both sides of any dispute and ignore pickets and flout boycotts when the facts acquit the employer of wrong. It is not good citizenship to assume that because a union says an employer is unfair he deserves to be shunned by his customers, for he and those employed by him may be the victims of conspiracy, falsehood and a racket.

IF, at this pont, I were to say flatly that Justice Frankfurter had accepted a bribe from a litigant before the court he would not, I am confident, submit to the foul libel for an hour. I would be snatched baldheaded for contempt, and I never could hope to earn enough to pay the damages to which he would be entitled.

But for me to say that would be no more harmful or immoral nor any more justifiable than it is of a union to spread reports to the effect that an employer is unfair when he is faithfully observing the law and his agreements.

Of course, Congress can, and now probably will, redress the situation, but that will take time, and meanwhile the public may be reminded that it has a weapon for justice in its own hands. Unions have done much to discredit their picket lines and boycotts, and the burden of proof should now be assumed by them.

How Much Aid?

By Mark Sullivan

Passing The Milestones of Reluctance

RAPIDLY AMERICA races past the milestones of reluctance. Months ago we left behind us the point at which we were reluctant to give any help to Britain, or were very cautious about it, lest it involve us in war. That was when we enacted the neutrality law, in November, 1939. Then, during the campaign we arrived at a formula which, as expressed by both candidates, was, in effect, "every help to Britain—short of war." Today, so great is our momentum, it is not certain that we would be able to stop at the marker which says, "beyond this is war." Our difficulty is, we do not have command of our own rate of speed. The pace is set for us by Hitler.

SULLIVAN

Anyhow, at the present time we are all for help to Britain. On that there is substantial unity. Nearly every person in Congress who spoke on the lease-lend bill, for it or against it, began his speech with, "I am for help to Britain." Both groups as a rule put a limit on the amount of help—even though the limit was vague, and even though nearly all differed on what the limit should be. Hardly any went the whole way; hardly anyone said he favored throwing every American resource into the pool of British defense.

If we are not to give all, then the question is, how much? To that, the answer in most minds is, "as much as we can prudently spare, having in mind what we ought to keep for our own defense, in case Britain should go down." Just how much that is, few are equipped to know. The average citizen cannot possibly know. Not many in Congress can know—as a rule only the members of the Military and Naval Committees who have special experience and special access to information.

THE QUESTION is technical, only to be answered adequately by military and naval experts and authorities. Even they do not always agree. Secretary of the Navy Knox says firmly that we cannot spare more destroyers to the British. Mr. Knox's official superior, the Commander in Chief of the Navy, President Roosevelt, though not explicit on the point, seems to think we can.

Last summer and fall we transferred 50 destroyers to Britain. Was that wise from our point of view? Surely yes. Up to now, from the standpoint of American interest, the best possible place for those destroyers to be was just where they are, holding Hitler back. For in proportion as Hitler is held back, America is served.

If Britain completely holds Hitler back, then we are safe, then we will be able to cease our preparedness. If by some turn of events Britain were victor tomorrow, we should breathe freely, sleep well o' nights for the first time in a year and a half, and reduce our feverish effort for preparedness to ordinary proportions.

Up to now, the best place for those destroyers was where Britain has them. But now comes threat to us from the Far East, from Japan. The threat seems to suggest that we need to have a strong navy there—probably this is at the bottom of Secretary Knox's reluctance to give up any more destroyers. And probably, if the threat from Japan becomes actual, Mr. Knox might be glad to have those 50 destroyers we transferred to Britain.

But the threat to us by Japan is related to the threat by Hitler against Britain. In well-informed belief, the two threats come from a common source, the Germany-Italy-Japan Axis. Almost certainly the two threats are deliberately coordinated. Japan threatens us as a way to prevent us from giving help to Britain. Japan will actually attack us only if and when Hitler begins concentrated attack on Britain, and if Japan thinks Hitler is going to win. What is happening, the very heart of this war, is an attempt by the Axis to get world-wide command of all the oceans.

IF THE THREAT of Japan against us, and of Hitler against Britain, are parts of a common plan, if they come from a common source, is it not logical that defense by the United States and defense by Britain should have a common direction—in short, that the American navy and the British navy should be operated by mutual understanding? If, for the common purpose, we have ships or other equipment that could be more effectively used by Britain and if Britain has ships or other armament that could be more effectively used by us, would not mutual exchange of surplus be logical? It is likely that this need is recognized, and that this recognition accounts for those provisions of the lease-lend bill which would enable us to transfer ships to Britain and also to acquire ships from Britain, and also to repair British ships in American yards.

All this proceeds logically from a premise about the war as a whole. If Britain is fighting to save herself from actual attack by Hitler, and if we are arming to preserve ourselves from potential attack by Hitler, then the two nations have so nearly a common purpose as to make common pursuit of the purpose appropriate. The only way to deny this is to deny that the purpose of our arming is to defend ourselves against Hitler. But if we are not arming ourselves for defense against Hitler, for what purpose are we arming at all?

Zoo's Who . . .No. 2

By Gerald G. Gross

The wart hog is an ugly beast,
On that there's no dispute.
But this much must be said, at least,
He doesn't give a hoot.

He's 6 years old, his name is Petes,
And honestly to gracious
His appetite for hay and sweets
Is actually voracious.

Born in the Zoo, his only home
Has been right here, oui ici,
That means, you ask, he cannot roam?
'Course not! He runs on D. C.

Some Heady Headliners Are Booked for Earle

Notable Stage Bills Coming to Thirteenth St.; The Variety Club Ladies a Ladies Luncheon; This, That and the Other About the Theater

HAVING RUN UP a pretty imposing roster of film attractions for ensuing weeks—practically all of which have been embalmed in ink long before this—the Warner Brothers interests in Washington now are bearing down upon the great diapason in behalf of the stage headliners they have signed on the perforated line for imminent engagements at the Earle Theater.

BELL

Among the foremost of these, due on Thirteenth Street the week of Friday, February 28, is Cass Daley, that explosively grotesque young singing comedienne, recently seen on the stage of the National Theater with the late Joe Penner in the revamped version of "Yokel Boy," brought to a sudden halt in its tour by the shockingly sudden and untimely death of its star. It is to be hoped that the eccentric Miss Daley's impending repertoire will include the "Catherine the Great" number from the musical—an item she distinguishes by exceptional interpretation, although without that male chorus I wouldn't be too sure.

For the week of March 14, Managing Director Harry Anger has booked "Streets of Paris," cagily condensed to the Earle's tabloid purposes. In addition to having been a smash hit on Broadway, this frivolously frank frolic was a later hit at the New York World's Fair. This is the one in which the quivering Carmen Miranda introduced that unctuous and inescapable "Souse American Way." There is no hope, however, that Miss Miranda will be walking the "Streets of Paris" when they overlay our downtown thoroughfare.

Then, on March 21, will come Charlie Spivak and His Orchestra. This booking should intrigue the local amusement-seeker, since Charlie started his band right here in the Capital—or almost. They rehearsed in one of the suburban night spots against the cinching of their long-run engagement at the Glen Island Casino, where they were held over longer than any other band.

Chief Barker Hardie Meakin, of the Washington Variety Club, must carry a rabbit's foot in his protuberant vest pocket. The club's 1941 luncheons, under his gavel, have set new high points in attendance and camaraderie, as such things go in the annals of the showmen's organization. Yesterday's combination St. Valentines-Washington's Birthday prandial pastiming, in honor of the ladies of Variety, was a fancy and felicitous occasion. With Archie Engel and Eddie Melniker as "kings for the day," the affair was run off at a high pitch of friendly funmaking, with Eileen Ritter, from the Earle, putting on an impromptu "Sing-a-Song-with-Mike" session that would have been ruined had all those she called upon to sing accepted her challenge. Mr. Coe and Mr. Bell, for example, know their pipes have been corroded since a time when the memory of man runneth not to the contrary. But that Dan Terrell fellow! Oh, Martha! The Pitchmen, also from the Earle, carried the gormandizers out in their coat pockets.

What has become of some of the gelatin great and near-great who were recent visitors in Washington? This is what has become of some of them:

Glenn Ford, who steps right up there into costellar prominence with Fredric March, Margaret Sullavan and Frances Dee in "So Ends Our Night," next at Loew's Palace, arrived back in Hollywood last Monday after a week in New York, following the President's Birthday Celebrations in Washington. Next assignment not known, but United Artists is not letting him out of sight. Stirling Hayden young sailor-of-fortune turned film actor, is making a personal appearance tour of his native New England, where he has not been seen since crashing the heights with Madeleine Carroll and Fred MacMurray in "Virginia." As soon as this tour of duty is ended, back to Hollywood as Dot Lamour's lead in "Dildo Cay." With the screen play by Laurence Stallings and Zoltan Korda nearing completion, Alexander Korda is pulling in the reins on Sabu for the top role of Mowgli in his picturization of Kipling's "The Jungle Book." Remember "The Thief of Bagdad"? Forrest Tucker, the local lad who leaped high in Samuel Goldwyn's "The Westerner," with Gary Cooper, has been added to the cast of "New Wine," which already includes Ilona Massey, Alan Curtis, Binnie Barnes, Albert Basserman, Billy Gilbert and Sterling Halloway. So now you know.

So tomorrow, David L. Loew and Albert Lewin, producers of "So Ends Our Night," will be Washington visitors, scheduled for the travail of being pestered by the drama desks at a luncheon at the Carlton, hosted by Eastern Division Manager Carter Barron, of Loew's, Inc. Two erudite gentlemen who deserve a kindlier fate.

Personal aside to Henry Hiser, of the Hiser Theater, Bethesda, Md.: Sorry that Variety Club luncheon blacked us out of your visit and generous "Christmas in February." Dick Coe and both are sorry and grateful.

The first 25 "strawberry blondes" who present themselves at the Earle Theater on Friday morning will be admitted free-gratis-for-nothing to see Jimmy Cagney and Olivia de Havilland in "Strawberry Blonde," as guests of the management. Even a fireman, radish or tomato blonde might slip by. Maybe the doorman is color blind.

While-London-Sleeps Note

Jeeter Lester Expands His Drab Deviltry

By Richard L. Coe

"TOBACCO ROAD," Jack Kirkland presents his play in three acts based on the novel by Erskine Caldwell. Directed by Anthony Brown; setting by Robert Edington Sharpe. At the National Theater.

THE CAST:

Dude Lester .....Walt Draper
Ada Lester .....Sara Perry
Jeeter Lester .....John Barton
Ellie May .....Sheila Brent
Grandma Lester .....Lillian Ardell
Lov Bensey .....William Dorme
Henry Peabody .....Dick Lee
Sister Bessie Rice .....Florence Dunlap
Pearl .....Eugenia Wilson
Captain Tim .....William Robertson
George Payne .....Walter Ayers

Had Jeeter Lester, family man, had any more offspring, you could not have found room for them on the National stage last night, any more than you could have found a chair for another larger patron at the "Tobacco Road" opening.

Believe it or not, this seventh engagement in Washington of that fabulous saga of the turnip patch finds seats so few that three extra performances have been added overnight—one Friday afternoon; two Sunday, matinee and evening.

Obviously a first visit for many of last night's full house, it was as evident that they were fascinated and shocked. Shocked by an existence which makes the Lesters' plight one for a nation, shocked by the actions they saw, shocked by the language they heard. And fascinated by John Barton's always human, even lovable, Jeeter Lester.

It was performance No. 1361 for the one-time vaudevillian, now celebrating his fiftieth anniversary on the stage, and it's hardly likely Barton's ever given a better one. For, with all his clowning and gags, he snapped into the hopelessness of that ending so skillfully that an audience which had spent most of the evening laughing, practically tip-toed out of the theater.

No one has ever called "Tobacco Road" a great play or even a particularly good one. But, as Jeeter definitely wouldn't put it, it's goldarned good theater and that's what makes eight-year runs in New York.

Daughter Secondary to Land

In case the story of "Tobacco Road" isn't as familiar to you as the story of "Snow White" (which it in no way resembles), imagine a dirt road in Georgia, time the present. In a shack by the side of the road live the Lesters, father Jeeter, a farmer by instinct but with only barren land to till; mother Ada, wanting only a stylish dress to be buried in; sister Ellie May, taunted for her split lip; Dude, "not very bright" to quote his father, but deemed a worthy catch by hymn-singing Sister Bessie, who once walked the streets, and now ostentatiously hits the road for God, and old grandma Lester, who shuffles around, collects sticks and never speaks a word.

Ada's beautiful daughter by another man (Jeeter was off the property fixing a mule) is Pearl, who has just run away from her husband, Lov. He makes a dollar a day and offers $2 a week to Jeeter if he'll only get Pearl back for him. When the bank threatens to take over the property and kick the Lesters off their hereditary land, Jeeter sees no other way but to sell Pearl back to her husband.

Originally, the play was nearly as somber as that stark telling, but the character of Jeeter, the richness of the role and the brilliance of the acting which Jeeters, from Henry Hull on, have brought to it make for laughs that startle and amuse.

Barton's Jeeter Expands

Barton's Jeeter seems to this observer a fuller, more resourceful portrayal than the ones he saw him play umpteen performances ago. He seems to have introduced more bits of business as laugh-getters, but they are always logical ones, well within the character, despite the fact they're gags with as long a lineage as Jeeter's. As a result, the fellow is more human, very nearly endearing, for all his incestuousness, his inertia, his filth.

The balance of the company is largely familiar, with William Dorme, who played the role two years ago, scoring particularly as Lov, the bewildered husband who wants his wife back. Sara Perry's Ada still strikes one as overdrawn and artificial. Florence Dunlap's Sister Bessie is new here and would be more credible in dresses that don't seem quite so new and a hair arrangement that doesn't suggest a nearby beautician's. Walt Draper's Dude is unfamiliar, also properly succinct in his blasphemy.

So "Tobacco Road" rolls on through its "farewell tour." If you haven't seen it, you'll probably spend years regretting it and if you have, you'll find John Barton and associates a completely representative company for one of the wonders of our day.

The Cause of All the Trouble

who appears in the role of Pearl, the favored daughter of the Lester family, in Jack Kirkland's dramatization of Erskine Caldwell's "Tobacco Road," playing its farewell Washington engagement at the National Theater this week. John Barton, the fourth time around, continues in the role of Jeeter Lester, originally portrayed by Henry Hull

Leonard Lyons:

New York, Feb. 17.

LAST NOVEMBER, when the Al Jolson show was playing to standees, Ben Bernie asked Al about his plans for a Miami vacation. "Oh, no," Jolson vowed. "With a hit show on my hands, after being away from Broadway for so many years, I'm not going South" . . . With witnesses present to certify the wager, Bernie thereupon made a $250 bet with Jolson that when the first vacationer returned from the South, with a tan heavier than Al's, the star would pack up and go . . . Bernie now is trying to collect that bet. Jolson has affidavits from his physician attesting that it was his health and not a longing for Miami which impelled the trip. But Bernie insists upon collecting, and concedes: "I win on a technicality—but I win."

NOW COMES Wellington Roe, who declares that he spent some time with Krivitsky the week before his death, and that Krivitsky was emotionally upset. Roe is writing an article to support the suicide theory . . . Douglas Hertz, owner of the New York Football Yankees, brought John Kimbrough, the Texan All-America, to the Stork Club and Copacabana. At 3:30 a. m. they informed that Kimbrough received a one-year deferment from the Army and will play for the Yankees next season for $12,500, plus a guarantee of an additional $25,000 for testimonials, broadcasts, etc. Hertz also informed that he had signed Kimbrough's teammates, Thomason and Robbnet, as well as Fordham's captain, De Fillipo . . . The next hearings of the Coudert Committee will be directed toward Nazi and Fascist sympathizers in the schools.

WHEN CHARLIE CHAPLIN visited the White House he sat across the table from the President—who began to discuss "The Great Dictator" and its censorship in South America . . . Chaplin indicated that he'd rather discuss another subject . . . "I'd like to talk about monetary systems," said Chaplin, who has $2,000,000 invested in "The Great Dictator." "I know you haven't the time now, but when I come back I'd like to talk over the Treasury's wonderful fiscal policy—where, with the stroke of a pen, gold reserves and millions can be altered and saved."

GEORGE L. STEER, who covered the Ethiopian war for the London Times, is now working as Britain's liaison officer with Haile Selassie . . . Selassie's Empress Menen has joined her husband, making the trip via Jerusalem . . . Lynn Farnol will be Sam Goldwyn's publicity director in the East . . . Mark Warnow will offer a concert of contemporary American music at Carnegie Hall in May. He'll augment his 45-piece orchestra with 50 instrumentalists . . . Jack Rieger, who supervises the production of all the prizefight pictures, will beat M-G-M to the showing of a third dimension stereoscopic picture . . . Jimmy Stewart will sing for the first time in James Roosevelt's "Pot o' Gold." His song will be "When Johnny Toots His Horn."

CARMEN AMAYA, the dancer, owes her good fortune to the astuteness of Abe Lastfogel, of the William Morris agency. She and her family were brought to this country by S. Hurok, who had contracted to pay them $2,000 a week. Hurok called upon Lastfogel for assistance, for the contract provided that she was to start collecting that salary on February 15, and Hurok as yet had no engagement for her. The agent watched her audition in an empty theater hired for the occasion. He phoned Monte Proser, proprietor of the Beachcomber, and induced Proser to sign her without even seeing her . . . Now the Beachcomber again is doing capacity business, the fiery Amaya, signed for ten weeks, is making more money than she's ever earned before. Lastfogel is receiving commissions and the relieved Hurok is thriving.

ZORINA, called to the stage at the press photographers' ball recently, nervously confessed: "For the first time in my life, I wish I were Milton Berle" . . . Last year M-G-M created a farm setting in Florida as the location for the screening of "The Yearling." The farm now is in full operation and shows a profit . . . Richard Knight, the man who stood on his head at the Metropolitan, approached Dolores del Rio's table at Fefe's Monte Carlo and greeted her as a friend of long standing. The star politely hinted that she never had met him. "When I met you," he reminded, "I also met your husband, Frank Chapman." Miss del Rio replied: "In that case, I remember the meeting very well—if my name is Gladys Swarthout."

Louella O. Parsons'

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, Feb. 17 (INS).—It's no longer a secret that Carmen Miranda and the Shuberts are having trouble over her stage contract. As usual in these disputes, there are two sides: The Shuberts claim they have an iron-bound deal with Senorita Miranda calling for her to appear on Broadway at the price stipulated before she went to Hollywood. Since her movie success came after the contract was signed, they see no reason for jumping the salary.

PARSONS

Carmen, on the other hand, claims she is ready, willing and able to work for them, but she feels certain adjustments must be made in the financial clause. Carmen's agent says "t'aint" true that she's trying to hold up the Messrs. Shubert.

"The war is not the Nazis against democracy, as much as the spiritual issue involved. It's the Nazis against God," Robert Buckner, Warner writer, says. Buckner has written a story, "How Still We See" with a theme which tends to show the lack of religion in the world today. Father Cavanaugh, of Notre Dame, has read and endorses the story and believes every denomination will want to get back of the Buckner idea.

The gossip that Alice Faye has been kicking up her heels and threatening to free lance is past history now. Alice has signed a new two-year contract with Twentieth Century-Fox after a series of negotiations which went on for days. She got what she wanted and the studio got what they wanted, so everybody's happy.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Sylvia Fairbanks went to the ballet with Charlie Chaplin and I hate to tell on her but she sold tickets to the pay cocktail party she and Lady Mendl are giving tomorrow night. Mary Pickford, who will wear one of the hats to be auctioned off, got herself a very becoming one. I promised to wear one of the John Fredericks hats to be donated; both Lady Mendl and Sylvia are eager not to have any of the guests held up for too much money and the plans they've made promise to make this one of the most interesting cocktail parties ever given in Hollywood.

Hollywood's most popular malady—wisdom tooth trouble—now has Ida Lupino down; Robert Taylor is flying to Mexico to add the 11 more hours necessary to his flying record; Gene Tierney—a picture if ever I saw one—at Ciro's with Bob Sterling; Kay Francis has rented Tom Douglas' Palm Springs house and will take a rest and vacation.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

In Hollywood

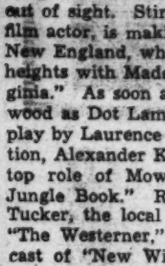
Hollywood, Feb. 17.

It's not always glamour that glitters. Common sense comes out of that pretty head of Marlene Dietrich. While talking with me the other day she said, "It's poppycock about women being good listeners and letting men go on about themselves. Conversation is dialogue, not monologue."



HOPPER

Marlene believes women are more self-centered, less intelligent than men. Women think in circles while men go directly to the point. Many women don't realize this—therefore, help their men less than they should, or could. She doesn't like meeting important people casually. To her, the greatest actor in the world is Raimu, who played in "The Baker's Wife." And the finest man, in her choice, is Joe von Sternberg, who, she says, has the most sparkling, creative, logical mind she's met.

Well, Marlene may be right, but I still think the women of America should get busy—and quickly—and air their views on this lend-lease bill controversy that's going on in Washington. After all, the women of America have the vote, and they control more than half the wealth of our country—and they're doing nothing. I'm for all aid to Britain, but not the lend-lease bill. Isn't that pretty nearly the way Hitler got his power, supposedly from the people? I'm just asking you.

Franchot Tone seems to be up to his old tricks. Didn't like his part on the Screen Guild show with Norma Shearer, so they got Walter Abel—and what you got was a fine performance.

Do you remember Dolores, the most beautiful English show girl Ziegfeld ever had? She had a rare sense of humor, too. Fannie Brice tells me she's in a concentration camp in France.

Couldn't verify it, but hear Hal Wallis paid $175,000 for "Arsenic and Old Lace" and 15 per cent of the gross—which has to be divided between 21 backers and writers. Boy! At those prices it's going to pay to begin writing again.

Bob Taylor bought a plane for $8,000, learned to fly it. He was good, too. Miss Stanwyck didn't like her husband flying. Plane is now up for sale. Roy del Ruth may buy it for his son.

Since my squib about some of our English colony not contributing to their homeland, money's been pouring in to the British Relief like mad. One man brought in $2,000, so I'm crossing off names one by one, and if it continues the way it's been going the past few days, I'll be left "listless"—which will make me very happy.

The Albert Laskers have been sunning themselves in Palm Springs. Come Friday, the Sam Goldwyns will dine them. Incidentally, the new Mrs. Lasker couldn't be more charming. Instead of Rosemary Lane being secretly married to Buddy Westmore, they no longer speak as they pass by.

I hear that if Joan Fontaine plays "Jane Eyre," she'll put up a battle to have hubby Brian Aherne play Rochester. He'd be good, too.

Contract hasn't been signed yet, but Warners are trying to get Sam Goldwyn to produce "Little Foxes," with Bette Davis, at their studio, and release it through their company. So far, Sam hasn't said no.

Private Sidney Kent, Jr., Likes It in the Army Now

By Hope Ridings Miller

IN THE ARMY NOW is Sidney Kent, jr., personable and popular member of Washington's younger set, who recommends a soldier's training schedule for any glamour boy who may be weary of the social whirl.

Hope Ridings Miller

"This life will either make or break you," he has written back to a Washington friend. "I like it."

One of the first young men in the Capital contingent called to the colors, Sidney left several weeks ago for Fort Meade, Md., and had hardly arrived there when he was taken down with influenza and landed in the post hospital. Recovering recently, he was sent on down to Fort Monroe, Va., where he has been learning all about Army life.

"It's a great experience," he writes, "and after I get all limbered up and used to the regimented round of to-bed-at-9-and-up-at-6, I'm really going to enjoy the whole business.

"They drill us all morning until we can hardly walk another step and then we eat—and how we eat. (My waistline is growing instead of disappearing) . . . I certainly miss Washington, the Chevy Chase Club and all my deb friends, but this year will go in a hurry, I hope; and before I know it, I'll be back in Washington circulation."

According to present plans Private Kent will stay at Fort Monroe (Battery G) until July when he is going to try to enter the three months officers' training course. (He probably "wants to be a captain, too," but he modestly avers that he will be happy if he can get a commission as second lieutenant before the year is up.).

"This really is something I wouldn't have missed for the world," Sidney continues. "I have met all kinds of boys from all walks of life, and they come from all over the country. It's all a liberal education and a fascinating proposition."

SOCIETY-GO-ROUND: Mrs. Wayne Chatfield-Taylor will entertain at a farewell luncheon today for Mrs. Charles Baker, who will leave next week to join Commander Baker in California . . . Mrs. Bishop Hill has joined her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Worthington, of Washington and Shawnee-on-Delaware, at the Palm Beach Biltmore. Mrs. Hill went to Ormond Beach by way of the inland waterway and continued to Palm Beach by motor . . . The Minister of Sweden and Mme. Bostrom will have guests dining with them tomorrow evening . . . Mr. and Mrs. Bayard Schieffelin, of New York, have leased from Mrs. McCeney Werlich the restored colonial house which she recently purchased in Alexandria. Mr. Schieffelin has come to Washington "for the duration" and is on duty in the office of Assistant Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson . . . Mr. and Mrs. Merle Thorpe are vacationing in Palm Beach . . . Back in town for a brief stay is Mrs. H. Alexander Walker, of Hawaii, who will be off tomorrow for Boston. She served as sponsor of S. S. Hawaiian Planter, which was launched a few days ago at Newport News. Among those who accompanied her to the shipyard for the ceremony were Mrs. Bennet Champ Clark, Representative and Mrs. Otis Schuyler Bland, Mrs. Edmund Horgan, Mrs. William A. Morgan, Mrs. Halbert E. Payne and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Green.

IMPERTINENT PATTER: Members of the Women's National Press Club are still wondering why Mrs. Wendell L. Willkie did not accompany her husband to Washington when he came on Sunday to attend the tea at the Willard Hotel. A special invitation was sent to Mrs. Willkie and there was an understanding that she would be here. When her husband came without her, however, he offered no explanation. Following the press tea he was feted at a dinner given by Mrs. Robert Low Bacon who, just as he was leaving the tea, stopped him to say, "I'll expect you at 7:30."

"I'll be there at a quarter to 8," he said with his usual ingratiating smile. But I understand he arrived a good deal later than that. Promptness, it seems, is not one of Mr. Willkie's virtues.

Notes of Society

MISS COURTNEY LOUISE STILLWELL

Engagement of Senora de Espil's Daughter Will Be Told Today; Wedding Planned for March 14

The Argentine Ambassador and Senora de Espil will announce at a tea today the engagement of the latter's daughter, Miss Courtney Louise Stillwell, to Randall Hagner, jr.

The prospective bride is the daughter of Wellesley H. Stillwell, of Wye Hall, Queenstown, Md., and Chicago, and the granddaughter of Mrs. Frank Letts, of Washington. Her brother is Homer Stillwell. Miss Stillwell was graduated from Chatham Hall and attended the French School in New York last year. She made her debut at a large afternoon reception at the embassy on June 8, 1940.

Mr. Hagner is the son of Mrs. Randall H. Hagner, of Washington, and the late Mr. Hagner. He was graduated from the Hill School in 1934 and attended Georgetown University until the death of his father several years ago. Since then he has been with the Randall H. Hagner Co. He is a brother of Mrs. F. Moran McConihe, the former Miss Marguerite Hagner, and of Miss Bella Hagner.

The wedding will take place March 14. Senora de Espil will return today from a vacation of several weeks in Florida.

Talk Scheduled By Playwright

Mrs. Arthur Fowler, of Leroy Place, today will welcome the eminent British playwright, Frederic Lonsdale, for a brief visit. He is coming here from Palm Beach, where he stayed with Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Williams, to speak at the benefit tomorrow afternoon at Anderson House for French refugees in England.

Cecil Roberts, British writer who is making a tour of principal American cities to help raise funds, also will be a speaker. He will arrive tomorrow with the Countess of Abingdon, who is chairman of refugees in England.

Mrs. Carlton Holdrege is chairman of the music committee for the event. Working with her are Mrs. Charles Dewey, Princess Boncompagni, Mme. Lombard, Mrs. Randolph Miner, Mrs. McCeney Werlich, Mrs. Sterling Lacy, Mrs. Stedman Hanks, Mrs. J. L. Houghteling, Mrs. Prentiss Coonley, Mrs. George Maurice Morris, Miss Lydia Loring, Mrs. Russell Sard and Mrs. Patrick Hurley.

Mrs. Roosevelt heads the list of patronesses.

Miss Thompson's Town Hall Talk To Draw Society

A distinguished audience will gather at Constitution Hall on Thursday evening, when Mrs. Roosevelt presides at the Town Hall meeting which Miss Dorothy Thompson will address.

Mrs. Henry Wallace, wife of the Vice President, will be a guest in Mrs. Howell Moorhead's box. Others in her party will be the Comptroller of the Currency and Mrs. Preston Delano.

Justice and Mrs. William O. Douglas have been asked to the meeting by Mrs. Bruce Smith. Also with her will be Assistant Attorney General and Mrs. Thurman Arnold and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel O. Clark.

The Turkish Ambassador and Mme. Ertegun will accompany Dr. and Mrs. Frank Bohn. Mrs. Richard V. Oulahan, director of the Town Hall, will have with her Mr. and Mrs. Robinson Glancy. With the Portuguese Minister and Mme. de Bianchi will be the latter's daughter, Miss Sibilla Skidelsky, and Representative and Mrs. Sol Bloom and Miss Vera Bloom.

Other boxholders are the South African Minister and Mrs. Ralph William Close, Mrs. Huston Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. John McClure, Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Tompkins, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Meyer, Mrs. Jacob Leander Loose, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel C. Roper, Mrs. John W. Studebaker, Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld, Mrs. Emile Berliner, Miss Bessie Kibbey and Miss Mary B. Adams.

Dorothy Kearney To Wed in Texas

Mr. and Mrs. Meville D. Kearney, of Arlington, Va., announce the engagement of their daughter, Dorothy Joyce Kearney, to John Patrick Walsh, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Reynolds Walsh of Washington.

The marriage will take place February 22 in Corpus Christi, Tex., where Mr. Walsh is now employed on the National Defense program.

Pettengills Give Dance

The commandant of the Navy Yard, Rear Admiral George T. Pettengill, and Mrs. Pettengill entertained last evening at their quarters in the Navy Yard, at a dinner in honor of Miss Nancy Leiter and Thomas Clagett, whose marriage will take place on Saturday.

Following the dinner, an additional group of young people came in for dancing to the strains of the Navy Band Orchestra. At midnight a light buffet supper was served. Among the guests attending were Mr. and Mrs. James Wimsatt, the former of whom will be the best man at the wedding; Mr. and Mrs. F. Moran McConihe, Miss Audrey Campbell, Thomas Leiter, brother of the bride, who will give her in marriage; Miss Louise Stillwell, Randall Hagner, jr., Miss Elizabeth Clagett, James Mitchell, John Pitney, Duncan Pitney and Samuel D. Foster, of Annapolis.

Mrs. F. Lammot Belin entertained at a tea yesterday afternoon in honor of Miss Leiter and Mrs. Clagett. Guests, who included members of the wedding party and a number of other friends, were invited for "after 5 o'clock" at Everymay, the Belin home.

The Townsends To Have Guests At Concert Tonight

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Townsend will have Mrs. Patrick Hurley, Senator Theodore F. Green of Rhode Island, and Denys Smith, Washington correspondent for the London Daily Telegraph, as their guests for the concert by the Philadelphia Orchestra at Constitution Hall this evening. A few days later, the Townsends will leave for their cottage at Pass-a-Grille, Fla., where they will spend the spring.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Woodward and Mrs. Edwin M. Watson will have Baron and Baroness van Boetzelaer of the Netherlands Legation with them in their box for this concert.

Mrs. Watson, who is known professionally as Frances Nash Watson, one of America's foremost pianists, will play a concerto by the American composer, Edward MacDowell, on the next program of the Philadelphia Orchestra in Washington March 18.

The soloists for the program will be Enid Szantho, contralto of the Metropolitan Opera Co., and Edna Phillips, first harpist of the orchestra.

Senhora de Martins To Tell Benefit Plans

At a tea this afternoon at the Brazilian Embassy, Senhora de Martins, wife of the Ambassador, will reveal plans for a spectacular tea and fashion show to be held at the Embassy March 27. The affair will raise funds for the American Red Cross.

Both clothes and models will be imported from New York for the occasion. There will be dancing as well as the showing of new ensembles, and the event promises to be one of the gayest of the season.

'Evening of Song for Soldiers' Entertains White House Guests

"An Evening of American Song for American Soldiers" was the theme of a party held last night at the White House. After dinner a distinguished group of guests gathered in the East Room to hear a program of grass-root ballads, sea chanties, cowboy songs, breakdown tunes for fiddle and banjo, and Negro spirituals. The second party of the evening was given over to folk songs sung by a group of enlisted men from various branches of the armed services.

The Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Morgenthau, the Secretary of War and Mrs. Stimson, and Secretary of the Navy Col. Frank Knox headed the list of guests. Others present were the Undersecretary of War and Mrs. Robert P. Patterson, the Undersecretary of the Navy and Mrs. James V. Forrestal, the Chief of Staff, Gen. George C. Marshall, Maj. Gen. Thomas Holcomb, the Federal Security Administration and Mrs. Paul V. McNutt, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Russell R. Waesche, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Chester W. Nimitz, Brig. Gen. Edward A. Ostermann, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Wade H. Haislip, and Col. and Mrs. William H. Draper, jr.

Many Noted Guests Attend

Also Col. and Mrs. Lewis Kemper Williams, Mrs. Edward Bruce, Miss Elizabeth Ann Campbell, Thomas Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Clayton, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Coy, Mrs. George Gellhorn, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Hillman, Harry Hopkins, Acting WPA Commissioner and Mrs. Howard O. Hunter, Maj. and Mrs. Howard Ker, Mrs. Robert Y. Kerr, Mr. and Mrs. William S. Knudsen, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Macauley 3d, the Librarian of Congress and Mrs. Archibald MacLeish, Mrs. Anne O'Hare McCormick, James J. Thompson, Aubrey Williams, administrator of the National Youth Administration; Mrs. Williams, the Misses Mary and Harriet Winslow and Lieut. James H. Batte.

The table was decorated with red roses, white snapdragons, freesia and gloriosum fern. The singers were J. M. Hunt, of Marion, Va.; Wade Mainer and his Mountaineers, Asheville, N. C.; Burl Ives, of southern Illinois and New York; Joshua White, of Columbia, S. C., and the Golden Gate Quartet, of Norfolk, Va.

First Lady to Speak At Hunter College

The First Lady will be off tomorrow for New York, to speak that day at Hunter College. She will also take part in one of the "Friendship Bridge" broadcasts being held under the auspices of the British American Ambulance Corps, speaking from New York on a hookup to South Africa.

Mrs. Roosevelt will return to Washington in time to visit an exhibition of children's art to be held at 4 o'clock Thursday under the auspices of the Works Progress Administration. On Friday she will be guest of honor at a luncheon to be given by Mrs. Claude Wickard, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture. That afternoon Mrs. Roosevelt will go to Hyde Park, returning on Sunday morning to fill a speaking engagement that day at Virginia State College in Petersburg.

Last evening the First Lady dropped by for a few minutes to a dinner held at the Arts Club by her voice teacher, Mrs. Elizabeth Von Hesse. This afternoon at 4 o'clock she will be presented with a pin by the Women Flyers of America. The ceremony will be held at the White House.

Halifaxes Show Bomb Pieces

In the luggage Lord and Lady Halifax brought with them from England is a box containing bomb splinters picked up after Buckingham Palace was hit. Queen Elizabeth gave the souvenir to the Ambassador and his wife when they called at the Palace just before leaving England.

Lady Halifax exhibited the splinters at the tea which she gave yesterday afternoon for women of the press. The tall Ambassador received with her. The hostess, who is just up after an attack of flu, wore a powder blue wool dress and a silver fox scarf. A necklace of pearls and a diamond brooch completed her costume.

After tea in the dining room, the hosts and guests adjourned to the marble-columned drawing room, where they talked a bit about life in England during the war. Lady Halifax said that she had got so used to being allowed only a small amount of butter in England that over here, with that commodity plentiful, she finds she has rather lost her taste for it.

Even the older women in England are doing their bit toward war work, said the hostess. One friend, 75 years old, was walking home through the blackout after dining with the Halifaxes. An air raid warden came up and said it was his duty to see people home in the dark. "You needn't bother with me, young person," replied the dowager.

There are several silver-framed pictures of the royal family in the embassy ballroom. On the tables were vases of red and white carnations and gladioli.

Assisting Lord and Lady Halifax at the tea were the Embassy Counselor and Mrs. A. S. Childs, and Angus Malcolm, R. G. Etherington-Smith, Miss Barbara Wace and William Elmslie of the staff.

About the Town

with Dudley Harmon

DEAR DIARY:

Backstage in Baltimore the other evening to chat with Alexander Woollcott. He will stay at the White House when he comes here next week, they say. Joe Hennessy, who manages the famous Woollcott Island in New England, has promised to give his White House stationery to the actresses in the cast so they can impress their friends.

DUDLEY HARMON

From his wheel chair on the stage in "The Man Who Came to Dinner," Mr. Woollcott appears to be staring malevolently right at you if you have a seat near the front. Asked if he was focusing on this particular latecomer, he laughed and said, "No, it was probably an uncle." As a matter of fact, Mr. Woollcott admitted that he can't see two feet ahead of him on the stage.

In the course of the conversation, it developed that his phrase for us voteless Washingtonians is "civic capons."

MME. PROCOPE, I hear, diary, has a novel idea for raising money for Finland. With a group of friends who want to lose weight, she is thinking of organizing a weekly diet luncheon. Members will pay a dollar, in return for which they will get a cup of tea and some of that unattractive thin bread with which reducers afflict themselves.

At dinner the other evening Mme. Procope looked slim and handsome and not at all as though she needed to drop any pounds. The wife of the Finnish Minister is certainly an unusual young mother. She maintains that "all babies look just alike, even mine."

I WAS surprised to hear at a recent party that there's a board of trustees for the Washington Monument. They number 21, meet once a year for dinner, and decide—to leave the Monument alone!

Sad news is that the White House has decided every one of the recent fingerprinted cards for the press must be done over again. That means another two hours of waiting in line to be "mugged."

LELAND STOWE lunched with Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox during his Washington stay. Mr. Stowe is the most optimistic person seen around Washington for weeks. He says that only in the United States has he found defeatists. Every chambermaid in England, he reports, is armed with a shotgun!

Well, diary, Mr. Willkie certainly made an impression on the ladies at the tea given for him by the Women's National Press Club. Afterwards one young woman went to the telegraph office and sent the following wire to a friend, "Celebrated your birthday by meeting Willkie," "You're the seventh woman," said the messenger, "who's been in here this afternoon and telegraphed that she had just met Willkie."

EVE CURIE wore simple, unadorned black yesterday at Mrs. Roosevelt's press conference. Her high-necked silk crepe dress had no trimming of any kind. Her only ornament was a narrow gold link bracelet. Miss Curie hardly ever wears jewels.

DINING the other evening with Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. Villard, I heard that another Villard will shortly come to Washington. His arrival is expected to cause some confusion, as his name is Henry H. Villard. A professor at Amherst, he has been summoned by the Treasury Department. The newcomer is a cousin of "our" Mr. Villard and a brother of Dorothea Villard. His bride of a few months hopes to come with him, but at present is teaching dramatics at Smith College.

Dinner Given By Mrs. Miner

Mrs. Randolph Huntington Miner entertained at dinner last evening in her apartment at 2101 Connecticut Avenue. Guests were Mr. and Mrs. Prentiss Coonley, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Houghteling, Miss Carolyn Nash, Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Holdrege, Mrs. Vittorio Rivara, of San Francisco, cousin of the hostess; George Abell, Maj. Burdette Fitch and Ralph Snowden Hill.

Another party on Mrs. Miner's calendar in the next few days is the farewell cocktail fete at which she will entertain next Monday afternoon. Accompanied by Miss Carolyn Nash, Mrs. Miner will leave Washington February 26 for California. Mrs. Rivara, who has been visiting here for some time, will leave February 25 for Georgia, where she will visit friends before returning to the West Coast.

Jinx Again Hits Mrs. Sheen's Party

Practically a jinx party is the luncheon which was scheduled for today in honor of Miss Nancy Strong, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Alden G. Strong, for it has had to be postponed three times.

Mrs. Henry Holden Sheen, wife of Col. Sheen, first scheduled it for last fall, just prior to Miss Strong's debut. The illness of Mrs. Strong caused postponement then, and it was put off until a couple of weeks ago. An attack of the flu on the part of the hostess caused another delay. Yesterday Miss Strong, seized by an attack of acute appendicitis, underwent an operation, and will be out of circulation for a couple of weeks, after which Mrs. Sheen hopes to give the luncheon at the Army-Navy Town Club.

Wed to Man Who Is 'Mama's Boy and Only Child,' Girl Regards Divorce as Her Only Salvation; Yet He Threatens to Commit Suicide if She Leaves

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: People often speak of the misery of being married to a philanderer, or a drunkard or a gambler. But little is said about the most deadly of all individuals,—the immature man who marries a girl, promising to "love and cherish" her, takes her from a good home and then leads her a life so miserable that any "out," even suicide, looks to her like a glorious escape.

Such a man usually is a "mama's boy." Often (and even worse) he is an only child. And that's the kind of man to whom I am married. His mother has never reconciled herself to the marriage. She found fault with me constantly, until I went to work, after my husband had confessed he couldn't make enough money to support us and asked me: "What shall we do?"

He doesn't want a home, children, or married responsibilities. He wants only to have his own selfish way, neglecting all duties of companionship or courtesy to his wife; never seeking to improve himself in his job (and never being promoted); sulking when things go wrong; and complaining that his wife "nags" when she tries to spur him on.

I suppose the world is filled with men of this type. And these are the men who shout the loudest, when courting their wives: "I love you. I'd die for you. I'll never let you go." Then, having won the girl, they proceed to treat her as shabbily as they would treat a sworn enemy. And supposing the wife,—trying to salvage some peace of mind from the wreckage of her hopes; panting for a breathing spell away from him and his suffocatingly domineering mother,—asks for a divorce. He tells her, of course, that he will commit suicide if she leaves him. At least, this has been my experience.

Do such men ever learn to stand on their own feet? Or do they remain emotionally immature as long as they live? At times, Miss Haworth, you have written about "unhealthy personalities." Aren't such men "unhealthy" to be around? When I am away from my husband, I feel as if the air is cleaner, fresher, more wholesome. And when I am near him, I feel dragged down, depressed and as if I would give anything in the world to clear out and never see him again. What should I do, in a case like this? I honestly think I shall go crazy if I continue to live in this atmosphere; and yet my husband "carries on high," every time I suggest leaving. ARLENE.

'Every Tub Must Stand On Its Own Bottom'

DEAR ARLENE: If, at this time, you were yourself as "mature minded" as you would like your husband to be, you wouldn't waste precious energy reviling and condemning him for the wreckage of your hopes. Rather, you would hold yourself almost entirely accountable for your great disappointment. You would acknowledge the fact that he has always been as irresponsible and nonproductive as you now perceive him to be; and that your earlier supposition that he was a responsible, dependable man really amounted to a form of self-deception.

Women who allow themselves to be "swept off their feet" into marriage by the intoxicating flattery of a man who is long on promises and short on delivery, are the victims of their own gullibility;—and gullibility, as I have explained in this column before, is not to be confused with open-mindedness. Gullibility is a kind of gambler characteristic: an expectation of striking gold without doing much digging. Yet, as has been said, "anybody may make a mistake; but only a fool won't learn from experience."

The potentially wise person may, in his untried youth, make a foolhardy investment of all his resources;—with the hope of securing perennial ease. But if and when he finds himself "holding the bag," as a result; paying a stiffer penalty than he had ever dreamed of,—he doesn't lapse into lifelong recrimination of the person (or economic combine) that played him for a sucker. On the contrary, he takes stock of the situation; philosophically concedes that he has made a serious mistake in judgment, and sets himself the task of working his way out of the hole;—coolly determined never to make a like mistake in future. When such is his attitude, he is actually taking profit from reversal; perfecting his judgment and seasoning his character in the School of Experience.

In your case, having gullibly betrayed yourself into an intolerable position,—the sensible thing to do is to get yourself out of it again, on your own power. If your husband elects to "commit suicide" because you refuse to carry him through life on your shoulders,—why, that's his choice. There's an old saying that, "Every tub must stand on its own bottom,"—and your husband must either learn to displace his own weight, as it were, in the universe; or else collapse under the pressure of the cosmos. It is not your responsibility to try to compensate for his willful shortcomings.

However, it is your inalienable obligation to render to society the best possible accounting of your essential energies and talents. And if you find that your health is failing, your reason tottering and your ambition and social competence shriveling, as a result of residing with him,—you would be a fool and a coward not to leave him, no matter how much he may rave and rant at that decision.

You would be guilty, indeed, of an indirect form of self-destruction in continuing to live with him. It is axiomatic that two wrongs never made a right. His irresponsible attitude toward life is wrong; and wrong, too, is your hysterical catering to his weakness. The current situation is plainly productive of mounting mutual harm so, obviously, the only "right" thing within your power to do is to break away, and reclaim for yourself intellectual freedom from his depressing influence.

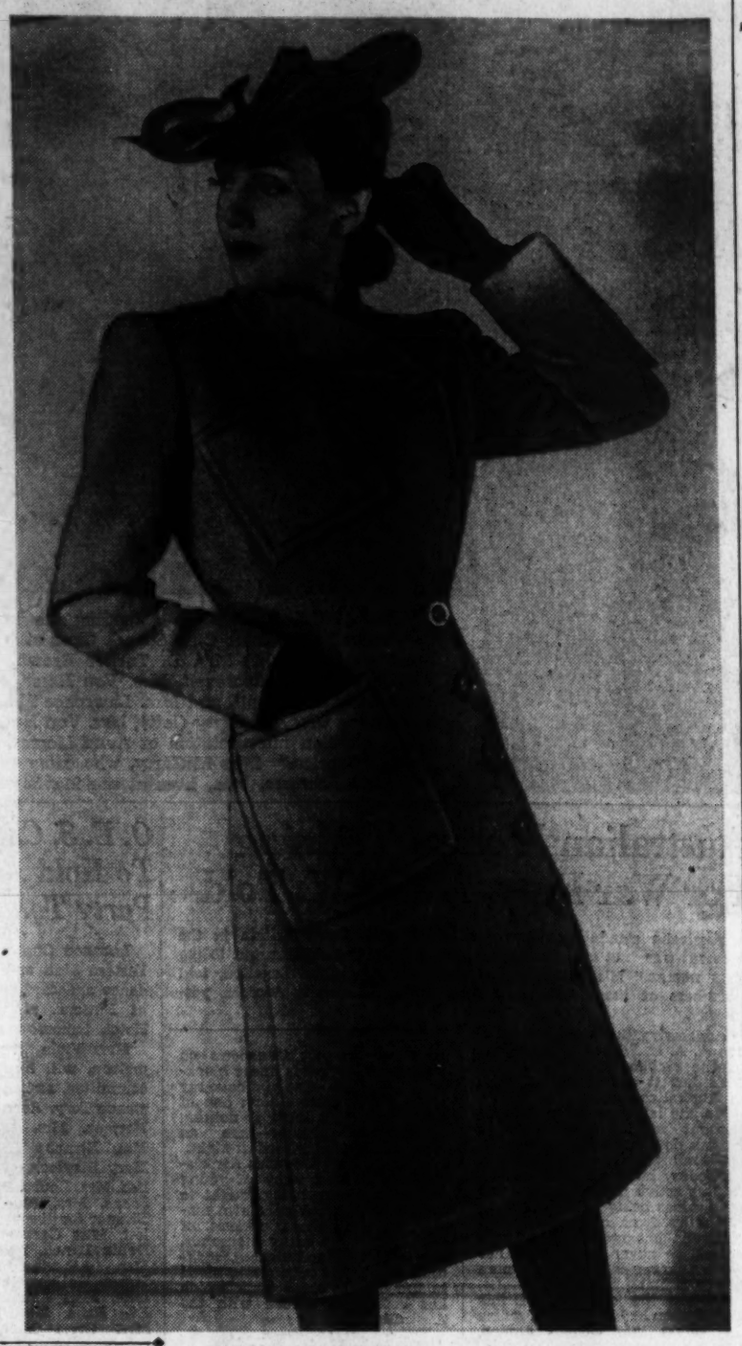
The Tailored Success for Spring



The unusual in deft tailoring is personified in this gold tweed coat from Charles Creed's spring collection featured at a local store. The asymmetric closing is played up by pockets on one side only. Scenes on China Are Imaginative And Inspiring

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

For collectors of china—and isn't every woman a modest collection in her own way—here's a paragraph from Charles Lamb that delights: "When I go to any great house I inquire for the china closet, next for the picture gallery. I love the little figures on china pieces. I love the men with women's faces and the women with, if possible, still more womanish expressions. Here is a young and courtly mandarin handing the tea to a lady from a salver 2 miles off! See how distance seems to set off respect!

And here the same lady, or another—for likeness is identity on tea cups—is stepping into a little, fairy boat, moored on the hither side of this calm, garden river, with a dainty mincing foot, which, in a right angle(as angles go in our world) must infallibly land her in the midst of a flowery mead, a furlong off on the other side of the same strange stream. Further or near I see houses, trees and pagodas dancing!

"And now just look at that little Chinese waiter holding an umbrella big enough for a bed-tester over the head of that pretty, insipid, half Madonna-ish chit of a lady in that very summer house."

Women Can Dress Without Frills And Be Chic, Expert Shows

By Jane Driscoll
The Post Fashion Editor.

To the tailored woman who thinks in terms of simply smart coats and suits for her spring wardrobe, Charles Creed gives the answer. He reveals in his collection that he is showing tomorrow at the Larz Anderson House, that women can dress without frills and frippery and still be chic.

Mr. Creed discovered what every woman of today knows—that mannish trends take on a special charm and chic when adapted to woman's clothes. Local debutantes will model suits in the show, exemplifying his discovery, in fabrics of his own choosing and design. The benefits of the show will be forwarded for Relief for French Refugees in England, Inc., and Refugees in England, Inc.

Briefly here are the hints for your own spring outfits summarized from Mr. Creed's collection:

THE FABRICS—Finest woolens of Great Britain, such as cashmeres, whipcords, gabardines, diagonals, cheviots, shaded stripes, Prince of Wales plaid, interesting checks and the colorful tweeds.

THE COLORS—In ranges of beige, oatmeal and gold, pastel blue and navy, striped gray and white, paisley and much black.

THE SILHOUETTE—The trend is away from the exaggerated, squared shoulder line. Shoulders are still padded and slightly rounded. Skirts are short and a slight flare by adroit seaming and about 14 inches from the floor. Jackets are longer.

THE BLOUSE—An important adjunct to the costume. Collars are high, reminiscent of the "Dandy" period with ascots and tie closings. Fabrics are taffetas, twills, corded silks, pique, linens, slipper satin and especially designed prints.

DETAILS—These include the new longer sleeve lengths that cover the knuckles, extra long rolled lapels, diagonal closings large unusual pocket treatments appearing at wrist length, above the waist and on the sleeves.

ODDITIES—Creed pantaloons with matching wristlets or blouses, and the new short straight boxy reefer.

Mr. Creed's collection is a foretelling, not only of what women will wear this spring, but also in many springs to come. Great Britain has warmed the hearts of American designers so watch for the British trend in your fashions.

Nth-Degree Ingenuity

Ingenuity was raised to the nth degree recently by a well-known woman manufacturer of cosmetics. When she went on her vacation she gave an order to her decorator to make some changes in the furnishings of her home. When she returned, everything was all very fine and glamorous, except for one carpet which wasn't just the right shade of rose. But our cosmetician wasn't daunted . . . she just called up her office and had a particular tint in powdered rouge sent out which she applied lovingly herself by hand till the result suited her artistic fancy.

It Isn't Stretching Truth to Say Stretching a Point Wins Slimness

Should Be Centered Around Middle, If You Love to Eat

By Ida Jean Kain

IF YOU love to eat but have a pronounced aversion to exercise in any form, your best bet is to stretch. This easy activity increases muscle tone, pulls out the annoying bulge which may claim the midriff, and helps you to look and feel slim instead of bulky. It does all those things—and I'm not stretching the truth.

Begin with a three-way stretcher—up, down and across. Lie on the back on the floor with the arms down at the sides and the legs stretched straight down on the floor. Fling the left arm up and back on the floor and, at the same time, stretch the left leg over the right and touch foot to the floor beyond. Then as the left leg and arm are returned to the starting position, repeat with right arm and leg. Continue for a dozen counts and do the exercise slowly and thoroughly.

Most of the stretch should always be centered through the middle of the figure. It doesn't help to streamline your figure to yank your arms half out of their sockets. To get the feel of the technique, try this one:

Stand Erect
Feet Parallel

Stand erect, feet about parallel and apart, and, bending the elbows, place fingertips securely on shoulders. Your figure should be in perfect alignment, elbows straight down at sides, tummy pulled up and hips tucked under. Very slowly bend sideward as you stretch upward.. You should feel a terrific pull on the outer waistline muscles. Come back to position and try it the other direction. Then relax and repeat with hands clasped on top of the head, elbows pointing straight out at sides, but shoulders relaxed.

If the fat pads have lodged off center and escape the direct line of pull, you may have to go out of your way to dislodge them. This should do it:

Place the hands on the hips, twist vigorously at the waist and bend to the side and back. Repeat, bringing muscles on the other side into play.

Here's a Good One
Gor General Obesity

One of the best ways to stretch—and slim—the waist is to lie on the back on the floor with arms extended on floor overhead and legs straight down. Keep on stretchinng while you press down with the small of the back and the backs of the knees. Then, slowly, begin to work arms and legs over to the left side—just inch along until your body is in an arc, hand and feet nearly touching, and right side pulled slim. Straighten out the same way—moving shoulders and legs until you are again in a straight line, with legs down and arms up on floor—then repeat to the right.

If you like more action, have a horizontal bar erected in a convenient doorway—it should be within easy reach when you stand on tiptoes so that you can concentrate the pull through the midriff.

Begin this exercise with an upward stretch of the trunk, both hands overhead. After bending to one side, stretch and bend to the opposite side. This is marvelously slimming for the waistline

Fashion Art Self-Taught

THOSE glamorous fashion drawings you see in magazines and newspapers—do you wonder whether you could ever draw anything like that? The career of successful fashion artist may not be as far out of your reach as you think!

Everybody's drawings look amateurish, discouraging at first. But with proper instruction, which can be followed in home study, many a beginner has worked into the professional class.

Charts and diagrams clearly explain each step in drawing. And in a branch of art in which masculine competition is at a minimum the chances for ambitious young women are great.

Two mistakes the beginner is likely to make are faults of figure balance and proportion.

Star Changes Perfume Weekly

Hollywood, Calif.—When you want to be an alluring lady, says Merle Oberon, it's the little things that count. Such as gloves and handkerchiefs that always carry a very subtle suggestion of the perfume that is "you." Nothing intrigues a man more, she said, than to pick up a hankie and know by the scent just who the owner might be.

Merle chooses one scent each Monday morning from the array on her dressing table and sticks to it the entire week. Then to make her perfume ensemble complete from head to toe, she atomizes her cedar handkerchief, glove, hosiery and lingerie boxes with the chosen perfume.

Inter-Club Class Hears First Lady On Speech Lessons and Freedom

By Jessie Ash Arndt.
The Post Club Editor.

Speech lessons improve one's speaking, but they are no insurance against criticism from the listeners, Mrs. Roosevelt told members of Mrs. Elizabeth Von Hesse's Interclub class last night at their closing banquet at the Arts Club.

She is now reading a book on the correct use of the English language, she told them. It was recently sent her, marked with little pink ribbons throughout and with a note saying she would find on every page something that she did wrong. "I am not sure that I have yet found all of the things I did wrong," said the First Lady, laughing. She added that in this country there was such a difference in the speech in different sections that what was correct in one would be questioned in another.

Relating that she was also berated by some as a Communist and by others for having become a complete conservative, she commended as a healthy sign in the country the freedom with which everybody said exactly what he pleased.

The First Lady, most distinguished pupil of the speech teacher, stopped in briefly at the club to greet the class members, before time for her own dinner guests to arrive at the White House. She wore a white lace gown and the necklace, bracelet and pin of gold and ivory tusks which had been given her by her uncle, Theodore Roosevelt.

Preceding her talk teen-age Mary McGarty, youngest pupil of Mrs. Von Hesse, presented an interpretatioh of Anne Morrow Lindbergh's poem, "Caprice," accompanied at the piano by Dick Koontz. "Charming little girl, and very sweet," was Mrs. Roosevelt's comment at the end of her performance.

Mrs. David Tucker Brown, former president of the Woman's National Democratic Club, presided at the dinner and Mrs. Von Hesse herself made a short talk, telling of her book, "So To Speak," which will be off the press in April. It is the relaization of an ambition "to write a book," cherished since the age of 8, Mrs. Von Hesse told her students.

The remainder of the program was presented by the class members whose names could easily have topped a list of who's who in clubs and who demonstrated their speech technique. Mrs. Lawrence Martin, president of the Twentieth Century Club, presented the entertaining story of "Filly-Folly." Mrs. Philip Sidney Smith, a past president of the club, and Mrs. Harold Fowler, one of its active members and also widely known as a sculptor, entertained with "Poetic Phantasies."

Mrs. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of the Woman's Board of George Washington University Hospital and of Peirce Guild, wore a Gay 90's costume and sang songs of that era with words fitting the occasion. Mrs. Smith accompanied her.

Mrs. Miriam B. Hilton, leader in musical circle, Mrs. Edward B. Meigs, past president of the Women's National Democratic Club; Mrs. William T. Clerk, of the Twentieth Centry Club and the D. A. R.; Mrs. Martin, Mrs. Smith and Miss Luella P. Chase, a D. A. R. regent, presented an entertaining skit, "The Awkward Squad," taking off the breathing and exercising done by the class.

Peggy London, radio star, was presented in "Interviewing the Maid."

Another feature was the reading by Miss Chase of some of the limericks written by her brother-in-law, Wade H. Ellis.

The final number on the program was an original skit, "Loose," by Mrs. Franklin Jones, Mrs. Raymond Pearson and Mrs. E. W. Fales.

Among other class members noted in the company were Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor, a past president of the Twentieth Century Club; Mrs. Edgar Boyd Kay, president of the Political Study Club; Mrs. Curtis Shears, president-elect of the Woman's National Democratic Club; Mrs. Cosly Bell, Mrs. Laura Waters, vice-president of the Business and Professional Women's Club; and Mrs. Edward Montgomery, past president of the Twentieth Century Club.

Australian Women Training For War Duty, A.A.U.W. Told

Australia stands shoulder to shoulder with Great Britain in the present war "not only to the last man and the last shilling, but to the last woman," Miss Patricia Jarrett, of the Australian Legation, told members of the American Association of University Women yesterday.

Addressing the local branch of the A. A. U. W. at its weekly tea at the clubhouse, 1634 I Street, Miss Jarrett told of the activities of Australian women.

"In the last war life flowed on without much interference in British dominions, like Australia, 13,000 miles from Europe," she said. "Today, however, with enemy raiders active off our shores, and with mines being sowed less than 100 miles from our main ports, Australia has not only equipped herself as never before, but her woman power as well as her man power is being put to use.

"Before the outbreak of this war, women had begun to organize themselves into various groups, such as transprt driving, signaling, first aid, air raid precautions, canteen cooking, home nursing, etc. Then, by popular demand, an organization called the Women's Voluntary National Register was formed. From this organization has sprung a series of uniformed organizations to drill and train women to take the places of men, and to be ready for the defenes of the country.

Women Now Help To Train Men

The Women's Emergency Signaling Corps has trained so many women that they are being used to train members of the Royal Australian Air Force in Morse code and aircraft procedure. The Women's Air Training Corps, of which I am a member, is training women in the handling and servicing of aircraft—teaching them to become engineer's assistants, and to do a dozen or more of the lighter tasks necessary for the control and maintenance of air fields.

"In the front line, Australian nurses are serving with the British forces and nearly 400 enlisted for overseas service with the Australian expeditionary forces," she added.

"Hundreds of women have learned to handle large commercial motor trucks," said Miss Jarrett. "For a final test they have to drive the big transports on rough country roads under blackout conditions. And you have my word for it, since I took one of these tests, that there is nothing rougher—or blacker—than an Australian country road at night.

"The Country Women's Association has a land army of young women who are being taught to take care of stock and farm machinery. Red Cross workers, of which there are many thousands, are providing ambulances, manning hospitals, contributing blood to the mobile blood bank which has been sent abroad with the Australian troops.

Women's Units Ready To Help Defend Homeland

"The Women's Australian National Service, as well as the Red Cross will be called upon by the Australian government, should the services of trained women ever be required in the defense of our shores.

"In addition to a total voluntary enlistment of 123,000 Australian men for overseas service in infantry divisions—and I do not include the air force and navy—we have 100,000 men under arms for home defense, and this force is being rapidly built up to 250,000," she declared. "This home defense force is provided under a universal military service which requires men to serve three months' continuous camp training. It is the only compulsory military service in Australia, so I repeat that the men who are adding such glorious chapters to Australia's history in units of the Australian army, navy and air force overseas—are volunteers.

"And the volunteer army of women that has arisen in Australia is trained, ready and fit to reinforce these men should they be required for home defense."

Mrs. James T. Irwin introduced Miss Jarrett and Mrs. William C. Van Vleck, club president, presided. Dr. Helen K. Mackintosh was hostess for the afternoon.

English Tea Held By Girl Scouts

A tea party in the English manner, with crumpets and tarts and milk instead of lemon, was given by 16 11-year-old Girl Scouts of Troop 63 in the assembly room of the Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church yesterday afternoon, as a feature of the local celebration of International Friendship month.

A group of British Girl Guides in the English village of Norwich were having a tea party also yesterday at which the Girl Scouts of Troop 63 were hostesses in absentia, having sent to their English sisters near war-torn London funds for the party.

British in every detail, the Chevy Chase Girl Scout tea was under the supervision of Mrs. Joseph Knapp, an Englishwoman, who is assistant to Mrs. Boydsden Satterfield, troop leader.

Schram Discusses RFC Defense Role

The part that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is playing in the national defense program through the financing of plant expansion, the acquisition of strategic war materials and the financing of defense housing was portrayed by Emil Schram, chairman of the board of directors of the RFC, before the Woman's National Democratic Club at its Monday luncheon meeting.

One of the big questions now being pondered by the RFC, said Mr. Schram, is whether or not to finance production of synthetic rubber, one of the basic war materials for the supply of which America is entirely dependent upon Far Eastern sources. Mr. Schram said that the cost of synthetic rubber is considerably higher than the natural product, but that if the American supply were cut off from the Orient it would be advisable to begin the manufacture of artificial rubber in this country. Decision in this matter still awaits development in the present world-wide situation of war and unrest.

Among the other strategic materials being acquired through funds provided by the RFC, he said, are tin, manganese, platinum, chrome and tungsten. These absolutely essential minerals and metals, Mr. Schram said, have to be imported from all parts of the world, and the RFC is gradually building up a back-log of these materials against all contingencies.

Mrs. Claude Pepper presided and introduced the speaker.

Miller Stays As D. C. Traffic Commander

Inspector Arthur E. Miller will remain in command of the police traffic division pending a formal request for retirement from Inspector William E. Holmes, who now is on leave of absence, the Commissioners announced yesterday.

Miller's assignment by Police Chief Ernest W. Brown to act as traffic commander with an "eventual" permanent appointment to the post drew criticism from Commissioner J. Russell Young last week.

Young was considerably irked because Maj. Brown failed to advise the Commissioners of Miller's change in assignment. The police chief ordered a "centralization" of all police motorcycle men at headquarters and placed Miller in direct command when Holmes requested a leave of absence until April 1.

"We don't want this thing jammed down our throats," was Young's comment.

Yesterday, however, Young said he had the "utmost confidence" in Miller, a recent graduate of the Northwestern University Traffic Institute.

"Traffic control is a vital problem in this city," Young said. "A change of assignment like this is more than routine. The only thing I wanted was to be advised of Brown's action."

When and if Holmes retires, Young said he expected Maj. Brwon to submit formal recommendations to the Commissioners for Miller's permanent appointment as traffic commander. He intimated there was little doubt that Miller would get the job.

Young also proposed to have a second in command of traffic and suggested Capt. Milton D. Smith, present commander of the headquarters traffic division.

Until yesterday when he took over his new duties, Miller was in charge of the new accident prevention unit which he was instrumental in establishing.

D.C. Orders Higher Speeding Penalties

Before adopting the stringent plan, the Commissioners consulted Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech who said there could be "no legal objection."

Van Duzer told the Commissioners that speeding offenses in the upper brackets—varying from 50 to 80 miles an hour—have shown a steady increase in recent weeks. He added that accident investigations have disclosed many cases in which drivers were speeding 30 to 45 miles an hour when persons were injured.

Van Duzer estimated 225,000 cars daily traverse Washington streets—24,000 from Maryland, 23,000 from Virginia, 170,000 registered in the District, and 5,0000 from other jurisdictions.

Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, renewed a recent order to his commanding officers for a "crack down" on speeders, and warned that high speeds will not be tolerated.

Corporation Counsel Keech has instructed his Police Court assistants to prosecute strictly all cases involving speed—first as well as second and third offenses.

Rebekah K. Pedigo Fatally Injured By Auto in Miami

Mrs. Rebekah K. Pedigo, 61, who retired last year after 31 years with the Civil Service in Washington, died last night in Miami, Fla., of injuries received when she was struck by an automobile.

A police investigator said the driver of the car that struck her stopped for a moment, then sped away.

Mrs. Pedigo was with the War Department from 1899 to 1908. While there she married Walter R. Pedigo, who was private secretary to five Secretaries of War from Luke E. Wright, in the Theodore Roosevelt Administration, to Newton D. Baker, of the Wilson Administration. Mrs. Pedigo reentered Federal service in 1917. She was with the Department of Justice, then returned to the War Department, where she was assigned to the Bureau of Insular Affairs.

PALE, TIRED WOMEN

Supply the Blood and Nerves with Iron and Vitamin B1

Thousands of women and girls over 14 are not getting enough iron to make rich red blood, and not enough Vitamin B1 for proper functioning of the nerves.

When the iron lost each month is not replaced, these women often feel tired, cold, worn out. They have pale lips and pale cheeks. Their shortage of Vitamin B1 affects the nerves, dulls the appetite, and disturbs digestion. These women should try ENRICH, the tasty new preparation which supplies extra iron and Vitamin B1. No habit-forming drugs, no alcohol, no liver.

Each day's ENRICH furnishes more iron for the blood than 4 pounds of beefsteak or 7 pounds of spinach . . . And more Vitamin B1 than ½ pound of baker's yeast. Best of all, ENRICH tastes good and costs only a few cents daily.

When iron is restored to the blood and the body is fully supplied with Vitamin B1, it usually follows that good color comes back to the cheeks and lips, appetite returns, nerves function better, and you feel peppy again. We will refund your money unless one bottle of ENRICH satisfactorily helps you feel better, look better, eat better, and sleep better. Start now!

Md. Court Metes High Penalty For D.C. Man's Traffic Violation

Somerset Williams, 26, of 426 Third Street Northwest, yesterday drew what is believed the most stringent sentence ever handed out in Prince Georges County Police Court for a traffic violation. He pleaded guilty on all counts.

Williams was sentenced by Trial Magistrate Walter L. Green to serve six months in the Maryland House of Correction and pay a fine of $100 for driving under the influence of intoxicating liquor; $100 or three months in the county jail for leaving after colliding with a person; one year in the House of Correction for speeding in excess of 70 miles an hour; a fine of $100 for operating without a permit; $100 for reckless driving while colliding and $50 for driving on the wrong side of the white line.

His brother, Harry Williams, 17, of Fairfax, Va., part owner of the car, was found guilty of permitting his brother to drive without a permit. He was fined $25 for permitting an intoxicated person to operate his car, a fine of $100 was suspended upon voluntary surrender of his driver's permit for six months.

Maryland State Policeman W. M. Bohler, arresting officer, with State Policeman B. J. Nolan, testified Williams had driven his car at a speed of 70 to 82 miles an hour on the crowded Baltimore Boulevard from Laurel, Md., to College Park, where it upset, had forced him over the white line when he attempted to halt the car and had driven on the wrong side of the white line several times in the course of the chase.

Somerset Williams said he had but one glass of beer in Baltimore before starting on the wild ride.

Three Boys Induce Their Club To Give Blood-Bank Benefit

Buddy, Larry and Bill, than whom the Children's Hospital blood bank has no more ardent supporters, take pleasure in announcing that their petition is a success.

The boys—Buddy Marmo, 15, 1523 C Street Southeast; Lawrence Connelly, 14, 334 Fourteenth Street Southeast, and William Darr, 12, 1435 Maryland Avenue Northeast—are members of the Junior Optimist Club and the Washington Boys Club.

A few days ago the youngsters got up a petition asking their clubs to indorse a benefit party for the blood bank, whose third annual campaign for operating funds is being conducted by The Post, WJSV and the American Legion.

The result of the youths' enterprise is that a dance benefit wil be given tonight at the Washington Boys Club Southeast branch, Seventeenth Street and Massachusetts Avenue.

It was announced yesterday that Kenna-Main Post, American Legion, has appropriated a $25 donation for the fund, which will keep going for at least another year the Children's Hospital blood and serum bank, indispensable in the treatment of sick and injured children.

In addition, the post's auxiliary unit has voted a $5 gift and the junior auxiliary, headed by Miss Annabelle Wright, is making arrangements for a benefit project of its own.

Samuel J. Parrish is commander of Kenna-Main Post, and Mrs. Eva Carrilo is president of the auxiliary.

Principal benefits held yesterday and last night were those of the Colonial Village Community House and of the Potomac Post, American Legion, and its ladies' auxiliary. Both were card parties. The latter was given in Palisades fieldhouse, under supervision of E. R. Thomas, commander; Mrs. Helen Shafer, auxiliary president, F. Donald Shafer and Mrs. Rosetta Wells.

About 150 persons, chiefly residents of the Potomac Heights section, attended the Legion party. Bridge parties were held at Colonial Village yesterday afternoon and last night. A total of more than 75 persons attended the parties, arranged by Mrs. Clarence W. Watts and Thomas Onley.

In response to many inquiries: No, it is not too late for citizens to give parties in their homes for the benefit of the blood and serum bank. Souvenir tally cards, if a bridge is planned, may be obtained free at The Post building.

Simply hold your party and bring or mail the proceeds to the cashier of The Washington Post, specifying that they are for the blood bank.

Mrs. Dobert and The Krivitsky Case

To correct any false impression which may have been created by the reports of Gen. Walter G. Krivitsky's death, The Post is glad to point out that Mrs. Marguerita Dobert has accounted for her whereabouts on the night of the refugee Bolshevist leader's apparent suicide here.

Mrs. Dobert drove Krivitsky to Washington February 9—on the eve of his death—from the Dobert farm near Charlottesville, Va., and told a Post representative last Tuesday that she spent that night (Feb. 9-10) "with friends." She declined to name them or their residence. The following day she affirmed that she had stopped at the Capitol Park Hotel.

The Post printed both statements, the first last Wednesday and the second last Thursday. They are repeated now in fairness to Mrs. Dobert, since some may have read the first account and not the second, and because The Post does not wish any of its readers to put a wrong interpretation on anything that appeared in The Post concerning Mrs. Dobert.

Y.M.C.A. to Honor Pastors

The Central Young Men's Christian Association will hold its annual luncheon in honor of ministers who have come to the city during the past year, at 12:30 p. m. today in the building at 1736 G Street Northwest. Leonard W. DeGast, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., will welcome the ministers and speak briefly.

Every Family Is a Little Nation

NEW ENGLAND MUTUAL

Brought Protection to Thousands of Them!

IN PAYING vast sums for armaments to guarantee the future security of its citizens, America has, in effect, taken out life insurance!

Every family is a nation in miniature, with much the same problems. Last year this Company paid out nearly $38,000,000 to bring protection to thousands of families whose personal defense programs had already been entrusted to its care.

Since its organization, New England Mutual has paid $750,000,000 to safeguard the futures of its policyholders and their beneficiaries. In a century of experience covering four wars and seven major depressions, sound principles of trusteeship have enabled this sturdy old Company to move forward steadily and constructively, faithfully carrying out all guarantees to its members.

In the past eleven years, as difficult a period as any in the history of our country, New England Mutual's insurance in force has increased over 33% and its total assets have more than doubled!

97th ANNUAL STATEMENT

CREAM O' THE CROP
U. S. Government Grade A . . . our fine premium eggs . . . recommended for coddling, soft boiling and other table uses where absolutely top quality is desirable. doz. 33c

MORNING STAR
U. S. Government Grade B . . . our second best eggs . . . recommended for frying, scrambling, cooking, baking, etc. Many housewives, however, find them entirely satisfactory for the above uses as well. doz. 27c

TWELVE GRAND
For cooking, baking, etc. . . . a dependable egg in every respect. Every egg is candled and inspected, and thousands of homes also find them completely to their liking for direct table use. doz. 23c

Regarding Government Graded Eggs

The egg is one of the few foods that must stay in its original "package" until ready for use, making it impossible for the housewife to judge its quality before opening. That is why we feel that Government grading is the only foolproof method of determining egg standards. Expert graders, with the aid of a powerful lamp, actually look inside the egg and are able to classify it according to the grades set up the Department of Agriculture.

Leslie H. Coloney was one of the few to make four spades at Miss Pearl Martyn's duplicate game at the Hotel Shelton the other night. Though he ran against four trumps, including the jack-ten in one of the adversary's hands, he fulfilled his contract by refusing to draw another round as soon as he learned of the bad split, and then led toward the honors of side suit in such a manner that the defender could not profit by trumping in.

Some players with the north hand bid two no trump over one spade and wound up playing the hand in three no trump, which was made with a low diamond opening but which was lost without it.

At spades East won two diamond tricks and Coloney ruffed the third round of that suit. He cashed the ace of spades and led a low spade to the king in dummy. When West failed to follow to the second trump lead, the king of hearts was led, and a low heart followed. East was on the spot; to ruff could gain nothing, as he had one sure trump trick anyway, so he tossed a club. Coloney won with the queen and entered dummy with the club ace and led dummy's last heart, upon which East again discarded. The club king was then taken and the last heart led and trumped with dummy's remaining spade. East could overruff, but declarer had the queen and eight of spades for the last two tricks. He made four spades, losing two diamonds and a trump.

Col. Morison's Funeral Today In Arlington

Funeral services for Col. Charles R. W. Morison, 67, Infantry, U. S. Army, retired, who died Sunday in Columbia, S. C., will be held at 11 a. m. today with military honors at the grave in the southern section of Arlington National Cemetery. Chaplain Harry D. Southard will officiate.

Col. Morison, a native of Maryland, was retired January 31, 1938. He served as a private with Company A, Fifth Maryland Infantry from May to October 1898 in the Spanish-American War. He was commissioned a second lieutenant of infantry in the regular army in 1901. He had military duty in Cuba, the Philippines, on the Mexican border, and in the World War including duties in the German occupation. He was promoted to colonel on May 2, 1930.

Mother Dies Here At Venezuelan 1st Secretary's Home

The Venezuelan Embassy yesterday announced the death Saturday of Senora Dona Maria Cristina Ruiz de Gomez at the home of her son, Dr. Luis E. Gomez-Ruiz, first secretary of the embassy.

Senora de Gomez, 59, wife of Emilio Horacio Gomez-Veludini, Venezuelan lawyer, had been visiting her son at 3315 Rose Place Northwest for the past five months.

A service for Senora de Gomez will be held at 9 a. m. today at St. Thomas the Apostle's Catholic Church, 2661 Woodley Road Northwest. Dr. Gomez-Ruiz will sail Friday with the body for burial at Caracas.

Lieut. M. S. Holmes, S-41 Commander, Killed in Manila

Lieut. Merrill Sylvester Holmes, U. S. Navy, commanding officer of the U. S. S. S-41, who was stationed in Washington from June, 1938, to May, 1940, was killed in an automobile accident in Manila Sunday, the Navy Department announced yesterday.

He made his home at 148 Gloucester Street, Annapolis, with his wife, Mrs. Katherine H. Linthicuin Holmes, and two children, Meta K. and Merrill S. Holmes jr. The family has requested that burial be in Arlington Cemetery.

Lieut. Holmes, who was 31, was stationed in Washington while undergoing instructions in the Office of the Chief of Naval Operations. He assumed command of the S-41 last December. A native of St. Paul, Minn., he was appointed to the Naval Academy in 1927 from the Thirty-fifth Congressional District of Pennsylvania. He was promoted to lieutenant (junior grade) in 1934 and to lieutenant September 1, 1938.

I'll Bite—Why Do They?

Miss Mollie Waters had just finished explaining about gender to the students in the seventh grade at Montgomery Hills Junior High School. Bobbie McCandlish, 12, waved his hand. "Is an airplane masculine gender," he asked. "Oh, no. They are neuter," the teacher patiently explained. "Well, how come they have mail planes, then?" Bobbie triumphantly demanded.

Love Triumphs—Even in Court

Arraigned before Judge George D. Neilson yesterday on a charge of drunkenness and disturbing the peace, Sinkler V. Haley, 30, of 1122 Eleventh Street Northwest, pleaded for another chance. He also spoke of his love for the girl by his side. "Shall I give him another chance?" Judge Neilson asked the girl. She agreed. So the judge suspended sentence.

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

Uncle Sam Uses A Lot of Red Ink

There must be something to the contention that the Federal Government is operating in the red. The amount of red ink that will be used on Uncle Sam's books this year will cost $642. Used and on hand for use in Washington and the field are 8,000 four-ounce bottles of red ink that cost $240 and 3,800 pints of red ink which cost $402. It is estimated that 1,000 of the pint sizes will be used by departments here while agencies in the field have been allocated 2,800 pints. It would be cheaper for Uncle Sam if all the red ink were used in Washington. The Government can buy a pint of red ink here for 11 cents. It costs 14 cents in the field. Incidentally, red tape is costing the Government $5,100 this year.

Senators must do all their wrestling with words on the Senate floor. The wrestling mat has been taken from the Senate gymnasium and turned over to the Surplus Property Agency. It will be sold at public auction Thursday at the agency's yard at Second and Verginia Avenue Southwest.

Social Security Board has resumed its battle for space here to house 4,200 employes now working in Baltimore. The Baltimore employes would have been brought back here the first of the year if the War Department and Defense Commission hadn't taken over its new building. The board wants a definite answer on the prospects for space. If none is to be available for several years the board will lease more space in Baltimore and provide better surroundings for its employes there. However, it hopes to transfer them here when the new War Department Building is completed.

Patent Office Promotions

Two important promotions from within have been made at the Patent Office. Leslie Frazer, a native of Salt Lake, has been nominated by President Roosevelt to be first assistant commissioner of Patents and Commander C. Henry, of Tennessee, has been nominated to be an assistant Patent commissioner. Both nominees are on the staff of Patent Commissioner Conway Coe . . . U. F. W. A. is inaugurating a petition campaign to force Congressional action on its bill to guarantee automatic annual salary increases to Federal employes. The union's bill is being sponsored by Representative Jennings Randolph, of West Virginia. The petitions point out that living costs are increasing here. Upwards of 50,000 Government workers will sign the petitions, the union estimates.

Representative John Taber, New York Republican, apparently has a very low regard for Federal personnel chiefs. During a recent hearing, Commissioner W. R. Johnson of the Customs Bureau mentioned that the division of personnel was starting an efficiency rating system to cover his entire office. "The Division of Personnel," cracked Taber," is that the same kind of division that many of these other Governmental organizations have set up, getting a college professor to teach a man how to clean a walk."

Senator Lister Hill yesterday introduced a bill which probably will be labeled a censorship measure. Briefly, the bill would authorize an annual appropriation of $1,500,000 for the Office of Government Reports which has been frequently denounced as a "propaganda agency" by Republicans. Moreover, it would authorize the office to collect and distribute information concerning the purposes and activities of the executive departments and agencies for the use of Congress, administrative officers and the public.

The bill also would permit the President to fix the salary of the director at not more than $10,000. The bill appears to be an attempt to set up the office on a sound legal basis. The office, formerly National Emergency Council, was set up by executive order and on July 1, 1939, it was transferred to the White House. Its legality has been questioned by Republicans. Lowell Mellett, office director, is usually considered the man who will be appointed censor chief, if and when the Administration decides one is needed. However, Mellett doesn't think so.

Senator Van Nuys, of Indiana, yesterday introduced a bill that would permit the War and Navy Departments and the Federal Bureau of Investigation to re-hire retired employes during the defense emergency.

Local Governments Must Cut Drastically To Offset Defense Cost, Says Senator Burton

Citizens Urge Tuberculosis Group Inquiry

An investigation of "conditions that have caused the District of Columbia Tuberculosis Association to be under the tongue of evil report" was urged in a report adopted unanimously by Lincoln Park Citizens' Association last night.

The report urged that the Commissioners "at once appoint, from among the residents of this city, a committee" to make the investigation.

"We believe nothing can be accomplished unless an entirely new board of directors be appointed, if the good name of the institution (Association) is to be maintained and its effectiveness promoted," it was stated.

The report was brought in by Mrs. Harriet Moose, chairman of the welfare committee.

The association adopted a report of its education committee opposing any change in the opening hour of the public schools, and suggested instead a further staggering of Government employes' hours as a traffic safety measure.

The meeting was held at Bryan School with A. D. Calvert, president, in charge.

American U. Park

District citizens' associations were praised last night by Representative George Bates (Republican), of Massachusetts, as being an evidence of "practical democracy" in a disenfranchised city.

Bates spoke at the fifteenth anniversary dinner of the American University Park Citizens Association, held at the Brooke Farm tea house, 6501 Brookville Road, Chevy Chase, Md.

He also pointed to the rapidly increasing population here due to defense activity and said that this gives civic bodies an added responsibility.

Thomas E. Lodge, first president of the association, cut the citizens' organizational birthday cake. Other former presidents who attended were F. S. Sanford, W. T. Betts and H. L. Colman. Presiding was James E. Maxwell, present head of the association.

More than 200 members of the American University Park body attended the dinner and dance which followed.

Sixteenth Street Heights

The fight for express bus service to the downtown district will be continued by the Sixteenth Street Heights Association, it was stressed in a progress report by Harry C. Hensley, chairman of its public utilities committee, at the association's meeting last night.

Opposition was indicated to the flat 10 cent fare for this service until it is proven to the Public Utilities Commission that cost of the service warrants such charges.

The question of reported parking congestion around the bus terminal at Georgia and Eastern Avenues Northwest was referred to the street and sidewalks committee, Perry Cleveland, chairman, for investigation.

The following became new members of the association: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rush, Mrs. L. D. O'Flaherty, Mrs. Harry C. Hensley and E. W. Mollohan. The meeting, presided over by M. J. Cairns, president, was held at Shepherd School.

Lincoln Civic

Plans for a quiz contest on the Constitution and District history March 30 were made last night by the Lincoln Civic Association. All colored high school students in the West End area will be eligible and three prizes will be awarded.

Arrangements were announced for for the association's annual dinner to be held May 16, with Mrs. Alice Marshall named as chairman.

Burglar Assaults Housewife, Loots Home of Valuables

The 27-year-old brunette wife of a bartender at the Mayflower Hotel told police she was assaulted last night by a swarthy skinned white man who choked her and threatened her with death after inducing her to admit him to her home at 330 Rhode Island Avenue Northeast by telling her he was a friend of her husband.

Mrs. Ruth Franco, wife of Joseph Franco, was taken to Gallinger Hospital for treatment for shock.

She said the man, about 25 years old and powerfully built, ransacked the house for valuables before leaving, taking $50 in cash, a new fur coat and Mrs. Franco's wedding and engagement rings, valued at $275.

Mrs. Franco described the man as about 5-feet-11-inches in height. She said he wore a green overcoat, felt hat and blue striped suit.

Monday Club Told How Cleveland Avoided Adding 100 Policemen

Senator Burton (Republican), of Ohio, told the Monday Evening Club last night that local governments must adopt preventive measures and new mechanical devices to cut their community service expenses.

Speaking to the club's annual dinner in Hotel 2400, Sixteenth Street Northwest, the Ohioan said that the size of national defense expenditures make it vital that other governmental costs be cut to the bone.

In an example which was taken as pointed at Washington, he said that Cleveland averted the necessity of adding 100 policemen to its force and eliminated 6 of about 12 precinct stations by installing two-way radios in police cars.

"The old stations," he said, "were arranged on the basis of walking distance. A scientific approach to the problem has made it possible to save a great deal of money."

The club, which is composed in large part of leaders of private welfare agencies in the District, heard Senator Burton recommend as great an expansion as possible of voluntary, private welfare services. Governmental expenditures for social services, he said, cannot be increased during the emergency, and he added that they should be cut if possible.

Ray Everett was toastmaster at the meeting, and he told Burton he hoped Congress, after passing the lend-lease bill, would give "all-out aid to Washington and lease or lend us the franchise."

Citizens Oppose 'Vigilante' Traffic Plan

The proposed citizens "vigilante" committee plan, under which 500 picked District residents would report violations of traffic regulations for nonpunitive and "educational" action, was unanimously opposed last night by delegates of the Interfederation Conference, representing virtually all citizens associations in the District and nearby Maryland and Virginia.

Opposition to the plan, which was advocated by the Commissioners' Traffic Advisory Council, came after Delegate Washington I. Cleveland had denounced it as putting traffic regulation in the hands of citizens instead of entirely with law-enforcing officials and encouraging a system of civil espionage.

The conference also urged immediate appointment of a judge to fill the District Court vacancy left by the retirement of Justice Peyton Gordon and recommended that the new judge be chosen from attorneys now practicing in the District.

This resolution was voted an emergency measure and, after more than an hour of sometimes heated debate on jurisdiction of the civic body, referred constituent federations for support.

Fighting a potential traffic bottleneck, the delegates opposed closing of Virginia Avenue Northwest between Eighteenth and Nineteenth Streets, suggested by Secretary Ickes so that a Pan American Union annex could be erected where Eighteenth Street now is.

They urged immediate construction of the annex where originally planned, on the triangle between Eighteenth and Nineteenth Streets.

Beaux Arts Trio Plays Concert Here

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Washington Concert Association presents the Beaux Arts Trio of New York (Marya Sebrianski, violin; Edith Schiller, piano; Virginia Peterson, violoncello) on Monday night in Wardman Park Theater. Assisting artist: Martin A. Dowd, piano. Program: Trio in B flat, K. V. 502 (Mozart), Etude in D flat (Liszt), "Reflets dans l'eau" (Debussy) Rhapsody in C major (Dohnanyi), Trio in D minor, Op. 49 (Mendelssohn), "Staendchen" (Schubert-Liszt), Saltarello (Frank Bridge).

BROWN

Three engaging young musicians, who have chosen the collective name of Beaux Arts Trio, made a very favorable impression last evening in Wardman Park Theater upon the subscribers to the Washington Concert Association. The most poised and seemingly mature artist of the group is Virginia Peterson, the violoncellist, who draws a tone both suave and pithy, and plays with technical ease and assurance. Marya Sebrianski, the violinist, has a keen sense of intonation and skillful accuracy, although she presses her tone a little in her eagerness. Edith Schiller has a fluent keyboard technique and an excellent control of dynamics and pedaling.

Their performances were marked by a pleasurable blending of tone and by consentience in interpretation. That their association is still in the tentative stage one surmises from the conservatism of the program. Only in the final salterello by the late Frank Bridge did they venture from the safe path of familiar compositions. They began with Mozart's trio in B flat, which is distinguished solely by the beautiful melody of the larghetto. Mozart wrote his trios for private performance at friendly parties, and charming as they are for diversion, they have little weight of content.

The other major offering was Mendelssohn's trio in D minor, a work which Schumann misjudged when he called it great. Time has not dealt kindly with this music which now reveals its shallow romanticism. Mendelsohn dazzled his contemporaries by his superficial brilliance and they did not pause to consider how little he had to say. The charm of his personality and the contagion of his enthusiasm were potent factors in his success.

The assisting artist was the resident pianist, Martin A. Dowd, whose public appearances have been infrequent of late. In his solo group he gave an admirably stylized performance of Liszt's D flat etude, an iridescent coloring of Debussy's "Reflets dans l'eau" and a reading of Dohnanyi's C major rhapsody marked by rhythmic surety and declamatory vigor.

Walter Reed Contract Let

The War Department yesterday awarded a $227,591 contract to the Merando Co., of Washington, for an addition to the neuropsychiatric ward at Walter Reed Hospital.

Policeman Attempting Rescues At Fire Saved by Companion

A 38-year-old motorcycle policeman, who was off duty, was injured last night when he dashed into a burning house to rescue roomers who had already fled, except for one boy.

PRINCE

With a passer-by, Charles Lewis, of 317 New York Avenue, Private Henry H. Prince, of the Traffic Division, searched the first and second floors of a smoke-filled three-story brick building at 1424 Sixth Street Northwest. They found nothing.

Partly overcome by the dense fumes, Lewis remained on the second-floor landing, while Prince raced up to the third floor. There he found a 10-year-old colored boy, frightened but uninjured. Brought to the staircase, the boy ran down unassisted, while Prince searched the third-floor rooms.

When Prince returned, the flames had enveloped the staircase. He started down, and the stairs collapsed. Lewis carried him unconscious to the street, and he was taken to Garfield Hospital suffering from a fractured shoulder and smoke suffocation.

The father of two children, Prince, who lives at 216 Maryland Avenue Northeast, was on his way home when a motorist pulled alongside his motorcycle at Sixth Street and Massachusetts Avenue Northwest and told him of the fire. The policeman pulled a firebox at Fifth and P Streets Northwest and sped to the smoking building.

Firemen extinguished the blaze, but not before it had seriously damaged the first and second floors. The fire apparently was caused by an oil stove explosion on the first floor.

Bar Group To Admit Women

District Association Votes, 190 to 22, For Equal Rights, Despite 'Warning'

The District Bar Association last night voted, 190 to 22, to admit women lawyers to membership.

Such an amendment to the by-laws was adopted after speakers at the Mayflower Hotel meeting deplored the "archaic situation" which denied "equal rights to citizens of the United States" in violation of the Fourteenth Amendment.

The association ignored a warning by James W. Craven, one of the few who spoke against the amendment, that:

"You are not going to get a Portia. You are inviting Pandora, and she's going to bring her box as a dowry."

Speaking for the amendment were Edward C. Dutton, chairman of the committee on relations with the women's bar; E. Hilton Jackson, Richard E. Wellford and George Maurice Morris.

2d Rights Motion Ruled Out

An attempt to revive another question of equal rights—that of allowing colored lawyers to use the association's library in the District Court Building—was ruled out of order by Vice President Fred Stohlman, in the chair.

The proposal, voted down at a previous meeting, was brought up again by Elwood H. Seal, former corporation counsel of the District, who offered it as substitute to a motion that the association acquire new quarters for its library by April 1.

The library must be moved from the District Court Building by that time because colored lawyers are not allowed to use it, Attorney General Robert H. Jackson has told the association.

The chair's ruling on Seal's substitute was appealed, then sustained by an overwhelming voice vote. Whereupon the original motion to acquire new quarters was carried.

Members Indorsed for Vacancy

The decision to admit women lawyers leaves Baltimore as the only city or State where a bar association's membership is restricted to men, the meeting was told.

After a lengthy parliamentary wrangle, the association approved a committee recommendation to indurse the qualifications of eight association members for appointment to the District Court bench to succeed Justice Peyton Gordon, retired.

Qualifications of George B. Barse, Brice Clagett, Edward M. Curran, Sefton Darr, Lawrence Koenigsberger, Jo V. Morgan, Leo A. Rover and Henry Schweinhaut were indorsed, 109 to 41, after failure of an attempt by Seal to narrow the field to three candidates.

Justice Justin Miller, in an address on "Effectiveness of Oral Argument on Appeal," gave the lawyers pointers on argument of cases, which he said was of "vital importance."

D. C. Court Site Chosen

The Bar Association's committee on construction of a new courthouse for the District Court and the Court of Appeals last night announced its efforts had resulted in agreement "of everybody concerned" to erect the building in Judiciary Square, and not on Capitol Hill.

Decision to have a bill introduced in Congress for the purpose was reached last Friday at a conference called by Henry P. Chandler, administrator of Federal courts, and attended by representatives of the Park and Planning Commission and the District Court and F. Regis Noel, chairman of the bar association committee.

Mitchell Names 3 Colored Youths To U. S. Academies

By the Associated Press

Representative Mitchell (Democrat), of Illinois, said yesterday he had nominated two colored youths for admission to the Naval Academy and one to the Military Academy.

For Annapolis, Mitchell, the only colored member of Congress, said he had recommended Toussaint Gadsden and Alvin Jerome Thompson, both of Chicago. Gadsden now is attending Miners Teacher College here and lives at 2724 Sherman Avenue Northwest, Mitchell said.

To West Point, he recommended H. Minton Francis, Chicago, who he said was attending the University of Pennsylvania. Francis' parents, he said, live at 977 Florida Avenue Northwest, Washington.

Henry K. McHarg 3d., of 2101 Connecticut Avenue Northwest, a real estate man, has been named executor of the estate of his grandfather, Henry K. McHarg, sr., president of the Detroit & Mackinac Railroad and Wall Street Broker, it was learned yesterday.

McHarg, in whose estate the grandson will also share, died last month.

U. S. Planes Won't Let Him Sleep by Day, So Navy Worker Refuses Night Foreman Job

Roaring fighter planes of the Army and Navy and the uncertainties of wind are beating Joseph L. Bockovac out of the promotion for which he has worked for 26 years.

Bockovac, a toolmaker, works at the Navy Yard. The other day he was told he was in line for promotion to foreman on the night shift.

But Joe shook his head, because the planes and the wind have made such a roaring daytime terror for him and Eve, his wife, that Joe said he would not be fit for the job. The planes, abetted by the wind, he said, wouldn't let him sleep.

The Bockovac home at 115 Chesapeake Street Southeast lies directly in the line of the north-south runway at Bolling Field and only a few hundred yards from its southern end.

When the wind is from the north, bombers and fighters seem almost to land in the Bockovac flower garden. With a south wind, they seem to take off from there.

When they come roaring over, the Bockovac chickens scatter as before the shadow of a hawk, the dog takes out for the basement and Mrs. Bockovac, 53, weeps from fright. The big four-motor bombers with the backwash of their propellers whirl the tops of the trees like a summer storm.

One day Mrs. Bockovac, working in her garden, thought her end had come. She saw the plane first when workmen a half-block away cried a warning. The ship seemed to have come in too low for a landing and the pilot was fighting for altitude. He barely cleared power lines across the street, skimmed the peak of the Bockovac roof and his wings brushed the tops of trees near the edge of the field.

Then there was that morning last March when, at daybreak, she went out to feed the dog. First she heard the screech of propellors. Then something stung her between the shoulder blades. She screamed in terror, and then discovered she had been "bombed" with an aviator's soft leather glove.

"It might have been a wrench," she remarked.

The Bockovacs have been having airplane trouble for eight years now. They moved to Chesapeake Street 15 years ago, when it was called Magazine Road, and an airplane was a curiosity rather than a terror.

About a year ago Bockovac went to a meeting of the Naval Lodge of Masons. He told his troubles to Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries, who addressed the meeting. In behalf of Joe, whose command of English is conditioned by his birth 55 years ago in what is now Yugoslavia, Gen. Fries wrote letters to Maj. Gen. Henry Arnold, head of the Army Air Corps, and to Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of Naval operations.

The letters suggested that the Government and Joe might be able to agree on a suitable price for the property so the Bockovacs could move into a quieter neighborhood. Joe is keeping copies of the letters and the aviator's glove with its identifying letters—"U. S. N."

His file contains another exhibit—a photostatic copy of the number, kind and times airplanes flew over his rooftop one August day. Joe counted 17 planes—14 of them two-motored bombers—from 9:50 a. m. to 4:40 p. m.

Joe picked up from his desk a newspaper clipping telling of a Government order last year forbidding Army and Navy planes to fly over the home of Sumner Welles, Undersecretary of State, at Oxon Hills, Md., not far from the Bockovac home. Grinned Joe:

"Of course, if I were fine gentleman like Mr. Welles . . ."

A GLOVE FOR EVIDENCE—Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Bockovac display the aviator's glove with which Mrs. Bockovac was "bombed" one day while working in the garden of her home. Bockovac, a Navy Yard toolmaker, made the picture (top) showing a bomber roaring just over the roof of his home. Said Bockovac: "My wife and I, we hoped to spend the rest of our days here. We build fine house with beautiful flowers and when we get tired and go upstairs to get a little rest, the airplane, she come—whoosh! Sometimes I cannot even eat"

Louis' Murderous Right Stops Dorazio in 2d

Short Smash to Mouth Ends 14th Defense of Title By Brown Bomber

By Bob Considine.

Convention Hall, Philadelphia, Feb. 17.—Guess what? Joe Louis knocked out Gus Dorazio here tonight in the second round. It was the Bomber's fourteenth defense of the world's heavyweight championship, Philadelphia's first title fight since Tunney beat Dempsey and the crowd of 16,000 was the largest ever to see an indoor fight here.

Joe did it, this time, after 1 minute and 30 seconds of the second chapter, with a simply murderous little right to the Italian's mouth. Dorazio was rushing him in the approved squat-tag manner, introduced by Arturo Godoy. But he looked up to take a peek at where he was going, and Joe crushed him with a straight right that did not travel a foot, yet collided with Dorazio's face with neck-breaking force.

Lands Flat On Face

Dorazio shook from the top of his battle-scarred head to the soles of his flat feet. And, like a running soldier who takes a few more strides after a bullet has let the life leak out of him, Dorazio continued his charge. Joe stepped aside with considerable agility and Dorazio went flat on his face, near his corner.

He did not so much as stir until the count reached five. He lay there with his lumpy nose pressed out of shape against the canvas, and his lips were pressed against the dirt, water and resin of the floor in a grisly sort of kiss.

By the time the count reached seven or eight he had half turned with a dazed groan, and was looking at his manager with the sightless curiosity of a man looking into the camera during a newsreel shot of a mob. His seconds dragged him drunkenly to his stool, and Louis, over in the other corner with his milk-chocolate back turned toward the activity in the other corner, raised his arms in a bored stretch.

Challenger Carries Fight

To his credit, Dorazio went down swinging, and except for the one burst of curiosity that led to his quick and merciful doom, he put up a good fight.

Dorazio came into the ring with absolutely no qualifications as a challenger. He had been stopped by Billy Conn, who stops fewer men than a green light. In his New York appearances, two in number, he had batted .000—having been decisioned once and knocked kicking another time.

But he carried the fight to Joe through the first round, and was carrying it when he got smacked down. For his lumps he gets 12½ per cent of a gate of $57,352.62, which will be heavily shrunken before it becomes net. Louis gets 40 per cent.

Here's How It Was

This was the first round:

Gus rushed Joe, keeping his head aimed at about Louis' navel, which winked solemnly above the champion's trunks. Joe backed away and tapped with a trombone left at the Italian's skull. When Dorazio got in too close Joe would try something new. Instead of backing away, and trying to uppercut his stooping assailant, as he has been doing since the boys began aping the ape-like plan of Godoy, Joe moved forward and leaned over Dorazio's back until his dead pan almost rested on Dorazio's flanks.

But the champion has some strange sense of dignity, and after a while this disgusted him. He charged into Dorazio with all 203 pounds and hammered the 193-pound Philadelphian back into the ropes.

Louis Looks Faster

Dorazio managed to survive this baleful flurry—in which Joe looked faster than he has looked in the last few fights—and got out of his perdicament with a low charge and shove. He was trying to hook Joe at the end of the round, but Louis was catching his maroon mittens like easy tosses of a baseball.

The second round was beginning to follow this pattern of charge—hook — lean — retreat when Joe astutely stepped back whereas Dorazio expected him to step forward and go into that 2-layer embrace. It threw Dorazio a little off, and he took a quick peek from behind the glove that was protecting his jaw.

Punch Has Backswing

It was all Joe needed. His punch, certainly one of the cleasest and surest in ring annals, was so short that many in the crowd must have missed it. It began and ended in a slim split second.

The punch had a backswing, so to speak, but it was little more than a shrug—if that. It picked up appalling speed, landed on precisely the right whiskers on Dorazio's blue-black mouth and chin, and that was that.

The premilinaries were distinguished by the knockout victory scored by 193-pound Al Williams, Philadelphia Negro, over 305-pound, 6 foot 7 Ben Moros, also of Philadelphia. The mammoth Moros hit the deck in the third round with a crunching sound that threatened to

Mike Belloise Beats Rightmire In Baltimore

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, Feb. 17.—Mike Belloise, of New York, former featherweight champion, scored a unanimous decision over Everett Rightmire, of Sioux City, Iowa, in a ten-round fight tonight. Both weighed 130 pounds.

It was a fast bout, with both fighters exhibiting some clever boxing. Each forfeited a round on a low blow, Rightmire losing the first in this manner and Belloise having the fourth taken away from him.

In a preliminary Arthur Dorrell, 145½, Tyler, Tex., knocked out Manuel Rosa, 149, in the first round of a scheduled 6-rounder.

Gus Was Like Little Man Who Wasn't There

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Feb. 17.—Joe Louis put Gus Dorazio to sleep so soundly in the second round of their heavyweight championship fight at Convention Hall tonight that Gus didn't know he was counted out.

"They shouldn't have stopped the fight," groaned Gus in his dressing room. "I hit him a couple of good ones in the stomach in the first round. I'd like to meet him again."

Jimmy Wilson, Dorazio's trainer, said in a whisper:

"He thinks they stopped the fight, but he was out cold."

"Gus shouldn't have lunged in with that left hook," continued Wilson. "He was off balance and wide open for that right cross on the button."

All was serene in the champion's dressing room. "I got him with a short right cross," drawled Louis. "I shoved him off balance with my left and whipped across my right."

"I got in one good uppercut in the first round. He tried to make a fight of it, but his bobbing and weaving didn't bother me once I got on to it."

And the champion, who had hardly worked up a sweat, permitted himself a glimmer of a smile and walked off to his shower.

Challedon Runs Today In Special Prep Race

Maryland Racer Heads Small Field In Training Event at Santa Anita For $100,000 Classic on March 1

By the Associated Press

Los Angeles, Feb. 17.—To determine his fitness for the big $100,000 classic March 1, ailing Challedon will lead a small field postward tomorrow in the first training race ever staged at Santa Anita in conjunction with the day's regular program.

Special permission was granted by track stewards for the "prep" event, which will be run between the third and fourth races and under every condition of an actual race.

W. L. Brann's fleet pride of Maryland, the Nation's leading handicap thoroughbred, suffered a hoof injury several weeks ago, and since then has done little or no strenuous training.

When Brann declared he did not want to enter his horse in the big Santa Anita Handicap unless he was sure the hoof injury was completely healed, stewards arranged the 7 furlong "prep" event.

Facing Challedon will be Rough Pass, another Santa Anita Handicap candidate, which also needs more conditioning, and Aethelwold and Teddy Kerry, a couple of fast sprinters, nominated for keen competition. Other entries may also be named.

The horses will be saddled, paraded to the post and released from the barrier under all regular racing conditions. No parimutuel betting on the event will be permitted.

Brann said that if Challedon comes through tomorrow's prep race and another morning workout later in the week, he plans to enter him in Saturday's $10,000 mile and one-sixteenth San Antonio Handicap. That would be the thoroughbred's final major workout before the big event.

Prof Deserts Math To Study Uppercuts In Gloves Tourney

By the Associated Press

Atlanta, Feb. Feb. 17.—On the list of entrants for the Southeastern Golden Gloves tournament tonight there was the name, "Douglas McClay" as a welterweight.

On the Georgia School of Technology faculty list, there is the name, "Douglas McClay, Ph. D., instructor of mathematics."

The men are the same. The "math prof" decided to abandon theorems for left and right uppercuts for the period of the tournament.

Duquesne Beats Loyola; W. Va. Stops Bethany

Pittsburgh, Feb. 17.—The Duquesne University Dukes tonight defeated Loyola, of Chicago, 32 to 27, before 5,100 shivering basketball fans, duplicating the five-point margin by which they defeated the visitors last month in the windy city.

The contest headlined the third and last game of a bargain bill of the winter season. It was the thirteenth triumph in 15 games for the Dukes. West Virginia University beat Bethany College, 43 to 32, and the California, Pa., teachers defeated Frostburg, Md., teachers, 42 to 35, in theother games.

One accident marred the game. Paul Widowitz, veteran Duquesne guard, sprained his ankle badly and may be unable top lay for several weeks.

Purdue Is Beaten

Lafayette, Ind., Feb. 17 (AP).—Wisconsin's Badgers barely maintained their lead in Big Ten basketball by nosing out Purdue's defending champion Boilermakers, 43 to 42, here tonight.

Nine Hurlers, One Catcher Are in Group

Squad Will Arrive Tomorrow in Orlando; First Drill Thursday

One dozen strong, the vanguard of the Washington Nats will shove off today at 6:30 p. m. from Union Station for six weeks of spring training at Orlando, Fla., with hopes high for producing a first division club in the 1941 campaign.

Manager Bucky Harris will herd a detachment of nine young pitchers and one rookie catcher aboard the Nats' special for the overnight ride.

They will arrive in the sunny clime of Orlando tomorrow, pitch camp at the Angebilt Hotel and don uniforms for the first time Thursday morning.

Masterson in Lot

Walter Masterson, the 20-year-old right-hander who won 3 and lost 13 games for the Nats last year, is the only veteran in the pitching lot.

Richard Hahn, 23-year-old catcher brought up from the Nats' Charlotte farm for a chance in the majors, is the lone catcher. Jake Early and Al Evans have informed Harris they will drive down from their North Carolina homes, and Rick Ferrell, regular backstop who was married recently, will report March 1.

Ken Chase, the Nats' southpaw who last year won 15 and lost 17, will drive down from his home in Oneonta, N. Y., and the remainder of Washington's pitching staff will join those leaving today for Orlando.

Leonard Is There

Dutch Leonard, Washington's big knuckle-ball artist who had a rather disastrous season last year and managed to win 14 while losing 19, is already in the Florida camp. He has not signed a contract as yet and still is asking more money, but Secretary Edward B. Eynon last night said that no trouble is expected from the big right-hander.

The eight rookie hurlers leaving at Union Station today include Hardin Cathey, a southpaw from the Thomasville, Ga., club; Joe Cleary, a right-hander, from Springfield; Louis Thurman, another right-hander brought up from Charlotte; Bill Zinser, who last year pitched for the Kinston club in the North Carolina State League; Alex Zubowski and Poydock, both of whom came up from Greenville, S. C.; Cunningham, who has pitched for both Charlotte and Greenville, and two boys from the Orlando, Fla., club—Beck and Kennedy.

Infielders and outfielders will not report at the Orlando headquarters until March 1, Harris said.

The club will remain in Florida until the first week in April, when they will pull out to start a series of exhibitions. They will arrive in Washington for an exhibition Friday, April 11, and will open the regular schedule at Griffith Stadium April 14 against the New York Yankees.

Terps, C. U. Seek 1st Cage Triumphs

Two games are on tonight's District college basketball schedule. Maryland, seeking its first victory after 18 straight defeats, plays host at 8 o'clock to V. M. I., only Southern conqueror of Virginia, at College Park, and Catholic University, also winless all season, meets Loyola of Baltimore at 8:30 at Brookland.

This will be the second game between Loyola, one of the only two teams to beat Georgetown, and Catholic U., the Baltimoreans having won the first meeting, 53-28.

A freshman game between C. U. and Georgetown will furnish an interesting preliminary, beginning at 7:30. The Hoya yearlings boast a 43-25 decision over the Cardinal frosh.

Detroit Lions Sign Edwards As Head Coach

By the Associated Press

Detroit, Feb. 17.—The Detroit Lions, National Professional League club, today engaged William Miller (Bill) Edwards, of Cleveland, who produced three undefeated teams in six seasons at Western Reserve University, as its coach for 1941.

Graham Smith, general manager of the Lions, announced the club's decision today. Terms of Edwards' contract were not disclosed.

Western Reserve teams coached by Edwards won 49 games, lost 6 and tied 2 in the past six years.

Edwards is 35 years old, married and the father of two children. He was a three-sport star in Massillon, Ohio, High School, captained Ohio State's freshman team in 1926 and was center for three years at Wittenberg College.

Edwards said he would engage Roy (Dugan) Miller, assistant coach at Western Reserve since 1936, to assist him in coaching the Lions.

20 Coaches Phone For Edwards' Post

Cleveland, Feb. 17 (AP).—Karl Davis, director of athletics at Western Reserve University, said tonight he had already received "more than 20 telephone applications" for the post of football coach, vacated several hours earlier by the resignation of Bill Edwards to become coach of the Detroit Lions, of the National Football League.

"We regret to see Bill go," Davis said, "but Detroit offered him more than double the salary we are able to pay. We immediately offered the post to Dugan Miller, Edwards' assistant, but here too the Lions outbid us and he will go along with Bill.

"We will move slowly in selecting a new coach and it may be some time before the athletic board picks its man.

Indiana Wins, Retains Hope Of Title Tie

By the Associated Press

Columbus, Ohio, Feb. 17.—Indiana, fighting for a share of Big Ten basketball championship honors, tonight staged a thrilling uphill battle to defeat Ohio State, 40 to 33, before 5,964 fans.

The victory was Indiana's seventh against one conference loss and the defeat eliminated Ohio State from all consideration for championship honors.

The loss was Ohio State's fourth against five conference wins.

A little substitute forward, Ernie Swanson, provided the necessary spark to put Indiana on the winning path. After the Bucks had led for 32 minutes of the game, Swanson dropped in two short shots to put the visitors ahead with eight minutes to play.

Indiana rolled up nine points in the remaining time while holding Ohio to three.

Two aggressive Indiana guards, Bob Dro and Andy Zimmer, were not only chiefly responsible for holding the Buck cagers in check but also led their team in scoring.

Zimmer, assigned to guard the league's leading scorer, Forward Dick Fisher of Ohio, held the flashy Buckeye to four field goals.

Individual scoring honors for both teams were taken by Forward Jack McLain, who netted 12 points for Ohio.

The game was a fast, rough affair although only 17 personal fouls were called.

Tribe Pitchers, Infielders Report To Peckinpaugh

By the Associated Press

Fort Myers, Fla., Feb. 17.—Sixteen pitchers, one catcher and four infielders reported to Manager Roger Peckinpaugh today as the Cleveland Indians opened spring training.

The infielders and outfielders aren't due until next Monday, but Ray Mack, Ken Keltner, Oscar Grimes and Rookie Verne Freiberger of the inner defense were on hand early.

Catchers Gene Desautels and Jim Hegan and Pitchers Nate Andrews, Ken Jungels and Don Pulford were the only absentees. All five have signed.

Bob Feller, who looks in shape already, paced the pitchers in the initial workout.

This Morning

Without Shirley Povich

(While Shirley Povich is on his vacation his column is being written by other members of The Post sports staff.)

By Anne Hagner.

A pang of conscience has overtaken this department at the realization of one of the most neglectful deeds of the season—we have not yet congratulated ch. My Own Brucie for his championship at the Westminster Dog Show last week in New York. We trust that our forgetfulness has not caused Brucie's spaniel heart any concern, and rush right in to make amends.

Anne Hagner

Never having met the ch. personally, we're no fit judge of his individual merit. To these old eyes, all cocker spaniels look strangely deformed and undernourished unless they are constructed along the locomotive-like lines of a certain 1931 model named Inky, whose figure has been menaced by too many desserts.

A decade of association with this bottomless-pit-in-the-guise-of-dog has made the normal, trimly built cocker look like a gangling, leggy yearling colt. But even in spite of this, ch. Brucie's pictured splendor shows him to be an unusual chap of both dignity and beauty. He is fortunate that no over-indulgent family has tried to keep up with his appetite.

At any rate, being an inveterate dog show fan enables us to know exactly what rigors the ch. has gone through to gain his immortal spot in the flea-and-bone set. It's a safe wager that for his dough, he's much prefer a pair of soundproof earmuffs to any ch. (ampionships) he could possibly win at Westminster. Memory serves only too well to recall the cacaphony that was loosed at Riverside Stadium last April when the National Capital Kennel Club show lighted there for two days—in comparison, a cheering football crowd would sound as quiet as a school of fish en route to class.

Even now, while watching a mannerly gang of Baltimore Orioles play crash-the-cranium with the Eagles, we have been known to hear the echoes of that bygone dog show and literally wince with pain. They do say, though, that out-and-out dog fanciers don't even notice the yap menace.

The thing about these canine capers that impressed us most, other than the noise, was how astonishingly similar in appearance that owners and their charges are likely to become. It first cropped up when a very handsome, betweeded young man heaved into sight with an equally handsome (though somewhat less appealing) English setter. They suited each other so admirably that they picked up quite a feminine following around Riverside, and as a matter of fact a little high school girl and this department raced—but, as Walter Haight would say, that is another story.

The comparison was further carried out when a small Pekingese named something like ch. Long Fingernails of Fu Manchu minced into the obedience trials, escorting a middle-aged lady who was as close a human counterpart as could be found outside of a Helen Hoskinson drawing. And the man with the English bull—well, for a short time there was considerable doubt in the spectators' minds as to which was Lord Magnolia Blossom of Cherrydale III and which was the owner.

One oddity did crop up during the first afternoon of the show when a newspaper photographer (obviously with a keen and ready wit) courteously requested a debutante to pose with a dog, and produced a French poodle for the purpose. It was all very well until the young lady perceived that she and the pooch wore bangs of surprisingly identical styles. They finally got her to pose with a Bedlington terrier, but it caused no end of ill feeling.

Despite belonging to a race of humans to which "ch." means nothing more noteworthy than "chestnut," we have taken to this dog racket (and we do mean racket) with amazing alacrity. If it gets to the point where we learn to spell "schipperke" without sneezing, boss, may we have fanny-dibs on covering this year's Kennel Club outing? We can hardly wait.

A Modern (250 Lb.) Marco Polo at Home

Washington, D. C.

Dear Boss:

I don't know why I should be writing to you about dogs. It's a long time before the dog days and no wisecracks, please, about these letters going to the dogs. Maybe it's because I have been leading two weary dogs around by shoestrings all day, and you know what the damp weather can do to corns. Possibly it's because I just returned from Florida (or didn't you hear about it?). Down there they give you dogs at Hialeah in the afternoon and dogs at the greyhound races at night, and if you're not careful they'll serve you dog meat for dinner. It makes me feel like a Yankee spy, but, after seeing some of that road cattle, I believe I would prefer a nice fox terrier roast.

HAIGHT

Anyway, my subject for today is dogs and Haighis. I hope my relatives, the ones who are beginning to resent these letters, will note that I put the dogs first, and that goes for Cousin Dog Face whose wife has had him on a leash for 20 years. However, that's another subject that I'm saving for a letter to be titled, "Mad Dogs and Mad Haights."

But it's snowing outside and I'm down to my last Florida orange and here I am pecking away about dogs. From all I can gather, both from observation and from reading George Berner's advice to love-lorn dogs in The Post, the present generation of dogs are sissies.

When we were kids a family got a dog. Nobody seemed to bother particularly about the breeding and the dog didn't ask to look at your family tree. The dog house-broke the old man, followed the children to school, barked at cops and bill collectors, did much sniffing and some lifting and ate nothing but left-overs. Nobody seemed to pay a whole lot of attention to him. During the winter he barked when he wanted to go out and scratched when he wanted to come in. In the summer, the old man would kick a hole in the bottom of the screen door and thereafter the comings and goings of the dog were simply a matter of his own choosing. In the "young man's fancy" days of spring, he would come home with his ears chewed half off, but nobody worried. He nursed them for a few days, stayed out of foreign entanglements and was soon good as new. He died at a ripe old dog age.

This present generation of dogs—all I see them doing is standing around talking about their operations. Nowadays, you go to get a dog and you are asked, "can you support this dog in the manner to which he is accustomed?"

He must have cod liver oil in the morning and his canned dog food must be on a rotating basis, ranging from the combinations of vitamins A and C on Mondays to vitamins B and E on Saturdays. (Our 1912 dog never had to depend on a sameness of diet, either. If memory serves, he was champion garbage-pail-top-remover in our neighborhood.)

The modern dog must take his master for a couple of walks every day. Big, streng men stand around and discuss his health as if he were heir apparent to the British crown. He is not allowed to associate with other dogs. He is inoculated for this and that. When vacation time comes, the dog gets the vet's best care and his master stops at tourist camps.

Now, don't get me wrong, Boss. I'm not a dog-hater and I believe the radio is here to stay. We have had five dogs at our house during the past ten years and, with one exception, all died from natural causes or over-attention. The exception was a big, lovable Dalmatian who grew like a weed. A thoroughbred, if there ever was one, with the conformation of a statue, his white, silk-like coat was covered with black spots the size of a quarter. He had everything a good dog should have but hearing. He was as deaf as the well-known doornail.

His lack of hearing, in a way, was an asset to him. He couldn't read my column and then again he didn't have to listen to Art Brown's program. Knowing his affliction, we tried to be patient with him. He learned some things but, being a Haight, if only by adoption, he never learned to curb his appetite. I believe that if you locked him in a meat market for the night he would be crying for a pork chop before morning.

Jarrin' John Gets $12,500 For Football

Texas A. & M. Star To Get $25,000 From Separate Contract With American Club

By the Associated Press

New York, Feb. 17.—Jarrin' John Kimbrough made his biggest gain today, and he did it with a pen instead of a pigskin.

The Texas A. &. M. All-America signed one-year contracts for football and other services with Douglast Hertz, owner of the New York professional football Yankees which will bring him $37,500. Of this amount, $12,500 represents payment for playing football next fall and the remaining $25,000 will be paid under a separate contract concerning other activities during the year.

No Service Clause Included

Kimbrough received $2,500 upon signing, will get another $2,500 upon his graduation June 1, and the remainder at stipulated intervals.

No military service clause was contained in the football contract, but the personal contract with Hertz will be suspended automatically should Kimbrough be called to the Army.

Kimbrough said he had been informed by the commandant at Texas A. & M. that a one-year deferment had been granted because two brothers are dependent on the athlete. Texas A. & M. is a Government subsidized military college, and the June graduating class has been called for duty. Kimbrough must take a six-week training course at Camp Bullis, San Antonio, after his graduation to qualify for his commission as a result of failure to attend camp last summer.

May Go Into Pictures

On his football contract Kimbrough received $1,500 today, another $1,500 June 1, $1,500 August 15, $2,600 September 12, $2,600 October 15 and $2,800 December 15. The other contract calls for $1,000 now, another $1,000 upon graduation, and $500 a week thereafter during the year until the total is reached. The contracts were for one year each.

Hertz said he had several things in mind for Kimbrough in reference to the personal contract, including the making of Western movie shorts.

Passes Up Cardinals

In signing with the American League club, Kimbrough passed up an offer from the rival National League. With the exception of Michigan's Tommy Harmon, Kimbrough was the most sought-after player in the draft meeting of the 10 National League clubs. He was the No. 1 choice on the draft list of the Chicago Cardinals, of the National League.

Hertz's move in signing Kimbrough is expected to be the opening gun in the smaller American League's drive to move in on the National loop.

Record Sum Lures Kimbrough Into Pro Grid Ranks

John Kimbrough, Texas Aggie All-American fullback, signed yesterday as a player for the New York football Yankees. He received from Owner Douglas G. Hertz a bonus check of $25,000 in addition to a contract calling for $12,500 for the 1941 season. This is reported to be the most money ever paid a football player for a single year.

Hutchinson High Pinman In Bakers' Loop

Eddie Hutchinson was the best man in the Bakers' League at Convention Hall last night with a 145 game and a top set of 406 which helped his Office team take the odd game from Bond Bakers. Holmes Bakery took the odd game from the leading DanDee team and high set of 1,665 as well. The DanDee lads took high team game with 569. Schneider's Rye took all three from Wonder Pan Roll and Holsum took two out of three from Wonder Bread.

TAKOMA

The Shamrocks of Takoma Park again earn an "A" for effort for though they won four out of five games from Charley Gentile's College Park quintet they lost by total pinfall by the score of 3,058 to 3,079. Lou Jenkins had a 646 set for the winners with Capt. Fred Murphy rolling top game of 155. McDonald and Wesley paced the losers with 667 and 626, respectively, with the former having a 144 game. Wesley and McDonald tangled with Jenkins and Eddie Keith in a double match and were on the short end 730 to 757. El Geib took Johnny Burger in a singles match, 372 to 359. Both teams are looking for matches and interested teams should call Happy Newman, Takoma, or Charley Gentile at College Park.

BROOKLAND

Starring for the first time this year, Ralph Johnson, Friendship No. 1 team of the Odd Fe ws at Brookland Recreation, had high game of 151 while Sam Gimble, Covenant, took the big set with a 375 count. The Golden Rule boys again won team highs with 630 and 1,726 and now are in front with 47-13 while the Friendship No. 1 boys have 42-21. Chalmers Groff had a near high set of 373 with Phillips, Loyalty, coming close with a 146 game. Mount Pleasant has taken the last 14 games from opponents to rise from seventh place to third with 39-21.

SILVER SPRING

J. Daniels, Hot Shoppes, had 156 for top game in the Georgia Avenue play at Silver Spring with Bob Chalfonte, Valdenar Landscapers, coming in for the set honors with a splendid 405. Sanford's won the team highs after pinfalls of 616 and 1,726. R. L. Willis was the winner of a free entry in the Franklin Open in Baltimore. National Electric Machine is first, followed by Sanford's and Sherer's.

NORTHEAST TEMPLE

Henry Simmons, Gas Line, was the big shot in the Arrow Cab meet at Northeast Temple, his 148 game and 409 set leading the team to top totals of 605 and 1,621. The Cruisers won all three from the Drivers. Gas Line leads the loop.

CONVENTION

Landon Beats Georgetown Prep, 27 to 23

Center Paul Baker scored nearly half his team's points yesterday to lead Landon Prep to a 27-23 victory over Georgetown Prep on the Garfett Park court.

Baker dropped in five field goals and two free throws for 12 points as Landon avenged an early season defeat by the Little Hoyas and captured their twelfth victory in 15 games.

The game was close throughout, but Landon managed to hang onto an 11-8 half-time lead.

Tarheels Snatch 13th in League

Chapel Hill, N. C., Feb. 17 (AP).—Washington and Lee's rangy Generals displayed a pretty brand of floor play tonight but could not match North Carolinia's set and hook shot artists and the Tar Heels won their thirteenth straight conference victory, 65 to 32.

George Glamack led the scoring with 30 points, bringing his season's total to an open 500, or only nine short of the 509 mark set last year by Modzelewski or Rhode Island State.

Army Baseball Practice Launched

West Point, N. Y., Feb. 17 (AP).—Baseball practice got under way at the United States Military Academy today with 16 pitchers and catchers reporting to Coach Walter French.

The batterymen will hold daily indoor workouts until March 1, when the remainder of the squad will report. French will have Tom Cleary, Tom Tarver, John Atkinson and Eric De Jonckeere as a nucleus for his mound staff. Joe Ahearn heads the list of catchers.

Minnesota Defeats Northwestern, 55-34

Evanston, Ill., Feb. 17 (AP).—Minnesota moved into third place in the Big Ten basketball race tonight with a brilliant second-half scoring splurge which defeated Northwestern, 55 to 34.

The Gophers, trailing by 1 point at intermission, rolled up 38 points in the second half while holding the wobbly Wildcats to a mere 16 tallies. This was Minnesota's fifth win in eight games and Northwestern's sixth defeat in eight efforts.

Iowa State Stops Oklahoma, 44-30

Ames, Iowa, Feb. 17 (AP).—Iowa State's Cyclones, hitting a torrid second half pace, walloped Oklahoma, 44 to 30, in a bitterly fought Big Six Conference basketball game here tonight.

The defeat dropped the Sooners into a third-place tie with Iowa State and Nebraska pulled into the runner-up spot behind league-leading Kansas. It was Iowa State's fourth Big Six triumph in seven starts.

The Cyclones, with Gordon Nicholas making 10 of his 12 points, grabbed a slim 19-to-18 lead at the end of the first half. Oklahoma had led most of the period, but Fred Gordon sent Iowa State ahead in the closing minutes with a field goal.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

Philadelphia, Feb. 17.—Joe Louis' systematic eradication of the most deplorable challengers in the history of the heavyweight division probably will come to a halt after he cools out Abraham Simon in Detroit next month in 2:59 of the fifth round.

CONSIDINE

The return bout with Arturo Godoy, which could be committed in Los Angeles, is just about washed up. And the prospects are that once he attends to Simon, Louis will lay off until he fights Billy Conn in June, and lay off again until he meets Lou Nova in September. That's his schedule, according to Mike Jacobs, one of the five men who direct the path of the most malleable champion of all time. Of course, Joe has nothing to say about it.

There are two reasons why Louis probably will not go through with the aptly termed bum-of-the-month program. For one thing, the familiarity of the boxing fan is breeding a slightly mild contempt for Joe. Not for his skill, of course, but he is being fed too often to the public. And being fed too often means that in order to keep busy he must fight third raters like Doraxio, who apparently won his right to fight tonight for the most priceless bauble in fistiana by losing decisively to Conn. Anyway, Joe's operators are beginning to sense that they are cheapening the box office value of one of the greatest fighters of all time, and that they must shelve him for a while and give the public a chance to miss him.

The other reason for checking his activity is the newly increased Federal income tax. Joe's monthly fights aren't drawing titanic gates, but each one shoves him into a higher bracket. He must call a halt so that his income from the two big fights this summer do not push him so high in the bracket division that he will be forced to turn over all he makes on the Nova fight, for example, to Mr. Whiskers.

Louis already is the largest individual taxpayer in sport today, and not far behind Sonja Henie, who makes a quarter of a million or so dollars a year from skating shows and movie work. The more he works, the less he gets to keep. He is the first heavyweight champion who ever had to apportion his work so that he worked as much for himself as for Uncle Sam. There is an outside chance that Uncle Sam will usher Joe into the Army at $21 a month, a proposal which will not meet with enthusiasm in Sam's Bureau of Internal Revenue.

We have overlooked Max Baer in the heavyweight picture purposely. We just have a hunch that Nova will eliminate him (again) when they meet in April. That would keep Lou in line for a fall fight for the title, and he won't fall afoul another Galento.

Max, having been knocked out by Nova in the summer of 1939, will have no great confidence against Lou. And he must have that commodity. Lou tasted many of the hardest punches Max ever threw the night he practically stood out there and dared Baer to hit him on the jaw. He is convinced that he can beat Max again, which won't help Baer. But the chief reason for dealing shortly here with Max is that everybody knows that the fellow never wants to fight Louis again. That will subtly deter him in this "elimination" fight. And he can't hate Nova, who once caddied for him, and Baer fights well these days only when that lump of anger is in his throat.

If things go through as expected by Mike Jacobs' office, with Louis meeting Conn and Nova in the season's top fights, Joe will be meeting in Conn the ablest boxer he has ever met and in Nova a very good boxer who, over a period of many rounds, can also inflict a lot of damage. Joe hasn't met much in the way of boxers, except Bob Pastor, (who is startling some of the experts by going into training, he says, to fight Louis in California).

We think Joe is beyond his prime, and that the bums he is being fed are further dulling his weapons. But if either Conn or Nova, the two top challengers, come close to beating him it will be one of the major surprises of the 1941 sports year.

Leo Houck Returns to C. U. Line-up; Will Fight Saturday

Much attention will be centered around the 175-pound scrap out at Brookland gymnasium Saturday night when the city's hot college boxing rivalry between Catholic University's Fighting Cardinals and Columbus University's Explorers gets under way for the second year.

Coach Eddie LaFond's chances of breaking back once again to the winning column, after having the 13-match winning streak snapped Saturday night by Louisiana Institute, received a shot in the arm yesterday when Leo Houck, jr., promising young sophomore, returned for action after a forced layoff due to an attack of the flu.

Houck had a record of two impressive victories against one loss for his ring efforts this season before the cold germ caught up and floored him for a count. He scored a two-round K. O. over Lock Haven State Teachers in the opening meet and won over the United States Coast Guard. He suffered his first defeat against Maryland.

His opponent for Saturday night will be Columbus University's consistent winner, hard hitting, Red Doherty. Undefeated in ring competition Doherty scored both victories this season by knockouts. In the opening meet against The Citadel, the Explorer light heavyweight bounced his opponent to the canvas in the second round and against Arkansas Tech took but 25 seconds of the first round to dispose of his foe.

Critical Week Facing Local School Fives

Though six weeks under steady fire have gone before, eight scholastic basketball teams in this vicinity make or break their chances for a successful season this week during one of the heaviest schedules of the season.

The public school championship tournament Friday and Saturday, of course, leads all in interest, but a pair of other title clashes are down for Thursday. Gonzaga, boasting one of the best records in this area, attempts to lock up the Catholic prep crown with its second triumph of the year over St. John's at Tech gym. And Bethesda-Chevy Chase tries to do the same by the Montgomery County championship in a meeting with Montgomery Blair at College Park.

End Interhigh Season

By way of starting hostilities today, Roosevela and Anacostia close out the interhigh regular season at the latter's gymn at 3:30, the only thing hinging on the outcome being the pairings for the weekend's tournament. If Roosevelt wins, as it should with the greatest of ease, it will tie Eastern for first in the standings and force a draw for opponents in Friday night's first games. If Roosevelt loses, the No 1 team, Eastern, will automatically face the No. 3 team, Tech, in Friday's double-header and Roosevelt will meet Western.

Other engagement's on today's card bring together St. John's and Western in Georgetown at 3:30, Gonzaga and G. W. High in Alexandria at 8 p. m., Washington-Lee and Bethesda-C. C. on the latter's floor at 8 p. m. and Friends School and St. James in Hagerstown.

Berth at Stake

Bethesda and Gonzaga will be looking even farther ahead than the dominance of their own leagues as they tangle with their prime rivals Thursday. Both depend on a victory to enter the Metropolitan Tournament two weeks hence without a playoff. In addition, Gonzaga has its eye on a beautiful trophy which it has chipped in to buy with St. John's and Georgetown Prep, making Catholic Prep competition more than mythical. The cup was delivered only yesterday.

Scoring Leaders

Going into the critical week's play, a gangly forward from Gonzaga tops all rivals in The Post's compilation of individual scoring. Franny Counselman, who has gradually worked his way up from far down the list, grabbed the lead with fine performances against Georgetown Prep, the Georgetown freshmen and Anacostia, his 189 points in 18 games accounting for a 10.50 average.

In second place as Jackie Walsh, leader for four weeks, dropped to a deadlock for sixth, was Friends School's Armand Newmyer, last year's high scorer. He has tallied 125 points in 12 games, an average of 10.42. Walsh had trouble in games with Eastern and Central, his average sagging to 9.38.

Just off the pace again are Landon's Paul Baker, Blair's Nick Carter and Roosevelt's Hymie Perlo, while a big advance was marked up by Wilson's Don Hillock as he tied for sixth place with Walsh.

Fitzsimmons Hurts Heel in Practice

Havana, Feb. 17 (AP).—Freddy Fitzsimmons, veteran Dodger pitcher, suffered a bruise on the right heel in today's workout.

The accident happened when Manager Leo Durocher was having pitchers' practice leaving the mound to cover first base. Fitzsimmons suffered the injury when he steped on the base. An X-ray examination will be made to determine extent of the injury.

During par tof the workout devoted to batting practice Pitchers Van Mungo, Kirby Higbe, Curt Davis, Lee Grissom and Luke Hamlin took turns on the mound. The players worked under a hot sun and many wore handkerchiefs around their necks to guard against sunburn.

G. W. to Face Odd Style In Va. Game Tomorrow

Cavaliers Use Old Meanwell System With Good Effect; Clash Of Strong Rivals at Riverside

One of the few teams still employing the "Meanwell System" which a few years ago created a sensation in the college basketball ranks, is the University of Virginia five which meets George Washington at Riverside Stadium tomorrow night.

Meanwell, former coach at Wisconsin, no longer is in the business and little now is heard about the style of play he popularized, but Gus Tebell has used it to advantage at Virginia and its merits may be well gauged in tomorrow night's game with the streamlined Colonials.

Tebell's club has won 13 of 15 games this season, which coupled with its 1939-40 record of 15 and 6 seems to indicate there's still life in the old system yet.

Odd Talent Helps

The "Meanwell System," just as any other method of play in any other sport, depends for success mostly on the team's possession of players with certain peculiar talents. And Virginia has three such performers in Billy Harman, Billy McCann and Dick Wiltshire.

The Cavaliers do little outside shooting, preferring to work the ball beneath the basket where the Harman-McCann-Wiltshire trio can go into action. Harmon and Wiltshire, both deadly at shooting with the over-the-shoulder motion, are stationed on a double pivot. And McCann, the team's best ball handler and a fellow who can set shoot with the best, if necessary, works the ball in to his two mates at their positions on either side of the foul line.

When McCann passes to either Wiltshire or Harman the Virginia offense opens up. And because Harman and Wiltshire both are tall and both can pivot and shoot with accuracy the Cavaliers are hard to stop from scoring once they get the ball in close.

Natural Lefty

Wiltshire particularly is difficult to halt because he is a natural left-handed shooter. Harman, however, is the team's point-getting ace, leading the Cavaliers last season with a total of 231 points, and pacing them again currently with well over 200 markers.

Virginia's version of the "Meanwell System" is slightly different than any George Washington yet has encountered, and for that reason the Colonials may have their hands full. Last year G. W. was forced into an extra period to defeat the team from Charlottesville, 35-32.

Virginia's two other starters will be Albert Lowman, at center, and Landon Buchanan who will work with McCann at the guards. Bill Welfley and Bill Preston are the chief reserves. The Cavalier five is tall, with Harman going 6-ft.-3, Lowman and Preston 6-ft.-2, McCann and Buchanan 5-ft.-11, and Wiltshire 5-ft.-10.

George Washington, boasting 15 victories and 3 losses, will counter with Matt Zunic and Joe Comer, 6-ft.-3 forwards; Charley Jones, 6-ft.-3 center, and Bobby Gilham, 5-ft.-10, and Lou Veltri, 5-ft.-9, at guards.

Virginia Alumni Here To Rally Tonight

The Washington chapter of the University of Virginia Alumni Association will meet tonight at 8 o'clock at the Carlton Hotel in a rally for the Cavaliers' basketball game here with George Washington tomorrow night at Riverside Stadium.

Malcolm Luck, executive secretary of the Virginia National Alumni Association, will preside. Technicolor pictures of the 1940 Virginia-North Carolina football game will be shown.

Tickets for the Virginia-G. W. basketball game will be on sale.

Fred Wolcott Enters Terp Indoor Games

By the Associated Press

One of the world's premier hurdlers—Fred Wolcott of Rice Institute, Texas—sent in his entry blank yesterday to compete in the University of Maryland-Fifth Regiment indoor games at Baltimore March 7.

Wolcott holds the world's outdoor mark of 22.5 seconds for the 220-yard low hurdles, and shares the American record of 13.9 seconds in the 110-yard timbers.

Geary Eppley, University of Maryland athletic director and vice-chairman of the indoor games committee, said Wolcott would compete in the 70-yard hurdles at Baltimore and possibly might double up in dash events.

Wolcott broke the world's record by one-tenth of a second for the 60-yard hurdles in the Millrose A. A. games at New York recently, traveling the distance in .07.2. At the Penn A. C. meet in Philadelphia, he set a new 50-yard mark with .06.1, and at the Boston A. A., established a new 45-yard record in .05.5.

V. M. I. Hunt to Visit Warrenton, Deep Run

Lexington, Va., Feb. 17 (AP).—Jimmy Wheat, president of the V. M. I. Hunt Club, said today that the group would make trips this year to ride with the Warrenton and Deep Run Hunts. The dates have not been set.

2 More Terps In Conference Indoor Meet

University of Maryland foreseeing a good chance to win the team championship of the Southern Conference indoor track championships Saturday, yesterday announced one definite and one possible added starter.

Track Coach Geary Eppley said Tommy Fields, who will defend his two-mile championship, also will compete in the mile, and that Joe Murphy, best dashman in the conference, may be in shape to make his season's indoor debut.

With Fields a strong contender in the mile and Murphy a near-certain bet to win either or both the 100 and 220 dashes, the Terps with contestants in five other events see an opportunity to dethrone North Carolina as team titleholder.

Eppley also revealed that Maryland will have two representatives in the freshman section of the meet. Dick Alexander, who last year won the scholastic high jump in the colors of West Nottingham High with a leap of six feet four-onesixteenth inches, and Sterlang Kehoe, the crack middle distance ace from Bel Air High, will be the frosh entries.

Jockey Dies of Injuries as Spills Mar Day at Hialeah

McCreary, Anderson Escape Serious Injury; One Horse Breaks His Neck

By the Associated Press

Hialeah Park, Fla., Feb. 17.—The jinx that seems to have caused several accidents here of late was working this afternoon. Veteran Irving Anderson and the sensational Conn McCreary figured in spills that, fortunately, did no more than bruise and shake up the boys. Coming so soon on top of the fatal accident to Apprentice Joseph Giangaspro, who died early today, and lesser mishaps to Harry Meynell, Robert Vedder and one or two others, local patrons have become jittery on the slightest provocation. Giangaspro was hurt in a spill last Friday.

Anderson fell with John's Heir near the sixteenth pole during the fourth race. His mount was caught on the rail, apparently forced down by Speed to Spare. John's Heir broke his neck, while Anderson said his back hurt and canceled his remaining mounts.

McCreary's narrow escape came as the field for the sixth race, the Sanford Claiming Handicap, was going postward for the event over the turf course. The little Missourian had just ridden his fortieth winner and lost his 5 pounds apprentice allowance in the previous contest. Riding as a full-fledged jockey for the first time, McCreary lost control of F. P. Jump's Ranger 2nd, the favorite. The gelding ran up the stretch and, with his rider, bumped into the quarter pole at the head of the stretch. McCreary was removed by the track ambulance. A few minutes later, he was reported merely shaken up and bruised on one arm. The boy canceled his only remaining mount.

The track management decided to refund all money bet on Ranger 2nd, which was withdrawn. This announcement brought loud cheers from the gelding's many backers.

Silent tWitness was easily best of those left after Ranger 2nd had been removed from the field. Don Meade, earning a double, rated the C. H. Trotter veteran behind Mucho Gusto to the stretch, then sent his mount on to win by two lengths at $4.40 for two. Mucho Gusto beat Rex Flag by a length and a half for the place.

*Field.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TAUNT, $8.30, $4.90, $3.50; STIMSTONE, $5.20, $3.70; GUMMED UP, $4.80.

TAUNT broke forwardly, went in close attendance of the pace and, responding with determination, outlasted STIMSTONE when the final test came. STIMSTONE, quickest away, bore out in the early stages. He continued with good courage when it came to a drive, but Meade outrode Eads. GUMMED UP broke slowly, dropped behind the field and took the rail making up much ground. MISS SHOPPER raced well on the outside. It was a rough race and several of the starters had little chance.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200. For maiden 3-year-olds. Start good from Bahr gate. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post at 2:38. Off at 2:38⅘. Winner, Tower Stable's b. c. (3), by Sir Galahad III—Cairn. Trained by M. Jolley. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:11⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PETTAGAIRN, $4.30, $3.30, $2.50; TOP CALL, $8.50, $4.10; LANTE, $2.90.

PETTAGAIRN raced FANTASMA into submission the first half mile and opened up a good lead, but was ridden vigorously to the finish. TOP CALL, hard urged from the start, closed stoutly and held LANTE safe. The latter, in tight quarters early, saved ground turning into the stretch and finished stoutly under punishment. SHIM SHAM turned in an even effort.

Daily Double, TAUNT and FETTACAIRN, Paid $28.80

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won cleverly; place driving. Went to post at 3:07. Off at 3:07⅘. Winner, Lindale Park Stable's b. g. (6), by Sir Galahad III—Sunstroke. Trained by P. L. Kelley. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:12⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GALLANT STROKE, $11.60, $5.60, $4.00; MAECARO, $8.10, $5.50; HUNTING HOME, $3.40.

GALLANT STROKE, a factor from the start on the inside, shook off his opposition midway around the turn and maintained his lead under mild pressure. MAECARO also saved ground rounding the turn, finished gamely, but could not overhaul the winner. HUNTING HOME, blocked and roughed in the early stages, came fast when clear and was easily best of the others. MOONLITE BOBBY closed a good gap while circling the field.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:36. Off at 3:37⅘. Winner, Whitehall Plantation's br. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—WAKE ROBIN, $35.80, $10.80, $6.50; COMMENCEMENT, $9.70, $5.50; HIGH SCOPE, $6.60.

WAKE ROBIN, well upon the outside all the way, finished gamely under punishment and outlasted COMMENCEMENT in the stretch drive. COMMENCEMENT, nearest in pursuit of the leader throughout, took a brief lead in the final sixteenth, but could not stave off the winner's bid. SPEED TO SPARE, quickest to begin, swung slightly wide turning into the stretch, bore over at the furlong pole and held JOHN'S HEIR in tight quarters. The latter crossed his legs, fell and broke his neck. SPEED TO SPARE was disqualified.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,400; allowances. The Key West, Grade C. For 3-year-olds. Start good from gate. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post at 4:12. Off at 4:12⅘. Winner, Greentree Stable's b. g. (3), by Questionnaire—Perhaps So. Trained by J. M. Gaver. Value to winner, $1,000; second, $250; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:50⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BAGGRAVE, $7.60, $4.00, $3.20; PATSEY BEGONE, $4.60, $3.60; PALASA, $11.00.

BAGGRAVE, in nearest pursuit of the leader all the way, took command at the furlong pole and won in hand. PATSEY BEGONE, hustled to the front, displayed the most speed while saving ground, but was no match for the winner. PALASA gradually bettered her position and closed with a rush. SUNABELL, well ridden, had no excuses.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:48. Off at 5:49. Winner, J. Summers' b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—PAUL PRY, $19.40, $8.20, $4.70; SNOW, $5.00, $3.80; HANDIBOY, $3.70.

PAUL PRY, going in his top form, began to improve his position on the inside leaving the backstretch and outgamed SNOW in the final drive. SNOW, nearest in pursuit of the pace all the way, was carried out entering the stretch and hung in the final drive. HANDIBOY set a steady pace, but bore out and faltered in the stretch run. VELDT finished well. SHORT DISTANCE retired after going 6 furlongs.

Selections at Hialeah Park

Dear Al:

The splitting of the $10,000 added McLennan Handicap last Saturday served to start many arguments between betters and bookies, so I understand. The first division was won by Hatal and the second division by Big Pebble. Here's where the controversy came: The Circle M Ranch had an entry in the race as it was originally set up. Get Off and Big Pebble were supposed to run paired. But when the race was split, Get Off also ran in the first division and Big Pebble won the second division. Wagers were made before it was known that the field had been divided and were not withdrawn. Some of those who bet on the entry want to be paid off, contending that Big Pebble, half of the entry, won. I was asked for my opinion and I'm forced to side with the bookies. When the race was split, it ceased to be the race for which the bet was intended and the bet is off. Of course, the better gets his money back. For sake of argument, I was asked what would be my answer if both Get Off and Big Pebble had run in the same division and one of them had won. I would still say that there was no bet as the entry would be running in other than the original race. I picked Get Off and I wish I could take credit for Big Pebble's victory. I understand the Racing Form is being questioned and it will be interesting to get their answer. The latest future odds on the $100,000 added Santa Anita Handicap arrived with Agua Caliente's weekly paper. They show 15 to 1 on Porter's Cap, winner of the Santa Anita Derby, 5 to 2 on Mioland, and 3 to 1 on Challedon. The longest price on the list is 3,000 to 1 on C. P. Smith. Now for the winners. BILL.

First race—WARLEE is placed on the outside in this field and may be the right one. Eddie Arcaro will do the riding, and I'm going to string along. TOWER MAID is reported speedy and deserves attention. SAZERAC GIRL for the show end.

Second race—CALORY could be a keen factor, if not the winner, in this sprint affair. The route and the weight suits and the price would be right. O PLAY figures to be close with good riding. GREENY won over this course.

Third race—OUR GRACE gets in light and McCreary is the probable rider. The combination appears best in my book. BLUMERE and JAN ONE will be ready to battle it out if the top one makes mistakes.

Fourth race—MENTAL GIANT, with Meade in the saddle, promises to do a lot of running over the turf course. Likes the distance and I'm going to take my chances. WELL ALL RIGHT has some good races and may be a threat. MISS BEANS for the minor award.

Fifth race—WHIRLAWAYY is the natural choice in this field. Needs only to run his race. SIGNATOR defeated The Rhymer and will be close to the winner at the end. CADMIUM probably will complete the money bracket.

Sixth race—MAR LE failed us last out, but turned in a good effort. This field may bow to this sprint star. ONE WITCH and FAIRFLAX could fill out the cash positions.

Seventh race—EXARCH gets only 106 pounds and promises to have McCreary aboard. I see no reason for mistakes. RAPHAEL II and SUNDODGER to take care of the others.

Eighth race—BUTTERMILK is tossed in this with 105 pounds, plus the rail position. May take down the chief end of the purse. BELL HELEN is better than races show and is a posssible surprise. BLACKMAIL to show.

Best bet—MAR LE.

DeChard Makes Pro Debut Here Next Month

'Alvis, Turner Battle Over Promotion

Former Amateur Heavyweight Champ Guaranteed $1,000 For Three Fights

By Al Hailey

Jimmy DeChard, former District amateur heavyweight champion, will make his long-awaited professional debut in a Washington boxing ring in March, it was announced yesterday.

Along with the announcement came the threat of another battle—this one over who will promote the DeChard debut.

Frankie Mann, manager of the Southwest fighter, said he has been made "two very attractive offers" by both Joe Turner and Ray Alvis, rival promoters now embroiled in an argument over who has prior claim to the Petey Scalzo-Chalky Wright featherweight title fight.

Pete Moran, Philadelphia fight promoter and manager, also has made Mann an offer for DeChard's services in the Quaker City.

Turner Guarantees $1,000

Turner, who has guaranteed DeChard $1,000 for three pro fights, was promised the services of the promising young amateur. But that was before Alvis entered the local fight picture.

Alvis has equaled Turner's offer for the right to bring out DeChard in his professional debut. What's more, Alvis—who recently tied up with New York's Mike Jacobs—wants to sign up DeChard for a series of six straight fights.

Mann said that Turner wants to put DeChard in a headline fight March 17 at his Fourteenth and W Streets arena. The fight would be an eight-rounder.

Alvis' offer looks more attractive to Mann, it is understood, because the new promoter is willing to give DeChard the same amount of money for fighting a special six-round battle March 6 at Uline's $700,000 ice arena.

Big Spur to Boxing

DeChard will be placed in a six-round semifinal on the Billy-Conn-Danny Hassett fight being promoted by Alvis and Jacobs if Mann can obtain a release from his promise to Turner to give Joe first chance at Jimmy's services.

Jimmy's decision to turn pro is expected to prove a big spur to interest in local boxing.

The 22-year-old 190-pounder has been termed by such eminent authorities as Gene Tunney as one of the few young heavyweights who has a chance to win the heavyweight crown from Champion Joe Louis. Turner's matchmaker, Gabe Menendez, has personally indorsed Jimmy as the sure thing to ascend to the heavyweight throne in 1942.

DeChard, who recently completed his apprenticeship as a plumber, has lost but one fight in four years of amateur battling.

Beat Louis' Opponent

He lost to Buddy Moore, New York colored heavyweight, two years ago in the National Golden Gloves tournament in Madison Square Garden when he received a cut eye and the battle had to be stopped.

DeChard two summers ago defeated the gigantic Tony Novak, of Kansas City, national amateur heavyweight champion, in Griffith Stadium. Novak has been talked of as the next Joe Louis opponent after the Abe Simon fight.

Mann picked up Jimmy when the latter was barely 18 years old and weighed but 178 pounds. Under Frankie's tutelege, Jimmy has become one of the most polished fighters ever developed in Washington. He has a good punch in both hands, is rugged and fast and is able to stand up under heavy punishment.

A shy, unassuming youth, DeChard comes from the same neighborhood that produced Lou Gevinson and Steve Mamakos. Mann first noticed Jimmy when he turned up in Frankie's gym with a group of Police Boys' Club aspirants. Mann persuaded him to take up amateur fighting.

In his first amateur tourney, DeChard defeated Leon Miller, then the amateur heavyweight champion of the Third Corps Area. That was in the Golden Gloves tourney of 1937. Since then, Jimmy won the Gloves and A. A. U. title every year until last year's tourney, when he did not compete.

D. C. Paddlers Perform Well

The District of Columbia entries in the Pennsylvania Open table tennis championships held at Reading, Pa., Sunday were back in town yesterday without any titles to show for their efforts but with the feeling they made a good showing.

District champion Stanley Fields reached the semifinals of the men's singles, men's doubles and mixed doubles, while Carolyn Wilson, winner of the recent Eastern women's championships, got to the singles semifinals, where she was beaten by the eventual winner, Henrietta Wright, of Philadelphia. Miss Wilson and Fields paired in the mixed doubles and lost to Laslo Bellak and Burdyn Stapleton, the dancer.

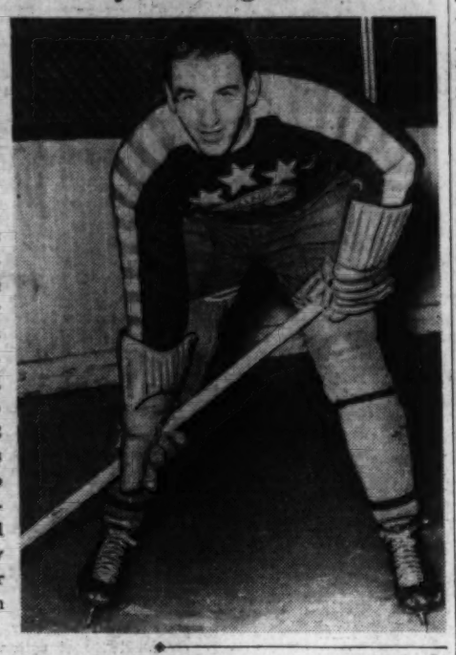
Fields then teamed with Paul Capell, of Delaware, in the men's doubles and was defeated in the semifinals by Bill Crass and "Smitty" Schmidt.

Bellak, a Hungarian playing out of New York, was the biggest star of the tournament, winning the men's singles without loss of a single game, and also sharing in the men's doubles and mixed championships. En route to the men's singles title Bellak beat Lou Gorin, of Washington.

Augie Galan Accepts Cubs' Terms for 1941

Chicago, Feb. 17 (AP).—The Chicago Cubs received the signed contract of Augie Galan, outfielder, today, leaving the club with 13 unsigned players. Galan, whose winter residence is Berkeley, Calif., played in only 68 games last season, because he suffered a leg injury.

Seeks Hockey Scoring Record



Norm Burns, Washington Eagles' center, will seek a new Eastern Amateur League scoring record tonight when he faces his former teammates, the Atlantic City Sea Gulls, at 8:30 at Riverside Stadium. Burns, who has tallied 52 goals, needs two more to break a record held jointly by Herb Foster and Norm Calladine

Eagles Stake Much Tonight Against Gulls

By Jack Munhall

Strip the ice for action, Horatius, and call out the reserves, for at 8:30 tonight the Washington Eagles and the Atlantic City Sea Gulls will be at it again at Riverside in a match with more angles than a boxing promoter.

Seeking to again displace Baltimore as the Eastern League leader, even up their season series with the resort roughies and at the same time help Norm Burns to a new goal scoring record, the Eagles will be in no trifling mood against one of their most consistent nemeses.

Similarly, the Sea Gulls, who presently are the hottest club in the league and fresh from handing the Orioles their first home defeat in 26 matches, will be in there swinging to prevent a castoff from setting a new league record for goals in one season.

It is a matter of pride that chiefly governs Atlantic City's determination that Burns shall not ring up the two goals he needs to crack Herb Foster's mark of 54 for a season, for last year Burns wasn't deemed enough player to stick with the Sea Gulls. About the middle of the 1940 campaign Burns was given his release from the Gulls who decided his style of play didn't fit in with that taught by bellicose Burt Corbeau, the fugitive from Baltimore.

Since, the 195-pound center has blossomed out under the wing of Washington Coach Redvers Mackenzie as one of the most sought-after amateurs in the country. Burns, beseiged by pro offers, was well on his way to top Ab Colling's record of 101 points for a season when laid low by an epidemic of picayunish injuries. Now, with his chance for he point record apparently gone, Burns, is concentrating on the goal mark and also on winning the league scoring title.

Burns Has Two Rivals

A pair of Atlantic City rivals, Sammy Fasano and Heck Pozzo, loom as Burns' chief contenders for the scoring crown. Fasano, tallying four goals and one assist in a recent match with the Eagles, forged ahead of Burns and the latest official statistics showed Fasano with 67 points, Burns with 66, and Pozzo with 65.

In the match at Atlantic City in which Fasano broke out with his four goals and one assist the feud between the Eagles and the Gulls also reached its dizzy peak when the Washington players needed a police escort to reach their dressing room.

Two of the league's best goalies will be glimpsed in this encounter, Washington's Les Colvin and the Gulls' Lyle Porter, both of whom have been improving with amazing rapidity. Porter, in his last Riverside appearance, won the plaudits of the crowd in turning back a shot-crazy bunch of Eagles with four goals while his mates scored nine.

Chicago Five Bows Again; This Time, 42-29

Chicago, Feb. 17 (AP).—Scoring only 12 points in the second half, Chicago dropped its eighth straight Big Ten cage decision tonight to a mediocre Michigan quintet, 42 to 29.

The Maroons, who have yet to win a conference game, trailed by only four points at halftime, but in the second half the Wolverines scored 21 points while allowing but 12.

Baer Brothers Pitch Ring Camp at Lakewood

Lakewood, N. J., Feb. 17 (INS).—The Baers—Max and Buddy—arrived at Lakewood tonight and pitched their training camp in preparation for two heavyweight duels soon. Max tackles Lou Nova in 12 rounds April 24 while Buddy meets Tony Galento March 26 in a 10-rounder. Manager Ancil Hoffman, who accompanied the fighters, said Max now weighs 225 and Buddy 252.

Wilson Five Beats Towson; Clark Stars

Charley Clark and company, representing Wilson Teachers College, hung up its twelfth basketball triumph of the season last night, on the home floor, trampling Towson Teachers by a 49-to-35 count.

Clark, as usual, led the scoring with 15 points. He was the big gun as the Owls rushed into a 29-to-12 half-time lead, but Center Ernie Cole contributed his share of the scoring with 12 points. Twelve players saw action for the winners, who have tasted defeat only six times to date.

Fishel and Cox, each with 9 counters, led the losers' unsuccessful efforts.

Louis KO's Gus Dorazio In 2d Round

Moros is owned by Bill Duffy, whose penchant for mastodonic oafs was thought, until tonight, to have reached its high when he owned Primo Carnera.

Myhasuk Wins

In the next six-round bout, Willie Reddish, 195, Philadelphia, and Lee Q. Murray, 196, Norwalk, Conn., fought to a draw. Both are Negroes.

The scheduled six-round bout between Teny Cisco, 167, Norristown, Pa., and Bobby Jones, 173, Atlantic City, was pared down to four by the promoters because the main event was slated to be broadcast at 10 p. m. (E. S. T.). Jones won the decision.

Ex-Army Grid Star To Be Health Tutor

By the Associated Press

Lieut. Comdr. Edward William Mahan, who was an All-American football player at Harvard about 1916, was ordered today to the new Naval Air Station at Jacksonville, Fla., to keep the fliers training there in good physical trim.

Mahan will be physical director at Jacksonville in a recreational and athleitc program which is being coordinated at Naval Air Stations generally by Lieut. Comdr. James J. Tunney, former world's heavyweight boxing champion.

The program is designed especially to condition aviation cadets training to become naval fliers.

Red Wings Again Call Hockey Record Scorer

Detroit, Feb. 17 (AP).—William (Bill) Jennings, rookie wingman of the Indianapolis Capitals who established a new world's hockey scoring record last night with three goals in 57 seconds against the Hershey Bears in an American League game, was recalled again today by the Detroit Red Wings.

Rams' Quarterback Is Called by Army

Phoenix, Ariz., Feb. 17 (AP).—Victor Spadaccini, quarterback for the Cleveland Rams and former star at Minnesota, has been ordered to report for military service in March, he was advised today.

A. U. Five Beats Juniata For 3d Straight

A hopped-up American University quintet defeated the Juniata College courtmen, 50 to 41, on the home floor last night for the third consecutive victory of the season and gives them a .500 average for the ten games played.

Although Archie Norford, scrappy Eagle guard, shared top scoring honors of the evening with Al Leopold, Juniata captain, at 14 points each, Dutch Schulze, leader of the Eagles, maintained his 12-point-per-game average last night and continues to be A. U.'s high-point man of the season.

Lead 26-14 at Half

The Juniata lads drew first blood at the outset when chunky Mick Leeper capitalized on Norford's foul to sink a charity shot. This advantage was shortlived, however, for Reese, Schulze, Norford and Hollis, all found the range in quick succession to put American ahead, 6 to 1, before the game was five minutes old. From this point on, the lead never changed hands, and the Eagles had stretched the count to 26-14 at the half.

During the initial period a tight zone defense limited the Pennsylvanians to a mere four baskets. The Indians, however, were death on foul shots and made six good in the first half and seven more later in the game for a total of 13 out of 16 attempted.

Eagles Hard-Pushed

Although the Eagles maintained their scoring clip in the second half, they were hard-pushed at times to stave off the onslaughts of Leopold, who hit the rims with disturbing regularity to pick up a dozen counters in that session. Though it was principally through his offensive efforts that the visitors stayed in the ball game, he received some aid from his center, Reklis, whose shooting belied his name.

Devitt Prep Wins Over Greenbelt

After trailing most of the way, Devitt Prep tied up its game with Greenbelt in last few seconds last night and easily outscored its host in an overtime to take a 30-27 victory.

A total of 43 foul shots were allowed during the game, Devitt sinking eight out of 17 and Greenbelt nine out of 26.

After first quarter Greenbelt led, 6-4, and its halftime and third-quarter margins were 9-8 and 17-14. Coming back with a rush, Devitt tied the count at 25-25 at the end of regulation time and won on points by Pons, Boswell and Delisi. The latter's 13 points won scoring honors over Porter, of Greenbelt, who had 12.

Ernie Dusek Signed For Blood Bank Card

Younger of 'Riot-Squad' Brother Act to Meet Lou Plummer in Support of Rudy's Main Bout Engagement With Green Hornet

The Green Hornet, mysterious masked wrestler, will have to watch his step Thursday night at Turner's Arena in his headline wrestling match with Ernie Dusek, the durable Nebraskan. For it was announced yesterday by Promoter Joe Turner that another Dusek—Big Brother Rudy, who organized the notorious "Riot Squad"—had been booked for a semi-windup match on the card.

Ten per cent of the gross proceeds of the show will be turned over to the Children's Hospital Blood Bank Fund sponsored by The Washington Post and Station WJSV.

Brother Rudy's opponent will be one Lou Plummer, of Baltimore, who, according to Turner, never has had much use for any of the Duseks.

But the fact is that Brother Rudy is sore at The Green Hornet for snubbing a challenge he flung at him recently. It happened about the time Ernie took a walkout on a previous bout, and Rudy stepped into the picture by saying he'd like to be the first of the Duseks to take a crack at the Hornet and attempt to unmask him.

Rudy hopes to finish his semi-windup in time to occupy a ringside seat and watch Brother Ernie score his second straight over the Hornet. And the brotherly love is such that should the Hornet attempt to commit mayhem to the nth degree—Rudy may come to Ernie's aid. It's been done before.

A special 30-minute match will be between Len Macaluso, former Colgate, All-American footballer, and Eddie Newman, of New York.

Tickets are on sale at Turner's Arena, Fourteenth and W Street Northwest. Reservations may be made by calling Michigan 6614.

Hand Section Five Routs Composing

Center Jackstatter, of the Hand Section five, turned in the high scoring effort of the day yesterday as the D. C. Recreation Basketball League underwent a 12-game schedule at five gyms. Jackstatter rolled in 14 points to pace his team to a 36-25 rout of Night Composing at Tech gym.

Other games at the same site saw Blank Section nose out Book Section, 17-16, and Club "40" beat Plate Vaults, 21-14.

At Central the feature battle went to Vienna A. C., 25-23, over Boarding House A. C. with a desperate rally near the end. Fort Hunt defeated Happy Hollow, 30-22, and Garvins smashed Trinity Lutheran, 40-19. Geography five was almost shut out by the Barons at Roosevelt gym, a 33-9 shellacking being suffered. The other clashes saw Housing beat Machine Tab, 26-17, and Population barely edged out Agriculture, 19-17.

At Eastern a narrow 38-34 decision was pulled out by Pincus over Greenbelt, with Forward Bowie leading the way. Marion A. C. swamped Trojans, 42-17, at the same floor, and at Macfarland Junior High P. W. A. tripped Friendship House, 24-18.

Raskin's Fighter On Arena Card

Ossie Stewart, the Pittsburgh colored middleweight newly acquired by Harry Raskin, is expected to appear in the semi-final eight-rounder on the card featuring Phil Furr versus Gene Buffalo, Philadelphia colored welter, Monday night at Turner's Arena.

Stewart, undefeated in nine local matches, originally was scheduled to fight on the postponed Joe Archibald-Harry Jeffra fight show.

Speed Skating 'One of Finest Local Events'

Dr. Christopher Meyer, president of the Southeastern Skating Association, yesterday emphasized that the National Indoor Speed Skating Championships to be held at Uline Arena Saturday and Sunday is one of the most important events ever staged here.

Dr. Meyer said the national indoor championships is the world series of speed skating, and once again predicted that the entry list would exceed the previous record field of 155 contestants. Entries closed Saturday with various skating groups but all of them won't be received here until today or tomorrow.

Dr. Meyer said: "The National Indoor Speed Skating championships, wherein 27 national skating titles will be decided, is one of the most important athletic events Washington has ever played host to and will be one of the most spectacular.

"Not only will 27 national champions be crowned, but the event is recognized by ice skaters all over the country as the biggest event of the indoor season. In reality, it is the world series of speed skating.

"The meet will bring speed skating specialists from all sections of the country, including defending champion Leo Freisinger, of Chicago; his nearest challenger, Ken Bartholomew, of Minneapolis; Vic Ronchetti, of Chicago; Delbert Lamb, of Milwaukee, and another Minneapolis ace, who recently won the Silver Skates Carnival at Madison Square Garden, New York, Charles 'Chuck' Leighton."

Tickets are on sale at Uline Ice Arena, with reserved seats at $1.10, 75 cents and 55 cents, and 25 cents for school children and high school students equipped with athletic association cards.

100 Contestants Assured for A.A.U. Boxing

A field of 100 contestants last night appeared assured for the annual District A. A. U. boxing tournament beginning Friday night at Turner's Arena, Chairman Bill Mulligan, of the A. A. U. committee, announced.

Deadline for entries in the tournament, which will run for five weeks in novice and senior divisions, will expire tonight at 6 o'clock. Entries will be accepted at 230 C Street Northwest until that hour.

Weighing in ceremonies for novices will be held tomorrow night at 8 o'clock at the Knights of Columbus Hall.

Comptroller Reports Gains For D.C. Banks

Conclusive proof that Washington banks experienced a banner year in 1940 is contained in the annual report submitted to Congress yesterday by Comptroller of Currency Preston Delano.

The report, in pamphlet form, covers operations of the 22 active local banks for the year ended June 29, 1940. Figures from the latest bank call as of December 31, 1940, still are being compiled.

Deposits Up 61 Million

Highlights of the report as of June 29, 1940, were the following comparisons:

Loans and discounts totaled $121,000,000 for an increase of $16,000,000 over the previous year.

Investments totaled $135,000,000, up $4,000,000.

Cash including reserve balances totaled $159,000,000, up $44,000,000.

Deposits totaled $385,000,000, up $61,000,000. (The deposit total as of December 30, 1940, is $419,877,182, according to a recently published survey by The Washington Post.)

Real estate loans of the 22 banks totaled $49,000,000 as of June 29, 1940, a gain of $7,000,000 over the same 1939 date.

Assets totaled $437,000,000, up $64,000,000.

Earnings Gain Slightly

The pamphlet report of Comptroller Delano also contained earnings for the 22 banks for the calendar year 1939. Aggregate results for 1940, of course, will not be known until next year. Highlights of the 1939 earnings statement follow:

Gross earnings (for calendar year 1939) were $11,912,000, or 289,000 more than in the previous year.

Interest and discount on loans accounted for $5,206,000. Interest and dividends on bonds, stocks and other securities accounted for $3,571,000.

Expenses were $293,000 more than in the preceding year, amounting to $8,704,000. Of this, $4,004,000 was for salaries, wages and fees while $1,670,000 was interest on deposits.

Net earnings were $3,208,000 which was increased by $2,092,000 of recoveries.

Loss and depreciation at $1,845,000 were $332,000 less than in the preceding year. Losses on loans were $257,000 and losses on bonds, stocks and other securities were $1,045,000.

Net additions to profits before dividends were $3,455,000 or $975,000 more than in 1938.

25 Credit Unions Here

Figures on local credit unions also were revealed in summary form. Here they are:

On December 31, 1939, the 25 active District of Columbia credit unions reported loans of $1,411,000, investments of $174,000, and cash and deposits of $151,000. These were respective increases of $365,000, $43,000 and $25,000.

Fully paid and installment shares totaled $1,551,000, an increase of $377,000 in the year. Undivided profits and reserves increased by $50,000 to $159,000.

Garfinckel Dividends

Directors of Julius Garfinckel & Co., Inc., declared the regular dividend of 37½ cents a share on the preferred stock, payable March 31, to stockholders of record March 15. The regular quarterly dividend of 17½ cents a share on the common stock also was declared, payable March 31, to stockholders of record March 15.

Christie Heads Committee

John M. Christie, assistant cashier of Riggs National Bank and first vice president of the Washington Chapter of American Institute of Banking, has been named chairman of the reception committee for the thirty-sixth annual banquet.

Other bankers who will serve on the committee are Bruce Baird, Willard G. Barker, Michael F. Calnan, R. J. Dooley, Thomas J. Groom, A. E. Henze, T. Stanley Holland, C. F. Jacobsen, Robert H. Lacey, T. Hunton Leith, A. M. McLachlen, Harry G. Meem, Richard A. Norris, A. Scott Offutt, C. H. Pope, Ord Preston, John A. Reilly, Wilmer J. Waller and George O. Vass.

Cotton Futures

New York, Feb. 17 (AP).—Cotton futures rallied today on a moderate mill demand. While top marks were shaded, the market finished unchanged to 3 points ahead.

Early declines were posted as a result of lower markets at Bombay and Liverpool, but later a shortage of contracts developed and buyers were forced to bid up prices.

Cottonseed Oil

New York, Feb. 17 (AP).—Cottonseed oil futures dropped 7 to 9 points today, carrying September to a new seasonal low.

Liquidation was generated by concern over the turn of events abroad and an unexpected increase in lard stocks.

Sales totaled 138 contracts: March, 6.07 bid; May, 6.17 bid; July, 6.26; September, 6.35 bid; October, 6.38 bid.

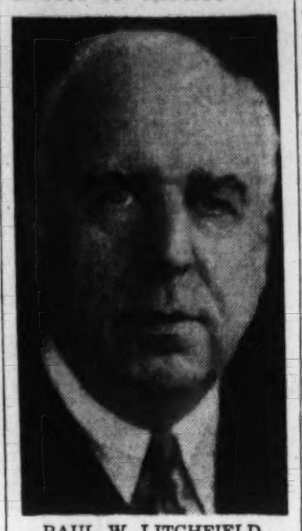
Rubber Shipping Crisis Is 'Acute'



PAUL W. LITCHFIELD, chairman of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., said yesterday in the firm's annual earnings report that "recently the shipping situation has become acute" although plenty of crude rubber is available in primary markets

Am. Woolen Co. Net Jumps to $3,154,404

By the Associated Press

American Woolen Co. reported yesterday net profit for 1940 of $3,154,646, equal after preferred dividends requirements for the year to $2.26 a common share, compared with $2,311,887, or $8.60 a preferred share, in 1939.

Moses Pendleton, president, said the present backlog of orders made the outlook for the next few months "quite favorable."

He said: "Orders for civilian purposes were greatly curtailed during the second and third quarters of 1940 due in some measure to a carry-over of merchandise but largely to a reluctance on the part of the trade to anticipate their normal requirements.

"Therefore, notwithstanding the full measure of cooperation given by the company to the Government in its national defense program, there has, so far, been a minimum dislocation of civilian business.

"As indications now point to a substantial increase in the demand from civilian trade, it is hoped that, with the probable additional Government orders to be placed, the company's mills will be able to operate at approximate capacity for the greater part of the current year."

Pendleton reported that since June the company had been awarded $54,732,023 in United States Government contracts.

Your Income Tax

Prepared by Bureau of Internal Revenue, Treasury Dept.

Deduction for Interest

Amounts paid or accrued within the taxable year 1940 as interest on indebtedness are deductible, with certain exceptions, from gross income in determining net income.

Deductible items include interest on borrowed money to defray personal expenses, and on money borrowed for the purchase of real or personal property. If a person owes money on a lien or mortgage note on his home, the amount of the interest may be deducted.

Indebtedness, however, need not be evidenced by lien, judgment or mortgage to make the interest on it deductible. Frequently indebtedness is evidenced only by note.

Interest paid on indebtedness incurred in the purchase of obligations (other than obligations of the United States issued after September 24, 1917, and originally subscribed for by the taxpayer), the interest upon which is wholly exempt from Federal income tax, is not deductible.

Interest paid on behalf of another where there is no legal obligation on the part of the payor is not deductible by the payor. In such cases the amount is the same as a gift.

As interest paid is deductible, so interest received is taxable (except interest on obligations of a State, Territory or any political subdivision thereof, or the District of Columbia; or obligations of a corporation organized under act of Congress, if such corporation is an instrumentality of the United States; or the obligations of the United States or its possessions to the extent provided in the acts authorizing the issue thereof). All such amounts, including interest received on bank and savings deposits, must be included in the taxpayer's return of gross income.

New York Dry Goods

New York, Feb. 17 (AP).—Activity in cotton goods today centered chiefly in sheeting constructions and specialty numbers, while print and broad cloths were quiet. Spun rayon yarns and twills were active and strong and sheets and shark-skins also moved well. Full asking prices were paid for woolen piece goods with most material settling in the hands of jobbers. Silk piece goods remained quiet.

Goodyear Nets $10,309,788 During Year

Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. and subsidiaries yesterday reported 1940 net profit of $10,309,788 after subsidiary dividends, Federal income taxes and $1,000,000 reserve for contingencies.

This equaled, after $5 preferred dividends, $3.44 a common share and compared with $9,837,797 (after deducting $1,791,602 foreign exchange adjustment), or $3.20 a common share, in 1939. Net sales increased to $217,540,079 from $200,101,704.

Goodyear directors declared an extra dividend of 25 cents a common share in addition to the regular 25-cent payment. Both are payable March 15 to February 21 stockholders.

Plenty of crude rubber is available in primary markets, but "recently the shipping situation has become acute," chairman Paul W. Litchfield said.

"We will require considerable additional American flag ships assigned to the rubber-carrying trade to take care of American consumption and to build up an adequate reserve," Litchfield informed stockholders in Goodyear's annual report.

"The stocks of crude rubber now on hand in the United States represent about a six months supply, with a substantial improvement forecast during the coming months. Our own plantations shipped to us 33,000,000 pounds of crude rubber in 1940 as compared with 22,000,000 pounds in 1939."

United Carbon Co.

United Carbon Co. and subsidiaries reported 1940 net profit of $1,336,331 after Federal and State income and profits taxes, equal to $3.36 a common share, compared with $1,518,266, or $3.81, a share, in 1939.

National Oil Products Co.

National Oil Products Co. reported 1940 net profit of $704,967, the thirty-third consecutive annual profit since the company was established in 1907 and the largest in its history. This was equal to $3.92 a common share and compared with $700,401, or $3.90 a share, in 1939.

Tubize Chatillon Corporation

Tubize Chatillon Corporation, makers of rayon and artificial silk yarns, earned net income in 1940 of $1,509,520 after Federal income and excess profits taxes, equal after annual dividend requirements on the preferred and class "A" stocks to $1.24 a common share.

National Distillers Products

National Distillers Products Corporation for 1940 reported net profit of $6,711,962 after taxes and charges, equal to $3.28 a common share, compared with $7,007,124 or $3.43 a common share in 1939. Net sales totaled $70,927,647 in 1940, compared with $59,170,887 in the previous year, an increase of 20 per cent.

The smaller net, despite larger sales, said Seton Porter, president, was due to provision of $2,226,750 for Federal income and capital stock taxes, against $1,077,707 last year, an increase of over 100 per cent.

Ruberoid Co.

The Ruberoid Co., makers of builders products, reported 1940 net profit of $802,100, equal to $2.02 a share after Federal income and capital stock taxes, compared with $608,128, or $1.53 a share, in 1939. Sales of $17,369,902 were the largest in the company's history and topped 1939 by 9 per cent.

Continental Can Co.

Continental Can Co. and wholly owned subsidiaries reported for 1940 net income of $8,953,632, equal to $2.82 a share on the common stock, compared with $8,635,787, or $2.71 a share, in 1939. A reserve of $200,000 against a decline in inventory prices or other contingencies was charged against the earnings.

Thermoid Co.

The Thermoid Co., manufacturers of brake linings, and domestic subsidiaries reported in preliminary statement for 1940 net income of $615,342, equal to $1.04 a share on the common stock, compared with $432,304, or 65 cents a share, in 1939.

Marshall Field & Co.

Marshall Field & Co., operator of a Chicago department store and textile mills in North Carolina, Virginia and Illinois, reported a 1940 net profit of $5,692,981, equal to $2.47 a share on the common stock, compared with $4,636,558, or $1.92 a share, in 1939.

Turnover Lightens as Stock List Continues Creeping Advance; Gains Are Moderate

New York, Feb. 17.—The stock market continued its creeping rally today with leaders tacking on gains of fractions to a point or so.

Best prices were seen in the forenoon. Steels and rails edged forward at the start and bidding came into other departments, trends faltered in the final hour and many issues closed well under their tops.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks held a net advance of .2 of a point at 40.3. Transfers of 356,720 shares were among the smallest for a full session since September 16. They compared with 933,740 last Friday, when quotations took their sharpest nose-dive since November 6.

Stimulating news, on the whole, was lacking and such buying as cropped up was attributed mainly to the belief of analysts that the lengthy decline which last week put numerous stocks to around their lows of last June entitled the market to at least a fair-sized technical comeback.

Lack of interest in the day's proceedings was exemplified by the fact that only 661 individual issues were traded, or just about half those listed in the stock exchange. Of the total, 302 were up, 177 down and 182 unchanged.

The war and tax fears, brokers said, still were the principal speculative and investment handicaps. Helpful, however, was a batch of railway earnings statements for 1940 disclosing brisk improvement over the preceding year.

Steels were not especially depressed by a drop of 2½ points in this week's mill operations. The recession had been expected owing to shut-downs for furnace repairs and strikes in some districts.

On the bearish side were reports Bulgaria and Turkey had reached a nonaggresgion accord which indicated the latter would not enter the conflict in the event Germany sends troops into Bulgaria.

Stocks emerging on the upside included United States Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet, Santa Fe, Great Northern, Chesapeake & Ohio, General Motors, Chrysler, Anaconda, United Aircraft, Genneral Electric, du Pont, Allied Chemical, Sears-Roebuck, International Harvester, Union Carbide and American Can.

There were more advances in the bond department than losses. Commodities were irregular. Wheat at Chicago was off more than ½ cent a bushel, and corn ⅞ to 1⅛ cents lower. Cotton was unchanged to up 15 cents a bale.

In the Curb, Heyden Chemical got up 3½ points. Lesser gains were retained by American Gas, Bell Aircraft, Glen Alden Coal, Humble Oil, Niagara Hudson Power and Cities Service. Colts Patent Firearms slipped, along with Electric Bond & Share, Vennezuelan Petroleum and Pittsburgh Plate Glass. Volume here was around 86,000 shares, versus 196,000 in the previous five-hour session.

Bank Loans Up 49 Million During Week

By the Associated Press

For the twentieth consecutive week, the Federal Reserve board reported yesterday that banks had increased their commercial, industrial and agricultural loans.

In 101 leading cities, the gain in the week ended February 12 was $49,000,000. This brought the total in these cities to $5,173,000,000, an increase of $543,000,000 in the last 20 weeks, and a gain of $860,000,000 in a year.

Largest increases last week were $17,000,000 in New York City and $7,000,000 each in the Cleveland and Chicago Federal Reserve districts.

The board's 101-city member bank condition statement gave the following summary of assets and liabilities on February 12, together with changes for the week and with the same week last year, in millions of dollars:

SEC Hearing Bares Rebates Of Curb Trader

By the Associated Press

Jerome Chester Cuppia, former Wall Street cotton and securities dealer, told a Securities Commission hearing yesterday that he had put personal representatives in New York Curb Exchange seats and had used them to get "kickbacks" on business he gave them.

The SEC has begun proceedings against the Curb Exchange, charging it with failure properly to punish violations of exchange rules against rebates and split commissions.

The commission acted after asserting that the Curb's board of governors had permitted Cuppia to transfer his membership, with the understanding that he would live in South America, and had merely reprimanded other members involved.

Cuppia, bald and sharp-featured, said that he had been a cotton dealer in Wall Street from 1908 until he joined the firm of E. A. Pierce & Co. in 1927 and took charge of their Curb Exchange business.

Questioned by Joseph A. Patrick, SEC counsel, Cuppia said that in 1929 he had placed his wife as a special partner in a rival firm, Lock, Andrews & Pierce, with the understanding that he would send business their way.

It was to recoup losses suffered when that firm was dissolved in 1932, Cuppia continued, that he purchased a Curb seat for William A. Plate, who had been a clerk under him and who then began operating ostensibly as an independent broker on the Exchange.

Through an agreement, which Cuppia said, was "better out of writing," Plate received a salary and turned over his commissions as a broker to a bank account on which Cuppia's secretary, Marion P. Shade, held power of attorney.

Cuppia said that he also had bought a seat for William J. Hen-

DuPont Votes $1.75 Dividend

Wilmington, Del., Feb. 17 (AP).—Directors of E. I. duPont de Nemours & Co. today voted an interim dividend of $1.75 a share on the common stock, payable March 14 to holders of record February 24. Four dividends of similar amounts were paid in 1940.

Sugar Futures

New York, Feb. 17 (AP).—World sugar futures rose 1½ to 3½ points today. Considerable buying was attributed to fears that a spread of war to the Far East might affect shipments of sugar. Sales were 29,000 tons. March closed .69½ bid; May, .72 bid.

The domestic list improved on a steady raw market. The finish was up 3 to 3 points, with distant deliveries at new highs for the season. Turnover totaled 12,300 tons. Offerings of raws were fairly large, but firmly held at 3.00+3.05 cents a pound.

Refined locally held at 4.45 cents a pound.

Listen! with Glynn

"Your Government This Week," the WJSV program devoted to the doings and the welfare of Government employes is to be heard at a new time, beginning tonight.

From now on it will be heard every Tuesday at 10:15 p. m. instead of on Saturdays at 7:30 where you've been hearing it these many months. Jerry Kluttz, editor of The Post's Federal Diary and master of ceremonies of the program, will continue, however, having his distinguished governmental guests. Tonight it's to be Robert Bondi, Director of Public Welfare in the District, who is going to talk on the National Defense Council.

On the program tonight, too, you'll be given your last-minute instructions on how you can enter the Federal Employe's Council and WJSV's contest for a free week's trip to Florida—that is, if you're a Government employe. The contest, requiring only a brief suggestion on how recreational activities among Government employes can best be promoted, is to close at midnight Wednesday.

The judges, who will study the hundreds of entries for a two-week period, are: Lucille Foster McMillan, Civil Service Commissioner; Dr. Frederick W. Davenport, Director of the Council of Personnel Administrators; Capt. Frank W. Hoover, General Manager of the Welfare and Recreation Association; Sybil Baker, Director of Community Centers, and Arch Edwards, chairman of the Federal Employes Council.

Listen Tonight, "DREAM HOUSE," WMAL, 7:30
Every night, "DREAMTIME," WINX, 11:05

Supreme Court Denies Appeal Of Browder

By John B. Oakes
Post Staff Writer

The sentence of Earl Browder, American Communist leader, to four years in Federal penitentiary for violation of the passport laws was upheld yesterday in a unanimous decision of the Supreme Court.

At the same time, the Court affirmed the two-year sentence, under the passport law, of another leading American Communist, Robert William Wiener, one-time treasurer of the party. Justice Murphy, former Attorney General, refrained from participation in either case.

In two important decisions affecting interstate commerce, the Court:

Limited the powers of the Federal Trade Commission under a strict interpretation of the law, in an opinion written by Justice Frankfurter, from which three other New Deal appointees dissented; and Upheld an Iowa tax on the use of goods purchased by mail order outside the State.

Must Pay $2,000 Fine

In the Browder case, the Supreme Court affirmed the action of lower tribunals in imposing a $2,000 fine and a four-year prison sentence on the Communist leader for having twice used a passport obtained by a false statement.

Browder, general secretary of the Communist Party and its nominee for President in 136 and 1940, allegedly obtained passports in 1921, 1927 and 1931 under assumed names.

In applying for a passport under his own name in 1934, he stated he had never before held one. The passport was issued and was used by Browder to identify himself on his return from Europe in 1937 and again in 1938. It was for using the passport these two times that he was indicted, tried and convicted. (He was not prosecuted for obtaining the passport by false statement because of the statute of limitations.)

Browder is at present free on bail. Unless a rehearing is granted, he is expected to begin serving his sentence within 30 days.

Justice Frankfurter's opinion in the Federal Trade Commission case yesterday prevents the FTC from interfering with a trade practice carried on by an Illinois candy manufacturer within the State. Out-of-State manufacturers competing in the Illinois market could not engage in the practice because it was forbidden by the FTC.

Await Congress' Action

Asserting that the FTC's construction of the law would give the agency control over "myriads of local businesses in matters heretofore traditionally left to local custom," Justice Frankfurter said that such an "inroad upon local conditions and local standards . . . ought to await a clearer mandate from Congress."

On the other hand, Justice Douglas Black and Reed—maintained that interstate commerce was affected by the acts complained of and therefore the FTC could step in.

Noting that "unfair competition involves not only an offender but also a victim," they held that "here some of the victims of the unfair methods of competition are engaged in interstate commerce . . . It is the existence of . . . injury to interstate commerce, not the interstate or intrastate character of the conduct causing the injury, which is important."

In two Iowa tax cases, Justice Douglas, speaking for a 5-to-2 majority ruled that the State could compel two large mail order houses, which had offices in the State, to act as collection agencies for a tax imposed on goods bought by Iowa residents on mail order to offices of the firms outside the State.

Tax on Mail Orders

Other competitive mail order concerns which have no offices in Iowa and thus do not have to collect the tax on their Iowa sales "are not doing business in the State as foreign corporations . . . and are not receiving benefits from Iowa for which it has the power to exact a price," said Justice Douglas. Justice Stone did not participate.

Justice Roberts, joined in dissent by Chief Justice Hughes, held that the mail order business is interstate commerce and that the State "may not directly burden such commerce."

In another opinion, the Court ordered Nebraska courts to reconsider the case of Albert Smith, who claimed that the ignorance of his rights and failure to obtain counsel resulted in a sentence of 20 years' imprisonment in the State Penitentiary. He has already served eight years.

The Court also:

Reversed the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Tenth Circuit in the case of E. A. Kelleam, Nell Southard, Joe E. Kelleam and Joe R. Southard, jr., vs. Maryland Casualty Co., of Baltimore, Md., et al.; and Agreed to review a Fourth Federal Circuit Court decision that Richard J. Reynolds, North Carolina tobacco millionaire, should pay 1934 Federal income tax on profits from inherited stock, based on the value of the securities on April 3, 1934, when he actually received the stock. The Commissioner of Internal Revenue appealed the case.

Second Precinct's Modern Police Station Dedicated at Citizen-Sponsored Exercises

THE NEW NO. 2—Policemen attached to the Second Precinct leave the new station house in pursuit of their duties

With as much ceremony as could be arranged on a blustery day, the staff of the Second Precinct, Metropolitan Police, yesterday took possession of its $64,000 quarters on New York Avenue between Fifth and Sixth Streets Northwest.

Considered by police officials to be one of the most modern such structures in the country—and considered by its staff a relief from its 80-year-old former headquarters—the station house is of Colonial design, built of steel and concrete, and has year-round air conditioning.

Among officials who participated in the dedication were Police Superintendent Ernest W. Brown, Capt. Jeremiah A. Sullivan of the Precinct, and Commissioner J. Russel Young.

The exercises were sponsored by citizens' associations in that area, including the Northern Seventh Street Business Men's Association, New Center Market Business Men's Association, Central Business Association, and the Logan-Thomas and Mid-City Citizens Associations.

The dedication was broadcast, and music was provided by the Police Boys' Band. Commissioner Young declared that the building's proper use is assured by Capt. Sullivan, one of the most outstanding officers of the department."

Heretofore, the Second Precinct has shared quarters with No. 13 at Ninth and U Street Northwest. The Thirteenth Precinct will remain at the old structure under command of Capt. James E. Bobo.

A. A. Hoehling, Retired Jurist And D .C. Banker, Dies at 72

Sat in Teapot Dome Trial, Administered Second Coolidge Oath

Adolph A. Hoehling, 72, retired District Supreme Court justice, banker and former president of the District of Columbia Bar Association, died yesterday at Garfield Hospital after an illness of two weeks.

Mr. Hoehling, as a justice, sat in the original Teapot Dome trial and, a fact but little known, administered a second oath of office to President Calvin Coolidge.

Coolidge, Mr. Hoehling's death reminded, took his second and secret oath of office in the Willard Hotel here 18 days after he had been administered a first oath by candlelight in the Vermont farm home of his father. The second oath Mr. Hoehling gave on a Gideon Bible and the incident he kept secret until 1932.

Son of Admiral Hoehling

Mr. Hoehling, son of Rear Admiral A. A. Hoehling, U. S. N., and Mrs. Annie Tilghman Hoehling, was born on November 3, 1868, in Philadelphia. He studied at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute and Lehigh University; Columbian (now George Washington) University, receiving degrees of LL. B. and LL. M.

He married Louise G. Carrington, of East Orange, N. J., on June 9, 1906. Besides his wife, he leaves two children, Mrs. John H. Knowles and A. A. Hoehling 3d, both of this city. He also leaves one sister, Mrs. C. F. R. Ogilby, of Washington.

In June, 1921, Mr. Hoehling was appointed by President Harding to succeed Ashley M. Gould as associate justice of the District Supreme Court. The Presidential action was made upon the unanimous request of the bar association. Prior to this, the association never had agreed on such a recommendation.

Justice Hoehling continued on the bench until January 1, 1928. His resignation enabled him to return to private practice with the firm of Hoehling, Peelle & Ogilby, which he established in 1913.

Was World War Officer

He had begun the practice of law here in 1891 with the firm of Shellabarger and Wilson, and during the World War was commissioned a major, serving in the office of the Judge Advocate General as executive officer under Gen. Enoch Crowder, and was also legal adviser to the District Draft Board.

Mr. Hoehling was vice president of the National Metropolitan Bank and a former trust officer there. His affiliations included the Metropolitan and Chevy Chase Clubs and the Psi Upsilon and Phi Delta Phi fraternities.

His death was attributed to a fall two weeks ago. Burial is expected to be in Arlington Cemetery. His residence was at 5 Newlands Street, Chevy Chase, Md.

Overhauling Of D. C. Fiscal Setup Studied

A new overhauling of the District's financial structure, and a revival of the perennial fight between the backers of sales and income taxation plans, were indicated by District leaders in Congress yesterday.

Chairman Randolph, of the House District Committee, announced plans for making a start at probing the whole District tax problem, after he had appointed Representatives Hunter (Democrat), of Ohio, and Hebert (Democrat), of Louisiana, to fill remaining places on the District Fiscal Affairs Subcommittee.

Hunter, assigned to be chairman of the subcommittee, had announced last week that he favored an income tax in principle but thought the District had special problems which might make a sales tax preferable.

Hebert Favors Sales Tax

Hebert yesterday said he favored a sales tax for the District, as does Representative McGehee, of Mississippi, third Democratic member of the subcommittee.

Representative Dirksen, of Illinois, ranking minority member of the District committee and of its fiscal affairs subcommittee, said late yesterday that he would fight any attempt to set up a District sales tax.

Dirksen said that whatever the subcommittee might do toward approving a sales tax plan, he believes he can block any sales tax on the floor of the House, and he intends to do that.

Dirksen said that he favors "perfecting" the present income tax law. Like Dirksen, Representative Bates (Republican), of Massachusetts, fifth member of the subcommittee, is listed as a backer of the income tax system.

Back Overton Plan

Both Hunter and Hebert are in favor of the Overton formula for increasing the Federal contribution to the District's annual expenses.

A start at revamping the tax setup is expected to be made Thursday or Friday with the first meeting of the fiscal affairs subcommittee. Starting point for the subcommittee's tax study is a bill to amend the present income tax law so that the levy would reach persons living here more than six months in the year, and tap the salaries of nonresidents who are employed in the District.

Along with approving the fiscal subcommittee appointments, the District committee also reported favorably three bills, which are expected to come up in the House on the first District day next Monday.

One bill would set a 10-year maximum jail term for smuggling narcotics and other contraband into District penal institutions. The second would permit the District to build street crossings without grade separations over little-used railroad spur lines in the city. The third would make it a misdemeanor for master plumbers and gas fitters to transfer licenses to another person.

Tolan Asks Law To Protect 'Okies' From Contractors

As the first outgrowth of a House inquiry into migratory labor conditions, Representative Tolan (Democrat)), California, asked Congress yesterday to compel labor contractors in interstate commerce to register with the Secretary of Labor.

These employers would have to post $3,000 bonds to protect persons whose employment was solicited and pay a $100 registration fee. Labor, charitable, religious, fraternal and social welfare organizations would be exempt.

In a statement, Tolan said the special committee which investigated the migrant problem for the House regarded the regulation of labor contractors in interstate commerce as "an immediate and pressing problem."

"Its intent," Tolan said of the bill, "is to wipe out labor exploitation, fraud and misleading representations by employment agencies, which cause people to move fruitlessly from State to State."

Citizens Protest Plan to Close Van Ness Street

Proposals to close a section of Van Ness Street between Connecticut Avenue and Reno Road Northwest for the protection of national defense projects under way at the Bureau of Standards yesterday drew strong protest from citizens and property owners in the vicinity.

More than a score of persons appeared at a public hearing before the Commissioners to oppose the plan. Dr. Lyman Briggs, director of the Bureau of Standards, termed the street closing as "vitally necessary."

Van Ness Street bisects the bureau's property.

The opposition forces were led by John B. Dickman, jr., president of the North Cleveland Park Citizens Association.

Dr. Briggs said it is planned to fence in the entire bureau property.

Mrs. Blum Elected Head Of D. C. Beverage Firm

In a special meeting of the board of directors of the Valley Forge Distributing Co., local beverage firm, Mrs. Greta Blum was elected president and treasurer to succeed her husband, David Blum, who died February 10. Mrs. Blum will assume her new duties immediately. Samuel Selker and Joseph Code, who have been with the firm for some time, were elected to the board. According to Mrs. Blum no changes in personnel are anticipated and the business will continue operating as in the past.

Getting Up Nights Makes Many Feel Old

Do you feel older than you are or suffer from Getting Up Nights, Backache, Nervousness, Leg Pains, Dizziness, Swollen Ankles, Rheumatic Pains, Burning, scanty or frequent passages? If so, remember that your Kidneys are vital to your health and that these symptoms may be due to non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles—in such cases CYSTEX (a physician's prescription) usually gives prompt and joyous relief by helping the Kidneys flush out poisonous excess acids and wastes. You have everything to gain and nothing to lose in trying Cystex. An iron-clad guarantee wrapped around each package assures a refund of your money on return of empty package unless fully satisfied. Don't take chances on any Kidney medicine that is not guaranteed. Don't delay. Get Cystex (Siss-tex) from your druggist today. Only 35c. The guarantee protects you.

Cystex Helps Flush Kidneys

Don't be a Blowhard!

Remember that your nose is not made of rubber. If you keep on blowing and blowing, it's bound to become red, sore, and swollen. So stop blowing.

The easy, modern way to clear stopped-up nostrils due to a cold is to use Mentholatum. All you need do is insert this gentle ointment inside your nostrils—spread some outside, too. See how quickly it clears up the stuffiness and relieves irritation—how it checks sniffling and sneezing.

Once you use Mentholatum you'll say it's wonderful. It helps in so many different ways that you should always remember this: For Discomforts of Colds—Mentholatum. Link them together in your mind.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.
